FOREWORD

In order to ensure complete coverage at a population count, the Census Organisation obtains or prepares up-to-date detailed maps of all administrative units in the country on the eve of a census. Though in several parts of the country maps of the Districts, Tahsils, Police Stations, etc., are available with the State Revenue or Survey authorities, often times, they required to be brought up-to-date and they also varied greatly in scale. One also found it difficult to secure a complete or compact set of all these maps from State authorities. The Census Organisation took upon itself the task of up-dating of the administrative maps and the standardization of scales essentially to meet its own requirements of coverage at the census and analysis of data. Standardization of symbols was also attempted to depict certain features such as the State/district/tahsil boundaries, administrative headquarters, national and state highways and other roads, markets and mandis, post and telegraph offices, travellers' bungalows, hospitals, etc. All urban centres and larger villages were depicted by names in the district maps, and in the tahsil maps the location of every village by dots proportionate to the population size and the distinctive location code number of each village marked. In each of the District Census Handbooks (there are 356 districts in the country) the district map as well as the tahsil maps will be printed.

While these administrative maps, prepared with great amount of care and effort, served the purposes of the census extremely well, the 1971 Census Organisation felt that these would be invaluable for many an administrative purpose and for planning and also to the scholars who might like to utilize these maps for various studies. Therefore, it was decided, after full consideration at the all-India Census Conferences of Courtallam (1970) and Pahalgam (1971) to publish all the district and tahsil maps of each State together in a compact and handy volume entitled "Administrative Atlas". Though this Atlas is basically a compilation of administrative maps giving the set up as on the census date, i.e., 1st April, 1971, it has been enriched by adding inset maps, wherever necessary, showing the changes in the boundaries during the decade 1961—71. Besides, the Atlas also contains a few introductory State maps showing certain basic characteristics as the physiography, density of population, distribution of towns and the distribution of rural population. A few schematic urban maps are also added to give the land-use patterns in the typical urban areas of the State. In order to make the Atlas somewhat self-contained statistical statements are also addded giving data on the area, population size, growth rate, sex and age structure, literacy, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe population and religion.

The Census Organisation, as is well-known, is one of the largest producers of maps in the country. Apart from the Administrative Atlas, the 1971 Census publication programme envisages the production of separate Census Atlases which will depict the physiographic, demographic, economic, social and cultural characteristics of each State as derived from the Census as well as other sources of data.

I wish to place on record my appreciation of the dedicated services of Dr. B. K. Roy, the Map Officer of the Registrar General's Office and all his collegues in the Map Unit and also of all the State Directors of Census Operations and the staff of their Map Units who have all worked together as a team and have succeeded in the production of this Administrative Atlas which I hope will serve the needs of the administrator, the planner and the scholar alike.

PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Census of India has a long tradition of providing a wealth of demographic statistics alongwith brilliant reports supported and substantiated by rich variety of maps and diagrams. Prior to the 1961 Census, maps and diagrams were employed to illustrate the spatial patterns of various population characteristics at national or state levels. At the 1961 Census, it was realized that administrative maps showing each tahsil in a district and every village in the tahsil should also be incorporated in the district census handbooks. Though highly beneficial in many regards, such an arrangement suffered from the drawback, that these administrative maps were spread over different district census books of a state. It was, therefore, rightly decided at the 1971 Census that all these administrative maps of a state must be compiled into one volume known as Administrative Atlas. This Volume thus incorporates maps showing administrative boundaries down to the village level, various amenities—educational, medical, communication, etc.—available in the area as also various physiographic and demographic features of the districts. Thus, the Administrative Atlas, the first of its kind in the census history, is a useful tool to an administrator, planner, scholar and other data users.

The present volume includes 69 maps in all. Six maps cover the locational, physiographic and demographic aspects of the state as a whole. Eleven district maps protray population of towns, location of villages with atleast 5,000 persons and position of some other villages with prominent educational, medical and transportational facilities. Forty-two maps for individual tahsils show village boundaries alongwith location code numbers and their size class of population. The remaining ten maps concentrate on schematic view of some selected towns.

To make this volume more useful, basic statistics have been placed on the facing page of each district and tahsil map.

The preparation of this Administrative Atlas involved a high degree of technical skill and planning for which I am grateful to Shri Madhav Shyam, Cartographer, who was closely assisted by Sarvshri Surinderjit Singh, Geographer; Jiwan Singh, Artist; Gurbachan Singh, Economic Investigator; Kulbir Singh, Draughtsman and Sham Sunder, Assistant Compiler. It is my pleasant duty to acknowledge the creative co-operation of all these persons. For overall supervision and guidance, acknowledgements are due to Shri J. C. Kalra, the then Assistant Director and Shri Gurmit Singh Gill, Tabulation Officer.

My predecessor, Shri H. S. Kwatra of the Punjab Civil Service was in over-all charge of the preparation of this Volume till I took over from him on 1-3-1977. I record my gratefulness for the able guidance provided by him in the execution of this Volume which was actually completed during his tenure.

I am deeply indebted to Dr. B. K. Roy, Assistant Registrar (Map) in the Office of Registrar General, India, New Delhi who was very kind in providing guidelines for the entire work.

We are also greatly indebted to Shri R.S. Nilkar, Manager; Government of India Press, Simla, for the high quality of printing of this Volume.

INTRODUCTION

1971 CENSUS—A BACKGROUND NOTE

India's first census on an all-India basis was taken in 1872. Thereafter, there had been regular decennial censuses in years ending in "1" i.e., 1881, 1891, 1901, 1911, 1921, 1931, 1941, 1951 and 1961. The present census of 1971 marks the completion of hundred years of census-taking in the country.

Prior to 1961, the Indian Census Organisation was veritably like the proverbial phoenix. The Census Commissioner was appointed a year or two in advance of the census date and the Provincial Census Superintendents came into being about a year before the census and the huge Census Organisation was quickly built up. There was tremendous activity associated with the census enumeration and processing of data, and on completion of this work and the final analysis of the data and preparation of the reports the entire Census Organisation altogether disappeared within about a couple of years after the census was completed, and was not to be heard of again till the next census was taken. Fortunately, from 1961, there has been a continuing organistion. In every State and Union Territory, though the Census Superintendent himself returned to the State Government on completion of a major part of the work, a nucleus Census Office continued during the inter-censal period. The existence of a continuing organisation did help in starting the preparations for the 1971 Census fairly early.

The questionnaires for the 1971 Census were developed after detailed discussions with the various data users such as the Ministries of the Government of India, the Planning Commission, the Central Statistical Organisation, the Directorate General of Employment and Training, the Department of Social Welfare, Chambers of Commerce & Industry, Individual Scholars, etc. The questionnaires were subjected to two pre-tests in the field before they were finally adopted. The schedules that were ultimately adopted were (1) the House list; (2) the Establishment Schedule; (3) the Individual Slip; and (4) the Population Record. The first two schedules were canvassed during 1970 as part of the house-numbering and houselisting operations in advance of the Census enumeration.

The Establishment Schedule, which was also canvassed alongwith the Houselist, was a new one developed at the 1971 Census.

While in 1961 Census, some particulars of only the manufacturing, processing or servicing establishments were collected in the Houselist form itself, now the coverage of the Establishment Schedule in 1970 was much more comprehensive encompassing all establishments. Besides the manufacturing establishments, it also covered the trade and other establishments and gathered detailed particulars of the establishments. This schedule has yielded very valuable data on the unorganised sector of establishments.

Alongwith the house-numbering operations, national maps of every village and town were prepared giving the location of every household. Some excellent lay-out maps had been prepared in most States and these have been compiled into albums for each administrative area, such as a Tahsil and are being preserved. These maps, together with the houselist, will provide a valuable frame for any surveys in future. In any case, these maps served the needs of the Census for complete coverage by the enumerators exceedingly well. The Census Organisation had also updated all the jurisdictional maps of every administrative area in the country taking into account all the changes that took place after 1961.

A few special characteristics of the Individual Slip as compared to its predecessor of 1961, were that a question on current fertility was included. There was also an additional question on migration with reference to the place of last residence. The economic questions were more detailed, the secondary work being ascertained of every individual.

The Population Record was also prepared which was a compilation for each household of a few basic details of each individual member of the household copied out from the individual slip. At the 1971 Census a Household Schedule similar to that of 1961 was not canvassed.

The census enumeration was originally programmed to commence on 10th February and end on 28th February 1971 with the reference date for the census being fixed as the sunrise of 1st March 1971. The mid-term General Elections in the country made it necessary to postpone the census enumeration by a month. The enumeration, therefore, commenced on 10th March and ended on 31st March 1971, with a refence date as the sunrise of 1st April 1971. All persons usually residing in a household during this reference period were enumerated. The houseless were also enumerated on the night of 31st March. A revisional round of three days from 1st to 3rd April was undertaken by the enumerators to bring the data uptodate as at the reference point of time

The amount of organisation and effort that has gone into the operation will be evident when it is realised that the data collected by the thousands of enumerators in the State were quickly compiled and provisional population figures were struck for each district and consolidated for the State and the figures were communicated to the Registrar General on the 4th and 5th April, 1971 after completion of Census enumeration and the revisional round on the 3rd April, 1971.

The census schedules were processed in detail at three Regional Tabulation Offices, Chandigarh, Jullundur and Patiala. An elaborate Tabulation Plan has been drawn up for presenting the final population figures. The data and the analytical reports are being published in a series of publications. The publication programme has been carefully developed so as to ensure that the data will be made available to the users as quickly as possible after it is processed. The 1971 publications will be made up of 30 series, the first series covering the all-India publications and the remaining series one for each State and Union Territory. To know what the various census tables are that are proposed to be published in different parts of the Census publications, the titles of these various tables have been listed on page ii.

Introduction

The present Punjab, aptly described as 'bread basket' and 'sword arm' of India, is only one-seventh of what it was before Independence. The first event which reduced its size was the partition in 1947, when western part of its territory was transferred to Pakistan. It suffered another loss of territory in 1948 when Himachal Pradesh (then a Class 'C' State, now a full State) was carved out of it. The year 1956, however, witnessed an addition of territory due to the merger of Pepsu into Punjab. Again on November 1, 1966 the State got re-organized on linguistic basis and its area reduced considerably. Since then it has not undergone any change till the reference date of April 1, 1971 for the purposes of Census.

Situated in norh-west of India, Punjab spreads between 29°—33′ N to 32°-31′ N latitude and 73°—53′ E to 76°—56′ E longitude. The international border with Pakistan marks its western boundary. It is flanked by Jammu & Kashmir to the north, Himachal Pradesh to the east, and Haryana and Rajasthan to the south.

Roughly triangular in shape, Punjab covers an area of 50,362 Km^2. It recorded a population of 13.6 million at the last 1971 Census. Among the 22 states in the country, it ranks 15th in area and 14th in population.

Administratively, the State is divided into two divisions namely, Patiala and Jullundur. These divisions in themselves are comprised of 11 districts, 42 tahsils, 12,888 villages (including 700 uninhabited) and 108 towns.

Physiography

The Punjab is essentially an alluvial plain ranging in elevation from 180 to 300 metres and having a gentle slope from north-east to south-west. The State surpasses all other states of India in possessing level topography since more than 90 percent of total area is just plain. However, the Siwalik Hills make a conspicuous physical feature along the north-easten boundary of the State. At the foot of the hills lies a dissected plain. Accordingly, Punjab can be divided into the following three regions on the basis of physiography:

(1) The Hilly Tract

(2) The Flat Plain

(3) The Foothill Zone

The hilly tract, a part of the Siwalik Hills skirting the main Himalayas, stretches along the north-eastern border of Punjab and has a width of six to ten kilometres. It covers the upper portions of the districts of Ropar, Hoshiarpur and Gurdaspur and separates Punjab, from Himachal Pradesh. This hilly region is broken at three different places : first, near Ropar where the river Satluj comes out in the plains; second, near Talwara where Beas enters the plains; and the third near east of Garhshankar where the Nangal—Garhshankar road makes its way. The elevation of the hills varies from less than 400 to more than 600 metres in Ropar district; it goes up to 900 metres in upper parts of Gurdaspur district. The hills are comprised of conglomerate, sandstones, clay and sand.

The flat plain is part of the main Indo-Gangetic plain. It is the product of alluvial material deposited by the Himalayan rivers, such as Satluj, Beas, Ravi, etc. The alluvium consists of clay, silt and sand. Within the flat plain, one can distinguish between the flood plains along the rivers and uplands stretching above them.

Intervening the flat plain and the hilly tract is a dissected, undulating foothill zone. This area is cho infested. Chos are seasonal streams originating from the adjoining Siwalik Hills. These have caused extensive soil erosion by way of dissecting the plain and spreading execessive sand over it.

Drainage

Punjab is drained by the Ravi, Beas, Satluj and Ghaggar rivers. The first three, i.e. Ravi, Beas and Satluj are perennial since their source areas are located in glacier rich parts of the Himalayas. The Ghaggar, which flows along the southern limits of the State, is rather seasonal. River Ravi runs roughly along the international border with Pakistan for a distance of about 100 kilometres before leaving India for Pakistan. The Satluj enters Punjab near Nangal. It is joined by the Beas at Harike in Amritsar district. After running between Amritsar and Firozpur districts for a short distance, the Satluj takes a south-west turn and makes an international border between India and Pakistan for a distance of about 100 kms before entering the later country. Waters of these three master streams are being harnessed for electricity, irrigation and other purposes. The Bhakra dam across the Satluj is world famous. The Beas is being dammed at Pong, and Ravi at Thein.

Another striking feature of the Punjab's drainage is the presence of numerous, closely spaced seasonal streams (locally known as chos) with inland drainage. These chos orginate in the Siwalik hills, traverse through the foothill plain, and mostly finish themselves without merging into any perennial stream.

Climate

Due to its sub-tropical and interior position, Punjab is characterised by a continental semi-arid to sub-humid climate. June is the hottest month, with day time temperatures often exceeding 40°C. January is the coldest, with night time temperatures approaching the freezing point at occasions. The mean daily temperature is about 35°C during June and 10°C during January. Thus, range of annual temperature is as much as 25°C. The diurnal range of temperature varies between 8°C to 17°C in a year. It is maximum in November, when days are warm and nights cold; and minimum in August, when days are hot and humid, and nights warm and muggy.

Rainfall varies from more than 125 cms. in the northeast to only 35 cms. in the southwest. The amount of rainfall decreases in direct proportion to distance from the Siwalik Hills. Nearly three fourths of the annual rainfall is received from summer monsoons during July to September. Winter rainfall from the western cyclones makes nearly 15 per cent of the annual rainfall.

THE PEOPLE

Distribution of Population

The population of Punjab as per 1971 Census stands at 13,551,060, including 7,266,515 males and 6,284,545 females. This makes 2·5 per cent of the country's population on 1.5 per cent of its area. This signifies that Punjab, with 269 persons per Km^2., is more densely populated than India*(density 178) as a whole. This is attributed to rich agricultural productivity and relatively higher degree of industrial-urban development of the State.

Among the various districts of the Punjab, Firozpur is the most populous district. It has a population of 1,905,833 making one-seventh of the State's population. Other districts in order of size of population are: Amritsar (1,835,500), Jullundur (1,454,501), Ludhiana (1,419,421), Bhatinda (1,318,134), Gurdaspur (1,229,249) Patiala (1,215,100), Sangrur (1,146,650), Hoshiarpur (1,052,153), Ropar (545,005) and Kapurthala (429,514).

The population of 5 districts is above the State average and of 6 below the State average. Seven out of the 11 districts in the State fall within the 20 per cent range of the State average which account for over 60 per cent of the State's population. However, the density of population per km^2. is the highest in Jullundur district (428), followed by Ludhiana (368) and Amritsar (361). Since the economy of the state is primarily agricultural, the regional variations in population density are closely related to patterns of agricultural productivity. That is why, the upland plains in the Punjab are marked by higher population densities than the flood plains or the foothill zone or the Siwalik Hills. Likewise, irrigated parts of the state display thicker concentrations of population than the non-irrigated ones. In addition, population density is strongly correlated with the spatial patterns of urbanization and industrialization.

Out of the total population of 13,551,060, 10,334,881 (76.27%) live in the countryside and the remaining 3,216,179 (23·73%) in towns. Thus, Punjab is comparatively more urbanized than India as a whole where about 20 per cent of population is urban. Within the State, the belts along Amritsar—Delhi and Firozpur—Delhi railway lines are more urbanized than other areas. Three biggest urban places of Punjab, namely Amritsar Jullundur and Ludhiana are situated on Amritsar—Delhi rail route.

Growth of Population

The State registered the highest ever growth rate of 21.70 per cent during the decade 1961—71, notwithstanding some loss in net migration. This added 2.4 million people to the 1961 population of the State. This phenomenon is attributed to a high birth rate of around 27.36 per thousand and a low death rate of nearly 7.48 per thousand. The growth rate of State's population was, however, lower than that of the nation (24.80%) due to excess of out-migration over in-migration. It is rather intriguing as to why Punjab, with the highest per capita income in the country, should have suffered loss in the process of migration. In fact, Punjabis have been migrating to other parts of India and even to other countries in search of better economic opportunities. This speaks of dynamic and enterprising nature of the Punjab is who are always keen to improve the standard of their living.

Among the various districts, Ludhiana experienced the highest growth rate. Other districts which experienced growth rates higher than the State average include

*While working out the density the area and population of Jammu & Kashmir have been excluded as comparable data are not available.

Patiala, Gurdaspur, Kapurthala and Bhatinda. On the other hand, Ropar district experienced the lowest growth rate.

Sex Ratio

Punjab recorded a sex ratio of 865 females per thousand males at the 1971 Census. As such, the State suffers from a deficiency of 135 females per thousand males. This is due partly to excess of male over female births and partly to higher rate of mortality among females.

The statement below shows sex ratio by major states and union territories in the country:

The State's sex ratio is, in fact, the lowest for any state in India. It is significantly less than that of country as a whole (930). However, unlike the position obtaining for the country, the sex ratio in the State has been consistently increasing over the past few decades as a result of larger number of males among out-migrants.

The statement below shows sex ratio by districts in the State :

*Includes Mizo District, now Constituted as Union Territory of 'Mizoram'.

Of the various districts of the State, sex ratio is comparatively the highest in Hoshiarpur district (899) and the lower in Sangrur (840). Broadly speaking, sex ratios are higher in the north Punjab than in its southern counterpart. This conforms to migrational patterns of the two areas. While the former has been generally experiencing out-migration, the later witnessed sizable in-migration in the post-Independence era.

Literacy

Any person able to read and write with understanding in any language is recorded as literate by the Indian Census. The 1971 Census figures reveal that 33.67 per cent of State's population is literate and with this percentage the State occupies the fifth place among the states of India in the ranking order of literacy (Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra and Gujarat are above Punjab). It signifies that Punjab is one of the more literate states of India, which recorded a literacy rate of 29.45 per cent. Moreover, while about one person out of every four was literate in 1961, the proportion of literate persons increased to one in every three in 1971.

Literacy rates of the two sexes differ sharply. Only 25.90 per cent of females as against 40.38 per cent of males are able to both read and write. The corresponding figures for the two in 1961 were 17.41 and 34.70 per cent, respectively. It means sex-wise differential in literacy has narrowed somewhat. Rural—Urban differential in literacy is also wide. There are only 27.81 per cent literates in rural areas as against 52.49 per cent in urban areas. This differential has also been reduced during 1961—71. In 1961, 20.42 per cent of rural population was literate while urban literacy rate stood at 47.82 per cent.

The literacy rates of various districts in the State differ widely. Ludhiana, with 42.63 per cent of its population as literate is at the top while Bhatinda, with a literacy rate of only 23.60 is at the bottom. Broadly speaking, the literacy rates of districts falling in erstwhile Pepsu are, lower than those of rest of the Punjab.

Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes

For evolving suitable plans for socio-economic uplift of the scheduled castes, the government must have necessary data about them and for this, Census is the vehicle and main source. One of the highlights of the 1971 Census as of 1961 Census also, was the collection of detailed information on the socio-economic characteristics of scheduled castes. At the 1971 Census, scheduled castes in the Punjab numbered 3,348,217, including 1,803,558 males and 1,544,659 females. They constituted 24.71 per cent of the total population of the State against 14.60 per cent of the total population at the national level. At the 1961 Census, scheduled castes formed 22.33 per cent of the State's population. It follows that scheduled castes have been multiplying much more rapidly than the other segments of the population. They recorded a growth rate of 34.64 per cent during 1961—71 as against the growth rate of 21.70 per cent for the total population.

The distribution of Scheduled Caste population by each caste at the 1961 and 1971 Censuses is shown in the following statement :

The 'Chamars' constitute 29.31 per cent of the Scheduled Caste population in the State. 'Mazhabis' account for 28.75 per cent, 'Ad Dharmis' for 13.13 per cent and 'Balmikis' 12.01 percent. Collectively these four castes account for over 83 per cent of the scheduled caste population in the State. On the other end, the remaining 33 castes and unspecified castes account for only about 17 per cent of the Scheduled Caste population.

The Scheduled Caste population is widely distributed in Punjab. The highest incidence of scheduled caste population in terms of total population is seen in Jullundur district (32.85%), followed by Hoshiarpur (28.85%) Bhatinda (26.90%), Kapurthala (24.73%), Ludhiana (23.76%), Sangrur (23.66%), Amritsar (22.81%), Firozpur (22.79%), Ropar (22.61%) Gurdaspur (21.73%), and Patiala (20.90%). Of the scheduled caste population 85.30 per cent live in rural areas and the remaining 14.70 per cent in urban places. The reasons for their greater concentration in rural areas are related to the nature of their traditional occupations. They are engaged largely in agricultural labour, manual services and household industries, and all of these activities are rural in character. With growing urbanization and industrialization, however, a large number of scheduled caste persons are getting jobs in towns, thus generating rural—urban migration, as typical of other population also.

Religion

Punjab is the only Sikh majority State in India. The Sikhs constitute 60.22 per cent of its total population and are the 4th largest religious group in the country. Hindus, making 37.54 per cent of total population occupy the second place. These two religious groups together account for about 98 per cent of the State's population. All other religious groups collectively claim barely 2 per cent of the State's population. The Sikhs are in absolute majority in 8 out of 11 districts. The highest incidence of Sikhs is in the district of Bhatinda where they comprise 76.93 per cent of the total population. Their lowest incidence is in Hoshiarpur district where they form 39.38 per cent of the total population.

Hoshiarpur, Jullundur and Gurdaspur are the three Hindu majority districts, with 59.25, 53.90 and 48.02 per cent of their population belonging to this religion, respectively. The lowest percentage (22.56) of Hindus was recorded in Bhatinda district.

It is worthy of note that the Hindus are more urban in residence than the Sikhs; while 12.14 per cent of the Sikh population was recorded as urban, the corresponding figure for Hindus was 41.97 per cent.

Buddhists and Jains constituted less than one per cent of the total population in all the districts. This is true of Muslims also, with the exception of Sangrur and Patiala districts where they constitute 5.62 and 1.12 er cent of the total population, respectively.

Among the various religious groups, Sikhs experienced the highest growth rate of 32.08 per cent during 1961-71. The Hindus recorded a slow growth rate of 8.13 per cent. In the same decade, Muslims grew by 28.52 per cent. Christians grew by 16.77 per cent. The remaining two religious groups i.e. Buddhists and Jains, witnessed a decline by —41.13 per cent and —0.58 per cent, respectively.

Working Population

It was felt that the concept of worker at the 1961 Census tended to inflate workers as persons who were basically non-workers like house-wives, students etc. were included in the category of workers even though their participation was very marginal. While the reference period of one week was all right for regular work, what essential was that every person should be basically classified according to his/her main activity particularly those not engaged in regular work.

At the 1971 Census all persons have been categorized into 'Workers' and 'Non-workers' on the basis of their main activity. A 'worker' for the purpose of Census is one whose main activity is participation in any economically productive work by his physical or mental activity. Work involves not only actual work but effective supervision and direction of work also.

In case of regular work in trade, profession, service or business, the basis for work is satisfied if the person was employed one week prior to the date of enumeration. Persons temporarily incapacitated from work at the time of census enumeration due to illness, travel, holiday, temporary break-down, strike, etc., were treated as workers. The person who had been offered work but had not actually joined his duty was treated as 'non-worker'.

In the case of seasonal work like cultivation, livestock keeping, plantation work, some types of household Industry, etc., a person's main activity was ascertained with reference to such work in the last one year if he was not active in the week prior to enumeration.

A man or woman who is engaged primarily in household duties such as cooking for own household or performing one's own household duties or a boy or a girl who is primarily a student attending institution, even if such a person helps the family in economic activity but not as a full—time worker was not treated as a 'worker' for the main activity. But if they were also engaged in some economic activity, obviously not to the same extent as full-time workers, that activity was ascertained under the head of secondary work. On the other hand if a person is primarily engaged in some economic activity but at the same time also attends to some household chores or attends a night school etc., he or she was treated basically as a 'worker'.

A person who merely receives an income such as a rent receiver or a pensioner, who does not have to work for receiving the income, was not treated as a 'worker' unless the person was engaged in some economic activity and that activity was returned as the main activity of the individual.

A public or social service worker who is actually engaged in public service activity or political activity was taken as a 'worker'. Thus all workers in any branch of productive work were netted as workers.

According to 1971 Census data, 28·9 per cent of State's population was classified as 'workers' and the remaining 71·1 per cent as 'non-workers'. [At the all-India level workers account for 32·9 per cent and non-workers for 67·1 per cent.] Thus, the work participation rate, which stood at 31·1 per cent in Punjab as per data collected at the 1961 Census, declined somewhat. This fall is due mainly to the conceptual changes in the definition of 'worker' at the 1971 Census. Due to the strict application of the new definition, many of the part-time workers, such as females working occasoinally in the fields, were put in the category of non-workers unlike at the 1961 Census. This explains why the fall is reflected mainly in the case of female workers. The female participation rate returned at the 1971 Census is as low as 1·2 per cent compared to 5·5 per cent in 1961. The male participation rates returned at the two censuses stand at 52·8 per cent and 53·0 per cent respectively. As against these rates, at the all-India level, male work participation rate was 52·5 per cent and female work participation rate was 11·9 per cent in 1971. It may also be mentioned that work participation rate of females in urban areas of the Punjab was better than that in the rural areas in 1971 : urban areas 2·7 per cent and rural areas 0·7 per cent. Thus, earning of bread is virtually the exclusive male responsibility in Punjab, as in some other areas in India.

Census classifies the workers into the following nine industrial categories :

(i) Cultivators
(ii) Agricultural labourers
(iii) Livestock, forestry, fishing, hunting and plantations, orchards and allied activities.
(iv) Mining and quarrying
(v) Manufacturing, processing, servicing and repairs
  (a) Household Industry
  (b) Other than household Industry
(vi) Construction
(vii) Trade and Commerce
(viii) Transport, Storage and Communications
(ix) Other services

Cultivators and agricultural labourers together constituted 62·7 percent of the total working population at the 1971 Census. The remaining in order of industrial category were : category (iii) 0·9 percent ; category (iv) negligible; category v (a) 3·2 percent, v (b) 8·1 percent; category (vi) 2·0 percent; category (vii) 8·2 percent ; category (viii) 2.8 percent and category (ix) 12·1 percent. It means that out of every 8 workers in Punjab, five are in agriculture, one in household industries and manufacturing, one in general services and the remaining one in all other activities. It is also evident that while the primary sector of Punjab, working force is the largest, its tertiary sector is more developed than the secondary sector. This situation is not a happy one since it is conducive to unemployment conditions. There is a need to enlarge the secondary sector of the working force.

As expected, the occupational structure of working force in different districts of the Punjab is not uniform. While in Ludhiana and Jullundur districts nearly half of the workers are outside agriculture, in Bhatinda district the proportion of non- agricultural workers is less than one fourth of total workers. The percentage of non-agricultural workers in different districts is directly related to the degree of their urban development.

Nature and Status of Urban Centres

As already mentioned, there were 12,888 villages (including 700 uninhabited ones), and 108 urban centres in the State at the time of the 1971 Census. Traditionally census has collected data separately for rural and urban areas, and the basic unit for the two is a 'village' and a 'town' respectively. A 'village' or a revenue mauza is defined as an area :

(a) for which a separate record of rights is maintained ; or
(b) which has been separately assessed to land revenue, or would have been so assessed if the land revenue had not been released, compounded or redeemed ; or
(c) which the State government may by general rule or special orders declare to be an estate.

On the other hand, urban settlements include all places with—

(a) a municipality, corporation or cantonement or a notified town areas ;
(b) all other places which satisfy the following criteria :—
  (i) a minimum population of 5,000.
  (ii) at least 75 percent of the male working population was non-agricultural; and
  (iii) a density of population of at least 400 persons per km^2 (1,000 persons per sq. mile).

Besides, the Director of Census Operations, in consultation with the State Government, is empowered with some discretion in respect of marginal cases to include some places as towns that had other distinct characteristics and to exclude undeserving ones.

The number of towns in Punjab decreased just from 109 in 1961 to 108 in 1971 Census. Three places namely Narot Jaimal Singh (Gurdaspur Districts), Payal (Ludhiana district) and Dhilwan (Kapurthala district), which were towns at the 1961 census were declassified at the 1971 Census in consultation with Deputy Commissioners of their respective districts. On the other hand, Talwara Township (Hoshiarpur district) and Goraya (Jullundur district) were declared as new towns. The former gained this status by virtue of its municipal committee, while the latter qualified the census criteria prescribed for a town even though it is not administered by a municipal committee. The size of towns differs strikingly, and the number of towns falling in each size class is as follows:

TABLE

Size class	Population	No. of urban centres
I	More than 100,000	4
II	50,000—99,999	8
III	20,000—49,999	22
IV	10,000—19,999	33
V	5,000—9,999	30
VI	Less than 5,000	11

The table shows that in Punjab there are four cities — Amritsar, Ludhiana, Jullundur and Patiala each with a population of more than 100,000. However, about 70 per cent of the towns in the state are smaller than 20,000 in population. The proportion of towns in 20,000 to 49,999 and 50,000 to 99,999 size groups is slightly more than one-fourth of the total.

A new concept adopted at the 1971 Census was that of an 'urban agglomeration' which is defined as a contiguous urban spread, constituting a town and its adjoining urban outgrowths, or two or more physically contiguous towns connected by well recognised urban growths, if any, of such towns, This term 'urban agglomeration' is in fact, replacement of the concept of 'town group' used at the time of the 1961 Census. The term 'town group' was not wholly satisfactory since it sometimes lumped together urban units which were otherwise separated by rural or uninhabited land. The term 'urban agglomeration' was found to be more purposeful since it does not ignore the intervening tract between urban centres forming an agglomeration.

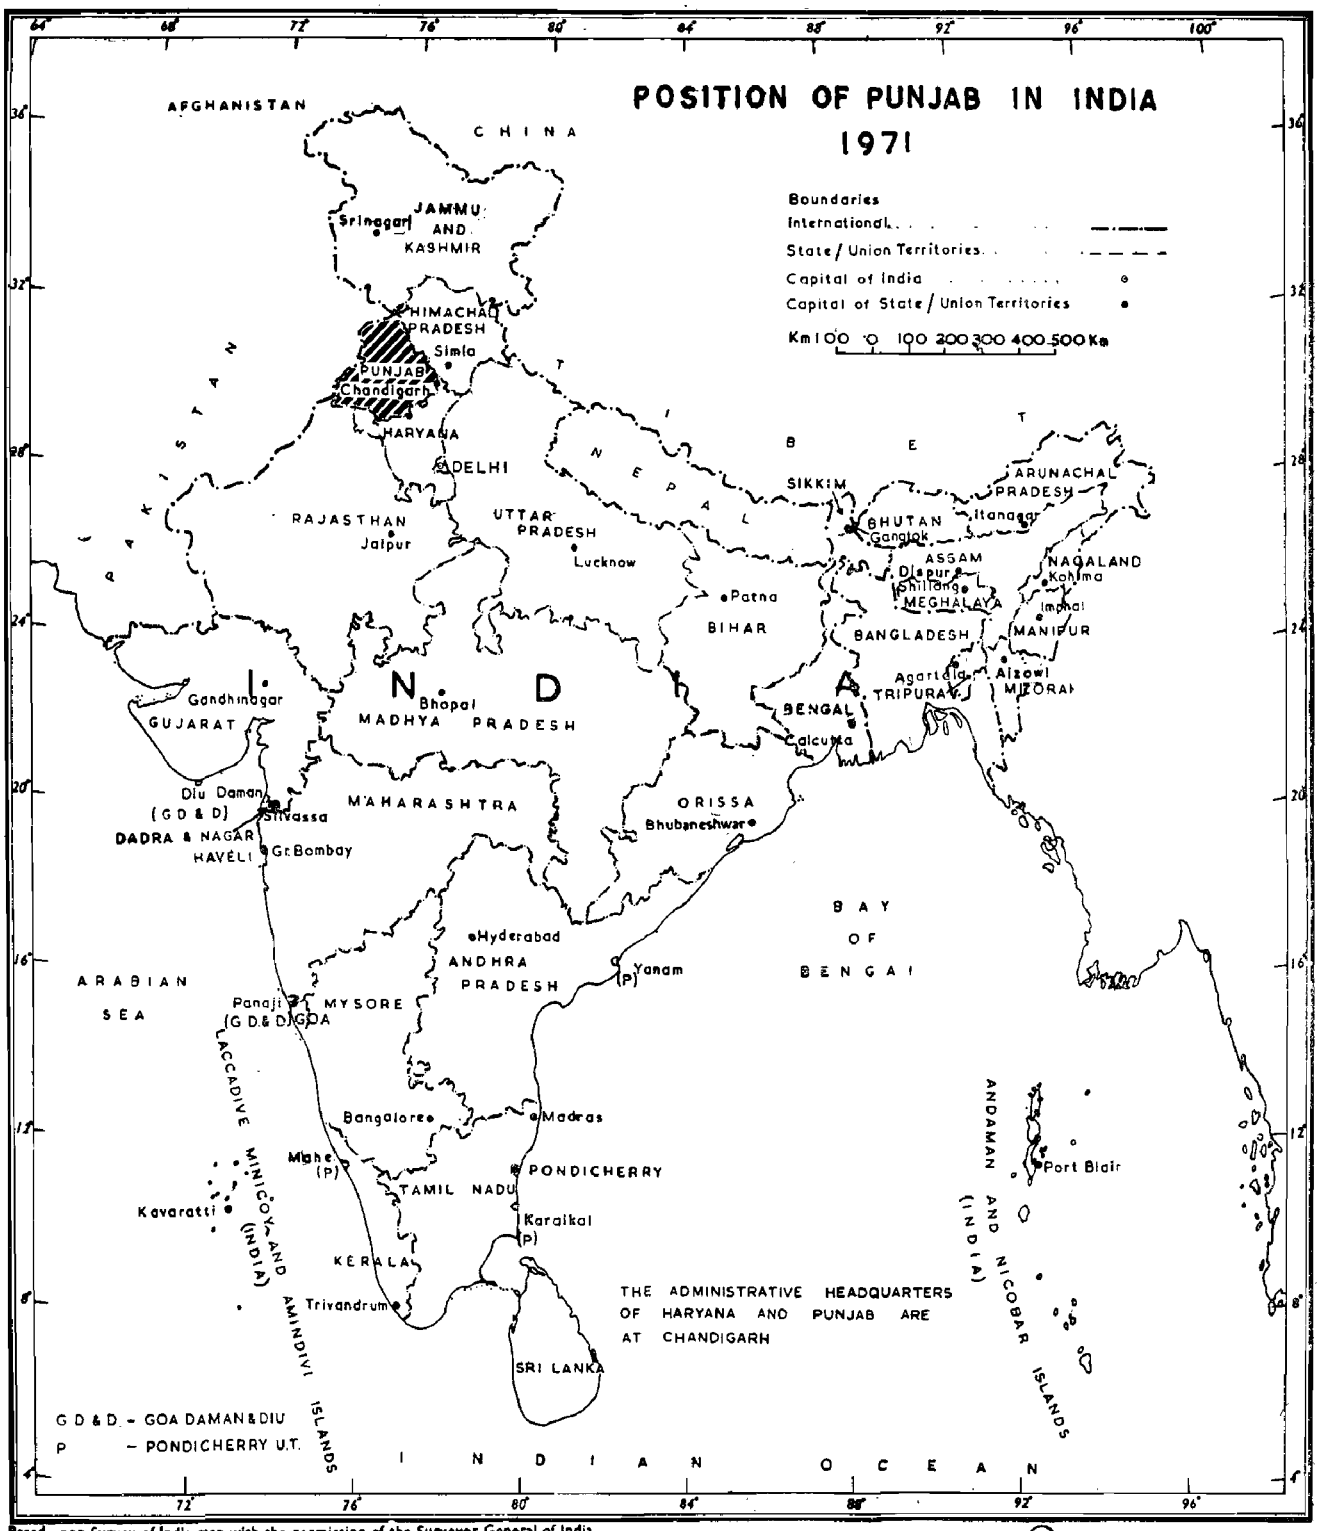

The urban agglomeration area is subject to change from census to census, depending on the spread of boundaries of the statutory core urban unit and the contiguous urban outgrowths. To accommodate such changes, a broad based notion of 'Standrad Urban Area' was adopted at the 1971 Census. A 'Standard Urban Area' has been defined "as the projected growth area of a city or town as it would be in 1991, taking into account not only the towns and villages which would get merged into it but also the "intervening areas which are officially urban." In case of a Standrad Urban Area, it is necessary that (i) it should have a core town of a minimum population size of 50,000;

(ii) the contiguous areas made up of other urban as well as rural administrative units should have close mutual socio-economic links with the core town; and

(iii) the probabilities were that this entire area will get fully urbanized in a period of 2 or 3 decades.

As per 1971 Census, there are 37 'urban agglomerations' and 12 'Standard Urban Areas' in the Punjab. The 'Standard Urban Areas' include Amritsar, Bhatinda', Abohar, Firozpur, Moga, Batala, Pathankot, Hoshiapur, Jullundur, Phagwara, Ludhiana and Patiala. By coincidence, seven out of these twelve places are district headquarters and the remaining but for Abohar are tahsil headquarters.
