FOREWORD

The Indian Census has produced some of the richest literature about the people of the country. Apart from giving detailed demographic statistics over time, the census reports gave a very authentic picture of the economy and cultural life of the variegated peoples of this country. Unfortunately it has been found difficult to secure all the census publications from their inception in any single library. The need for a comprehensive bibliography of census publications has been felt for a long time. The first modern census on all India scale took place hundred years ago in 1872. Prior to that a few local censuses had taken place in the different parts of the country. The records of such censuses go back to the early 18th century, but it has become extremely difficult to know what is the exact number of census publications till today. The main reason for the same is that, till the 1961 Census, there was no permanent census organisation in the country. It came into existence at the time of each census and discontinued after the census reports were prepared. On the eve of 1961 Census, my predecessor Shri A. Mitra took the initiative to get a bibliography of census publications compiled. The task was entrusted to the National Library, Calcutta. Later on, it was taken over by the Social Studies Division of the Office of the Registrar General, India.

I am glad that the bibliography is now ready to be brought out on the occasion of Census Centenary in India. The credit for this compilation mainly goes to Shri G.G. Jadhav, Research Officer, Social Studies Division. He was assisted by Sarvashri Charan Singh and Anand Prakash. Dr. B.K. Roy Burman, Deputy Registrar General (Social Studies) provided the frame for the compilation and took technical decisions, as and when they arose, in the course of the compilation. Earlier in 1965, a tentative compilation was circulated among various institutions and scholars. In several States the Directors of Census Operations also took keen interest in this compilation and made personal contacts with the local scholars. This bibliography is, therefore, truly the outcome of a co-operative effort. Even then it is difficult to say whether it has covered all the census publications; but it can be claimed that it is perhaps the most exhaustive one. I am beholden to all the scholars and institutions who have helped us in the preparation of this bibliography with their suggestions and comments. Also my thanks are due to all my colleagues who have been associated with this project.

A. CHANDRA SEKHAR
Registrar General, India.

PREFACE

The Census in India is a great paradox. It is hundred years ago that the first census on the scale of the entire country had taken place. After that, like flood in the Ganga, each decennial census has brought in its wake scores of reports and publications which have made indelible impression on the social, political and intellectual life of the country. But there was no satisfactory arrangement to ensure the continuity of records in respect of them. Till the 1950's there was no permanent census organisation in the country. It came into existence on the eve of each census and discontinued after the census. Hence a complete record of all the census reports and publications was nowhere available.

On the eve of the 1961 Census, Shri A. Mitra, the then Registrar General, India, took the initiative to get a complete list of census publications compiled. At his instance the National Library set up a cell to prepare a bibliography of census publications, but due to various reasons, it was not possible to make substantial progress. In the meantime the Social Studies Division in the Office of the Registrar General, India, came into existence in 1961. It took up a comprehensive bibliography project covering the following aspects :

(i) Bibliography of Census Publications in India;
(ii) Bibliography of Social Studies in India;
(iii) Bibliography on Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes ;
(iv) Bibliography on Traditional Crafts;
(v) Bibliography on Small-scale and Cottage Industries;
(vi) Bibliography of Urban Studies; and
(vii) Bibliography of the Publications in Tribal Languages.

On each of these aspects, a separate bibliography has already been published. In 1965, the preliminary compilation of the bibliography of census publications was made. It was circulated among various scholars and institutions in India and outside with request to bring the gaps to our notice. After that a number of fresh references were received from various sources. All these have been incorporated in the revised compilation. Besides, check lists of the publications available in the libraries of the Registrar General, India and National Archives and National Library have been prepared. The same have been indicated against the titles of the different publications.

In preparing this compilation we received full cooperation and help from the National Library, National Archives, India Office Library, London and a large number of other institutions and scholars.

In several States the Directors of Census Operations had taken the initiative to consult the scholars in their respective areas and find out the gaps, if any.

In the present compilation, the census publications belonging to first integrated census on the country level in 1872 to the census in 1961 have been covered. The census reports of provincial level, prior to 1872 have also been included in the compilation. A list of pre-census estimates and counts of the 18th century and early 19th century has been furnished in Appendix I. The list of 1961 Census publications covers those which have come out in print by 31st December 1971.

The main responsibility for carrying out this project has been borne by Shri C.G. Jadhav, Research Officer, Social Studies Division, Office of the Registrar General, India. He has been assisted by Shri Charan Singh, now Tabulation Officer in the Office of the Director of Census Operations, Punjab. Shri Anand Prakash, Senior Technical Assistant, (Library) was also associated with the project. He mainly assisted in checking the titles and incorporating the fresh suggestions received from various sources.

I am grateful to the various institutions and scholars who have cooperated in making the compilation as complete as possible. Even now it is difficult to say that no census publication has been left out. I would also like to avail of this opportunity to thank all my colleagues who have been associated with this project.

On behalf of the students of the Indian society, I would like to express my gratefulness to Shri A. Mitra, the then Registrar General, India (1961) for the imaginative initiative he had taken for sponsoring various types of investigations and compilations under the aegis of the census organisation. I am also grateful to Shri A. Chandra Sekhar, the Registrar General, India (1971) for further expanding the scope of social enquiries under the sponsorship of the census.
