VILLAGE DIRECTORY

OF

VILLAGE DIRECTORY

The Village Directory which gives the Primary Census data in respect of each inhabited village according to the Census of 1961, shows the area in acres, number of occupied residential houses and households, total number of persons enumerated including inmates of institutions and houseless persons, population of Scheduled Castes and of Scheduled Tribes, number of literate and educated persons and the total number of workers and non-workers. In addition to these Census data, information regarding some amenities available in each village like educational institutions, medical facilities, postal and telegraphic facilities, protected drinking water supply, rural electrification and road communications are indicated in abbreviations after the name of each village. This information was obtained from different Departments of the State Government and Director of Posts and Telegraphs, Orissa Circle.

2. The inhabited villages in each police station are serially arranged and numbered. The names of uninhabited villages are also listed separately with serial number and shown at the end of each police station.

3. Relevant extract from the Primary Census Abstract showing the summary figures for the district is given at the commencement of the Table. The summary figures for each subdivision are also furnished at the beginning of each subdivision and similar figures for each police station precede the village directory of the respective police station.

4. Area—The area figures supplied by the local revenue authorities are adopted in column 3. They are shown in acres for each inhabited village. For other units like town, police station, subdivision, and the district, they are shown in square miles.

5. Definitions—Terms appearing in the column headings are defined as follows :

(i) House—A house means a 'Census House', that is to say, a structure or part of a structure inhabited or vacant, or a dwelling, a shop, a shop-cum-dwelling or a place of business, workshop, school, etc., with a separate main entrance.

(ii) Occupied Residential House—An occupied residential house is a Census House which is partly or wholly used for purpose of residence at the time of Census enumeration.

(iii) Household—A household means the entire group of persons who commonly live together and take their meals from a common mess unless the exigencies of work prevented any of them from doing so.

(iv) Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe—A person is said to belong to a Scheduled Caste, if he belongs to any one of the castes specified in the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Order (Amendment) Act, 1956. A person is said to belong to a Scheduled Tribe, if he belongs to any one of the tribes specified in the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Order (Amendment) Act, 1956.

(v) Literate and Educated Persons—A person is said to be literate if he can read and write a simple letter. An educated person is one who has passed a written examination of a recognized educational standard.

The industry should not be run on the scale of a registered factory. Thus the main criterion for a Household Industry is the participation of one or more members of a household in Rural areas. In the Urban areas the industry should be confined to the house. It should relate to production, processing, servicing, repairing and making and selling of goods. It does not include professions, such as, pleader or doctor or barber or washerman or astrologer.

CHAPTER VI

Change in Government

Upon the retirement of Mr. E. Cotsford it was determined to alter the form of management of the Ganjam district, and Mr. Charles Smith was appointed Chief at Ganjam with a Council to assist him in the administration of affairs. Mr. Smith took charge on the 22nd February 1774, and the following appointments were made :—

Mr. Holland, Warehouse-keeper, Paymaster and Accountant,
Mr. Dynely, Store-keeper, and Mr. Hudleston, Secretary,
whilst Mr. Maunsell, from whom Mr. Smith took charge, became second in Council.

Employment of troops

There had been no military operations in Ganjam since 1772, but in 1774, 1775 and 1776 disturbances broke out once more. The Zemindars of Chikati, Surada and Bodogoda had all been remiss in their payments of tribute, and the troops were employed in the usual manner to demand payment at their gates. Murders and disturbances, together with the usual attendant consequences of military expeditions and assignments of villages to the Company, appear to have been constant throughout the period of Mr. Smith's tenure of office as Chief.

In June 1775 the Raja of Surada was murdered by his brothers at the instigation of Vikrama Bhanj, the Raja of Goomsur, and English troops were sent from Aska to occupy the fort at Surada and secure the revenue of the country. In Mohiri the Raja's mother murdered the Patro in 1776, and in the same year Jagannath Deo, upon the death of his father Bhima Deo, made his first attempt to gain his share of his patrimony.

These incidents were varied by quarrels between the Council at Ganjam and the Commanding Officer, Captain Lysaght, at Aska, and the latter was at last removed from the command for beating the Company's renter, Cursojee Lallah.

Owing to the non-payment of tribute, there were assignments of villages in Chikati, Dharakot, Kallikote, Pratapagiri and Bodogoda, and wherever there was an assignment it was usual to send thither a Tahsildar to collect the revenue on behalf of the Company. The Company's troops were constantly employed either in demanding the tributes of the Zemindars, who but rarely paid without either complusion or threats, or in quelling disturbances and calling the murderers of the Company's Tahsildars to account. When a Zemindar was refractory the troops were quartered upon him, and he was made to pay for their keep.

Appointment of Residents and Renter

In September 1777 Mr. Smith was recalled, and Mr. Maunsell became provisional Chief and continued in office as such until 1778. In May 1778 Mr. Morgan Williams was appointed Chief in Council, and in 1779 the Council at Ganjam was abolished, and Mr. Morgan Williams was appointed to be Resident with the well known Mr. Snodgrass as his Assistant.

On the 25th September 1779 the Ichapur district was rented to Balakrishna Naidu, formerly the Company's dubash, for a period of 10 years, and the Zemindars instead of paying their tributes as heretofore to the Resident or Chief in Council, were ordered to pay their tributes through the renter into the Company's treasury. The Council at Ganjam respectfully protested against a change in the system of renting the country, that virtually withdrew all the power from their hands, but apparently without effect.

Balakrishna soon found himself quite unable to cope with the difficulties of his position although assisted by the Company's troops, and upon falling irretrievably in arrears with all his payments, and giving great dissatisfaction to all the district Zemindars, his own cowle was finally revoked in October 1781 by an order from the Court of Directors at home.

Death of Goomsur Zemindar

Kissun Bhanj of Goomsur had died in 1773, and his son, Vikrama Bhanj, who succeeded him, never paid a rupee of tribute between the date of his death and 1778. During Mr. Cotsford's time the tribute of the Zemindari was only 30,000 Rupees, but previous to the confirmation of his second son, Vikrama Bhanj, this amount had been raised by the Company to 50,000 Rupees. A provision of nine jaghire villages was at the same time stipulated for on behalf of Lachmana Bhanj, the elder son; but Vikrama Bhanj obstinately refused to grant to his brother a Sanad for this jaghire, and the jaghire villages became a source of constant dispute for several years. Vikrama Bhanj's contumacy with regard to his brother's subsistence, and his obstinate withholding of the tributes due, at length compelled the Company, after several years of patient forbearance, to send troops into Goomsur for the final reduction of the country.

Encounters of Vikrama Bhanj with troops

Accordingly in 1778 the troops stationed at Aska overran the whole of the Goomsur country, which was the only one that had not been effectually reduced by Mr. Cotsford. Vishnuchakram and other strongholds were occupied by the troops, and the Zemindar was compelled to take refuge in Mahratta territory. During the whole of 1778 and 1779 the troops from Aska remained posted in the Goomsur Zemindari, when Mr. Oakes appears to have had charge of the administration. Vikrama Bhanj however still continued at large, and was able to foment disturbances by means of his adherents. The crops were destroyed by the paiks, and the Raja's menaces and cruelties frightened away the country people. The Company's troops meanwhile suffered greatly from sickness and Vikrama Bhanj taking advantage of their reduced numbers, began cutting off small detached bodies and murdering the sepoys. The post at Vishnuchakram fell into the enemy's hands, and Vikrama Bhanj cruelly tied up and murdered 23 of the Company's sepoys, after they had surrendered themselves.

These daring atrocities naturally led to renewed expenditions and reprisals against the enemy. In a secret attack made by the Company's troops upon Kallada, Vikrama Bhanj only escaped capture by a singular incident. As the Hircarrah who was leading the way for the Company's troops to follow, had just passed the Guma or fort, he was suddenly seized by a tiger, and the Company's sepoys firing to make the brute quit his hold, gave the alarm, and put an end to all hopes of a successful surprise. A considerable number of paiks perished however on this occasion from the fire of the sepoys. A second attempt to surprise the Raja was somewhat more successful, but the Raja although wounded in the thigh and elsewhere by musket shots still managed to make his escape.

Succession of Srikara Bhanj

Being hard pressed, however, Vikrama Bhanj shortly afterwards took refuge with Sitaram Raz of Vizianagram, and borrowing money from him, he proceeded to Madras in 1779. By means of the most scandalous falsehoods and misrepresentations, he succeeded in persuading the Madras Council to reinstate him in the Zemindari, and Lachmana Bhanj who had meanwhile been put in as a Zemindar, was once more turned adrift by Government to make room for Vikrama Bhanj, who, in attempting to return to the district, was seized by Sitaram Raz and detained at Tekkali for debt. At the request of the Resident, however, he was released and returned to Goomsur to dispossess his brother. The disturbances, however, still continued and when Mr. Stone became Chief in 1782, it became the duty of the Council to decide, which of the two brothers should be finally put in as Zemindar of Goomsur. Lachmana Bhanj was the one upon whom their choice unanimously fell, as they had no confidence in his brother. The Zemindari was in an impoverished state from constant disturbances and Lachmana Bhanj agreed to pay a lakh of Rupees yearly to the Company, as one of the conditions on which he was to hold the country. The inhabitants had, however, fled to other parts where their property was more secure, and Lachmana Bhanj was unable to meet his engagements, and seems to have died in 1788. He was succeeded by his son Srikara Bhanj, who afterwards gave the Company a great deal of trouble.

Approach of Mahratta army

On the 21st March 1780 Mr. John Turing succeeded Mr. Morgan Williams as Resident, and the latter was recalled. In June the unwelcome news reached the Ganjam Settlement, that the Mahratta army had arrived at Cuttack from Nagpore, and that they were concentrating their forces, amounting to 25,000 men, at Cuttack, whilst the fort at Ganjam was still in an incomplete state in spite of occasional repairs.

There was only one battalion in the district, besides the Sibbandy corps raised by Mr. Cotsford, which was employed under the renter, Balakrishna Naidu. The Mahratta army at Cuttack was commanded by Chinnaji Babu alias Jannoji Babu,the second son of the Mahratta Chief at Nagpore, and as an English army under Captain Goddard was acting at that time against the Mahratta Peishwah at Poonah, the Reisident lost no time in communicating his fears of an invasion to the Madras Council, and set about putting the fort at Ganjam into a better state of defence.

Apprehension of invasion

Captain Bruce, who commanded the troops at Aska, was at the same time directed to reconnoitre all the passes leading from Ganjam into the Mahratta country, with as much privacy as possible, and to report his opinion as to the best way in which the country might be defended in case of an invasion. Accordingly in his letter, dated the 29th June 1780, Captain Bruce describes fully all the different passes leading into the Ichapur country, and says, that, if the Mahrattas attempt to enter the country, they will do so either "by the way of Champnegar, or Manickapatam, or very likely by both". He proceeds to state : "a small force, not able to face them in the field, has no other hopes of protecting the country, than by seizing the pass of Champnegar and establishing a strong pass at Maloude," which pass Captain Bruce describes as follows :—

"The pass of Champnegar leads from the Bowanapur (Banopur Zemindari) country into the upper part of the Kallikote Zemindary. It is about one koss through; the road pretty good for carriages, the jungle not excessively close. It is fortified with a Tatt and *Goomah at the village of Champnegar. The Bowanapur (Banopur) country being quite open up to this pass, as is the Kallikote on this one side of it, and the Mahrattas in possession of it, makes this pass the most favourable for them, should they attempt to disturb the tranquility of this district."

Mahratta Commander's friendly note

The apprehended invasion however never took place and in July, 1780, one Sheikh Mahomed Kamul, the Commander of the fort at Manickapatam, not far from the frontier of Ganjam, was sent by Jannoji, the Mahratta Chieftain at Cuttack, with a message assuring the Resident that it was not the intension of Raja Modoji Bonslu of Nagpore "to break the friendship that had subsisted so many years between the English and the Nagpore Government, that it was their interest to keep on friendly terms with the English, but being in a certain degree subject to the Peishwah at Poonah, they had been in some measure obliged to send out this army from Nagpore, and that we might judge of their disposition by their having been seven months on a march that they might have performed in six weeks." About the same time Warren Hastings, the Governor-General of India, wrote to Mr. Turing and informed him that, although the designs of the Mahrattas appeared uncertain, yet it would be better to meet them as friends, and so conciliate them to our Government.

*A kind of native fort.

The Resident meanwhile had, in a letter to the Madras Council, expressed a sincere wish that "the gentlemen in Bengal might be able to accommodate matters with the Nagpore Raja, and so remove any apprehension of an invasion from the army at Cuttack."

Haidar Ali's threat to siege Madras

Whilst the aspect of affairs was thus dark in Ganjam in 1780 it was still more so elsewhere in India, for Haidar Ali, the usurper of the Mysore throne, was threatening to invade the Carnatic and lay siege to Madras. The English were at the same time at war with the French and the Dutch, and there was a general combination against them throughout India to drive them out of the country. It was evident therefore that the Resident in Ganjam would not get much assistance from elsewhere. He was advised by the Council at Madras to draw together his troops as much as possible, and as these were but few in number, he experienced no difficulty in obeying these instructions. At. the same time he put the fort at Ganjam into a better state of defence than it had ever been before. The parapet was raised, the ditch that had partly silted up, re-excavated, and the fortifications were generally strengthened. All superfluous stores were removed from Aska, and two 6 pounder guns were despatched thence in boats and arrived safely at Ganjam by the river Rushikulya. The troops stationed at Aska were also ordered to be ready to move at a moment's notice. The Resident writes : "By training the coffres and lascars they are capable of working the guns; but we want a few non-commissioned officers and gunners whom I hope your honour will think proper to send to our assistance." This request, however, does not appear to have been complied with as the Presidency was itself in want of both troops and money, and soon afterwards advertised a loan for 6 lakhs at 8 per cent interest.

Mutiny at Vizagapatam

Early in October 1780, the Settlement at Ganjam was startled by the news that the 1st Circar battalion at Vizagapatam had revolted, and fired upon their officers as they were issuing forth from the Chief's house after dinner. The ostensible reason for this conduct appears to have been that they were under orders to sail from Vizagapatam for Madras, where their services were much needed, but there is reason to suppose that Gajapati Deo, the Ex-Zemindar of Parlakimedi, had a good deal to do with the matter. The mutineers after killing five or six of the officers took some of the others prisoners, and at the same time took possession of the fort. Mr. Casamajor, the Chief, also fell into their hands, but afterwards managed to escape on board a vessel in the port at Vizagapatam.

The Resident at Ganjam upon receiving information of this outbreak, at once directed Captain Bruce at Aska to march to Chicacole, take the command of the troops there, and proceed against the mutineers, who had placed themselves under Captain Brule, a prisoner for treasonable correspondence, whom they had released. News was received, however, that the mutineers had quitted Vizagapatam for Parla-Kimedi, and that the Chief had been able to resume charge of the Settlement. Captain Bruce was accordingly directed to return to Aska. The mutineers subsequently dispersed of their own accord and Gajapati Deo, who had ostensibly exerted himself to protect the English prisoners from violence, was reinstated in the Parla-Kimedi Zemindari by the Madras Government, as a reward for his somewhat doubtful services on the occasion.

Arrival of French privateers

The fears of an immediate Mahratta invasion had scarcely been allayed before a fresh enemy appeared on the Ganjam coast in the shape of French privateers. This effectually prevented the resident from sending supplies to Madras although the calls for assistance from the Presidency were both frequent and urgent. The oxen, grain and other provisions, which the Resident had been anxiously waiting for an opportunity to send to Madras, could not therefore be despatched.

The first French privateer seen off the coast was the St. Ann, carrying 18 carriage 6 pounder guns and swivel, and manned by 60 Europeans and 40 coffres. Her Commander, Monsieur Champden, (sic) sailed into the Ganjam roads under English colors, and landed two English prisoners of whom he wrote : "Their honesty makes me regret being obliged to dispossess them of what the fortune of war puts in my possession." He at the same time expressed a hope that the Resident would "render them that assistance which it is not in my power to give them." The two prisoners were Captain Orphin and Mr. Collier respectively the Master and Chief Officer of an English ship that had become the French privateer's prize. The Resident hearing that the St. Ann was not alone, at once took steps to secure the safety of the native vessels lying at Sonnapur and Baruva, and despatched thither small bodies of troops for the protection of those ports. The St. Ann did not leave the Ganjam roads in peace, for she shortly afterwards seized a sloop coming from Bengal, and belonging to the port of Sonnapur. The Tindal making a show of resistance was cut down and killed, and the owners of the goods were so frightened that they jumped overboard, and were drowned. The sloop was plundered of 10 chests of opium, a quantity of pepper and rice and a sum of one thousand rupees. She was then allowed to sail to port. At the beginning of 1781 another French privateer, the Solomon of 40 guns, commanded by Captain de Regnon, stole into the Ganjam roads late one evening, and rifled and carried away two snows that were lying at anchor. French privateers continued to intercept English vessels during the whole of 1781, and in December of that year the Chief of the Godavari district warned the Resident at Ganjam that there were no less than 48 French vessels cruising for prizes in the Bay of Bengal.

Colonel Pearse passes to Madras

In the meanwhile Haidar Ali Khan after devastating the Carnatic, was laying waste the Tanjore country, and Sir Eyre Coote was watching his movements at Cuddalore. Troops were despatched from Bengal to co-operate with Sir Eyre Coote in the south and ten battalions of sepoys, under the command of Colonel Pearse, arrived at Ganjam on the 17th March 1781. Together with camp-followers their numbers amounted to about 30,000 people. Soon after their arrival in the district sickness broke out amongst them and raged, as Colonel Pears said, "with alarming fury." Until the outbreak, which was probably cholera, had somewhat abated, the troops were placed under cover at Ichapur, where the inhabitants, much to their praise, readily gave up their habitations for the use of the sick troops. After a long and harrassing march, in which Colonel Pearse lost large numbers of his men both by sickness and desertion, he seems to have effected a junction with the main army near Madras in the month of August 1781.

Coote defeats Haidar Ali

In June 1781 a body of Mahratta cavalry (300 strong) arrived at Ganjam soon after Colonel Pearse's troops had quitted the district and the Commander, Abba Purushottama Pandit, brought a letter from Warren Hastings, the Governor-General, and gave out that a still larger body of cavalry was to follow and join Colonel Pearse's detachment on their march southwards. As they were greatly in want of money, the Resident was induced to advance them 5,000 Rupees, but upon refusing to pay over any more sums without the special sanction of Government, the Mahratta cavalry returned to Cuttack, and the proffered assistance of the Mahratta Chieftain came to nothing after all. On the 1st July 1781 Sir Eyre Coote defeated Haidar Ali at Porto Novo.

Murder of the Patro of Mohiri Zemindar

The Bengal detachment had scarcely left the district before the Resident received information that Royguru, the Patro of the Mohiri Zemindar, had been murdered at Berhampur on the 6th April 1781. The murder appears to have been instigated by Moja Deo, the Raja's brother, and connived at by Narayana Deo himself, who upon hearing of his Patro's death at once seized all his effects, and placed his family in confinement. Upon the Raja of Mohiri refusing to deliver up the murderers and even making the chief of them, one Gopi Maharta, his Patro, Mr. Turing directed Captain Bruce to proceed with his detachment and take possession of the fort at Mohiri, which was about 6 miles from Berhampore. The fort at Mohiri was accordingly occupied, but as sickness of a severe type broke out amongst the troops they were withdrawn, and the walls of the fort demolished. As the arrears of the Zemindari amounted to over 65,000 Rupees, Mr. Turing sent peons to seize the crops, and the Zemindar who had fled at the first alarm, thought fit to dismiss Gopi Maharta, and agreed to assign and make over to the Company's management the greater part of his Zemindari, including the town of Berhampur, in satisfaction of the arrears due by him.

Gopi Maharta, the murderer, however, still continued at large with his adherents, but he was eventually captured and condemned by the Resident to work in chains for life on the fortifications at Ganjam. One Cursojee Lallah became renter of Mohiri, for which he agreed to pay yearly to the Company a sum of 60,000 Rupees. On the 10th December 1782, Narayana Deo, the Zemindar of Mohiri, was himself murdered in his house at Berhampore by about 20 peons, and his two illegitimate brothers, Moja Deo and Sano Deo were generally supposed to have instigated the deed. They contrived, however, to keep out of the way, and appear even to have succeeded in securing a monthly pension for their support, upon condition that they should live in a quiet manner and refrain from disturbing the peace of the country. This, however, they both of them failed to do, and the Mohiri Zemindari became the seat of almost continuous disturbances for a period of nearly 40 years.

Abolition of Resident

On the 19th May 1782 the office of Resident was abolished and Mr. Turing was succeeded by Mr. John Maxwell Stone, who was assisted by a Council composed of Messrs. Robert Munro and Vincentio Corbett with Mr. Daniel Russel as Secretary. The Council was afterwards increased to five members. On Wednesday the 29th May 1782, it was agreed at the Council meeting that the following appointments take place :

Mr. Munro, Store-keeper and Accountant; Mr. Russel, Pay-Master and Secretary; Mr. Mierop, Assistant under the Accountant; Mr. Hare, Assistant under the Secretary and Reader of Divine Service; Messrs. Stone and Trice, Assistants under the Secretaries.

Quarrels at Council Board

In 1783 quarrels took place in the Settlement at Ganjam which continued almost without intermission until 1786. They appear to have originated at the Council Board out of jealousy of the Chief, Mr. John Maxwell Stone, on account of his retaining the immediate managment of Haveli lands in his own hands, and the other Members of the Council complained that the whole power of the Settlement was absorbed by Chengulroy, the Chief's dubash or manager.

The quarrels of the Council Board at Ganjam at length became so notorious as to call for the interference of Government. Mr. Henry Crawford was accordingly deputed to Ganjam in 1784 to investigate the complaints and counter-complaints made by the different Members, and upon receiving his report upon the subject, Government came to the conclusion 'that the disputes originated from private pique to the Chief'. They reduced the number of Members of Council from five to three, but continued in office Messrs. Munro and Russel, two of the former Member. Mr. Munro especially had been one of the Chief's principal opponents, and the change made by Government does not therefore appear to have been productive of much good, for disagreements still continued to prevail in the Ganjam Council until 1785 in which year Mr. Stone dies.

Mr. Thomas Cooper, formerly of the Council, seems to have got into trouble in 1784, but whether this was due to the active part which he took in the quarrels of the Settlement does not appear from the records. He complains to Government in August 1786 that he has been for two years under suspension without any specific charge being made against him, and bewails his hard fate, stating that after 19 years' service, he only receives 8½ Pagodas a month for his subsistence. Upon being called upon to pay a debt that he owed to the Company, he tendered to the Council 6 candies of lead at 10 Rupees per candy, an offer which the Chief and Council did not consider themselves at liberty to accept without a reference to the Presidency.

Cessation of hostilities

On the 21st July 1783 (?) the welcome news was received at Ganjam that a preliminary peace had been signed at Versailles on the 20th June 1783, which produced a cessation of hostilities between the French, Dutch, Spaniards and Americans, and the English. The proclamation notifying the fact was publicly read out to the Garrison in the fort of Ganjam.

On the 6th June 1785 Mr. Robert Maunsell, who had taken Mr. Stone's place at his death, delivered over charge of the settlement to Mr. Morgan Williams who now succeeded as Chief in Council. About the same time the Board of Revenue and a Board of Trade appear to have been established in Madras.

Revenue of the District

In 1787 the Circuit Committee, composed of Messrs. Saunders and Hugh Maxwell, arrived and commenced to investigate the revenue resources of the district. Their report, dated 25th April 1788, forms the chief data upon which the permanent settlement was afterwards effected in the Ganjam district by Mr. Peter Cherry in 1804.

Mr. Morgan Williams, in a report dated 31st December 1787, describes the revenues of the Ichapur district as on the increase, and estimates its population at 465,755 souls. The total revenue of the country, excluding the whole of the Chicacole Sub-division, is given as 6,35,252 Rupees, but the item of salt, which in 1787 produced but very little revenue, was not included in this estimate.

Trade on the decline

The trade of the district is described, however, as being on the decline, partly in consequence of a recent order prohibiting the importation of Ganjam salt into Bengal, and partly in consequence of Tanjore then commencing to supply the Madras markets with the grain that they formerly drew from Ganjam. The greatest restraint on trade, however, was the heavy duty levied on piece-goods and grain at the inland Chowks of the district, which amounted to 11 and 10 per cent respectively. The inland duties added to the export ones were therefore so heavy as to be a practical prohibition of exportation, and instead of 200 vessels being found in the ports of the district not even 20 could be found calling for freight in 1787.

On the 19th May 1790 Mr. Morgan Williams was appointed Member of the Council at Madras and left for the Presidency. He was temporarily succeeded as Chief in Council by Mr. Munro, but the days of the Council in Ganjam were numbered.

Council abolished

On the 17th November 1790 Mr.H. Crawford, who had been previously Collector of the Chicacole Division, was appointed Resident, and the Council abolished "owing to the great want of energy in the proceedings of administration there, and various inconveniences which have arisen from the present constitution of authority in that district." Messrs. Thomas Snodgrass and Edward Hare were appointed to be Assistants to the Resident.

Disturbances in the district—Famine and Rebellion

Troubles were meanwhile rife in the district, and a famine unparalleled in the history of the country was about to add its horrors to existing disturbances. So great did these appear to be that in May 1790, Mr. Munro declared that human foresight could set no limit to them.

The first disturbances broke out in Mohiri. The lease of the Mohiri estate which had been granted to Cursojee Lallah in 1781 expired in 1786, and on the 7th April 1786, the wife of the deceased Zemindar, Kruspru Periya Mahadevi by name, was formally appointed the Rani of Mohiri. Cursojee Lallah, however, still continued to manage Mohiri for her until 1789 in which year he was barbarously murdered in the fort at Ganjam. It was generally supposed throughout the country that the murder had been committed by the instigation and connivance of Sano Deo, one of the two illegitimate brothers of the late Zemindar.

Encouraged by the disturbed state of affairs, Sano Deo made his escape from Aska in 1789, and joining his brother, Moja Deo, they betook themselves to a course of outlawry, having for their fastness the Mohiri Hills, not far from Berhampore. In 1790 Mr. Nathaniel Webb, the Haveli Collector, complained that Sano Deo had plundered several Government villages near Ichapur. The troops were but few, and the Resident seems to have been almost powerless to protect the country from the troubles that desolated it.

About the same time Moni Deo, the Raja of Vijayanagar, and Jagannath Deo of Pratapagiri, the two sons of old Bhima Deo, were waging open war with each other, refusing to submit their quarrels to the Company's arbitration and impoverishing each other's estates. In 1790 Moni Deo, assisted by Sano Deo, made an irruption into the Zemindari of Pratapagiri, burning 12 villages and plundering 12 others. From 1790 to 1793 Moni Deo appears to have resisted all the Company's efforts to reduce him to submission, and in 1792 he even inflicted a check upon the troops sent against him under Captain Little. He was finally reduced in 1793 with the assistance of his brother Jagannath Deo. Both Moni Deo and Jagannath Deo, however, continued their quarrels, and in 1800 they were both in confinement in the fort at Ganjam for troubling the peace of the country.

Further to the south Sano Padsha, the brother of the Jalantra Zemindar, recently deceased, assisted by the Tarla Zemindar, had taken possession of the Zemindari to the exclusion of his brother's child who was the rightful heir. Assisted by Sano Deo, Sano Padsha carried off the minor and his mother from the fort at Jalantra to the Bodogoda hills, and kept them in confinement for no less then five years. In the meanwhile Sano Padsha enjoyed the Estate, and the Company found themselves forced to acquiesce for want of means to constrain him. It was not until 1797 that the usurper was finally driven out of the Jalantra country by an armed force sent against him by Mr. Snodgrass, the Resident, under Captains Fletcher and Spencer. Sano Padsha then took refuge in the Jeypore country, and afterwards in Parla-Kimedi.

Still further south, the Budarsingi Zemindar in revenge for some affront had invaded the Mandasa country and burnt 16 villages in May 1790. The Raja of Mandasa had retaliated in August by collecting an armed force of 300 or 400 men and sending it to surprize the Budarsingi Zemindar by dawn of day in his fort. An engagement ensued in which several lives were lost on both sides. The Budarsingi Zemindar received a wound in his arm and another in his breast, but made his escape to the neighbouring Maliahs. He appears to have abandoned the cultivation of his Zemindari lands, and for three years continued to resort to predatory excursions for subsistence.

About the same time the Surangi Zemindar was imprisoned in the fort at Ganjam for assisting Sano Deo and neglecting to pay up his arrears, whilst the efforts of Sano Deo himself to plunder and disturb the country were either alternately assisted or connived at by nearly every Zemindar in the district.

It was therefore no wonder, that, with all the troubles of famine and rebellion prevailing from one end of the district to the other, Mr. Henry Crawford, the Resident, announced to Government that he was unable to reduce the refractory Zemindars until "the situation of affairs in the Carnatic will admit of an addition to our military strength."

The famine and its effects

For three years a terrible famine desolated the land. The crops had been very scanty in 1789, and on the 7th November Mr. Crawford issued a proclamation suspending all import and transport duties on grain and other edibles in the Company's Haveli lands. The famine does not seem to have extended much to the north of Ganjam, and at Puri the people lived in the midst of plenty. In the Ichapur and Chicacole countries, however, the people died in thousands. The exportation of grain was forbidden from the sea-ports, and a guard of sepoys was stationed at Kanchili to prevent exportations to the south. Government seem to have done their best to mitigate the horrors of famine, but were powerless to control the evil in an efficient manner. In the Chicacole division, Mr. Keating, the Collector, calculated that an average of 3,000 poor people had daily subsisted on the Company's bounty for a period of two years. The importation of paddy for the relief of the people was ordered by the Board of Revenue, and we find from the Chicacole records that in June 1792, 10,519 bags of rice were dispatched from Calingapatam to Mr. Snodgrass, the Resident at Ganjam. Large quantities of rice also appear to have been imported from Cuttack via the Chilka lake, of which the utility has always been conspicuous in times of famine.

The country was plunged in a state of misery and desolation truly deplorable. Whole tracts were depopulated, and people were not forthcoming to cultivate the lands. The paddy ordered by Government preserved the lives of many, but we have no accounts to tell us of the thousands that died nor of the amount of loss inflicted upon the district by the falling off in its revenues. Mr. Warricker, Assistant Collector, writes on the 15th January 1792 to Mr. Keating, the Collector at Chicacole, "I was an eye-witness of the melancholy effects of famine. About six persons were gathered round a fire and were feeding upon the carcase of a dog killed on suspicion of its being mad." Mr. Warricker mentions that the village of Kodur, which had been populous and paid 3,000 Rupees yearly to Government, did not in 1791 contain more than 20 souls, and those feeble and emaciated from famine. The cattle died for want of sufficient pasturage, and in 1792 even the tanks had long since dried up. The duration of the famine was increased by the failure of the dry crop in 1792, and the floods that happened in that year did further damage. The famine seems to have been at its worst about Chicacole, and the Zemindaris of Jalantra, Mandasa, etc., around the foot of Mahendragiri, seem especially to have suffered. Jalantra is described as depopulated, but doubtless the disturbances caused by Sano Padsha had aggravated the sufferings of the people, besides driving a great many of them away.

Mr. Snodgrass becomes Resident

In 1791 Mr. Thomas Snodgrass who had been connected with the district as early as 1780 as Paymaster, became Resident and continued in office until 1793, Mr. Webb managing the Haveli lands. During Mr. Snodgrass' tenure of office as Resident, he seems to have exerted himself with considerable energy and zeal, not only in reducing the refractory Zemindars but in battling with the horrors of famine. His name is still familiar in the district as the builder of the grand-looking old house at Rambha on the borders of the Chilka lake, which, there is reason to suppose, was constructed as a famine work about 1792. No records exist, however, for Mr. Snodgrass' tenure of office, and there is consequently no information forthcoming as to the manner in which he employed the labour of the people upon the famine works which he promoted upon so large a scale. Government appear to have found fault with him for the lavish way in which he spent the public money in relieving the distresses of the people, for in spite of his talents, Mr. Snodgrass did not exercise very much control over expenditure.

During Mr. Snodgrass' absence at the Presidency in 1793 to take the Revenue oath prescribed by Act of Parliament, the Renter of the Kallikot Zemindari and the sureties of some of the Zemindars stated that they had paid various sums into the hands of Gopaul Krishnamma, the Resident's dubash, for which no receipts or credit had been given. The Acting Resident, Mr. Gordon, and the Haveli Collector Mr. Webb, were accordingly directed to enquire into these charges, and pending the result of the investigation, Mr. Snodgrass was told to remain at the Presidency. The result of the enquiry was unfavourable, and Government considered Mr. Snodgrass' conduct very reprehensible in suffering Gopaul Krishnamma to exercise an improper degree of power in the Ganjam district, where he appears to have acted in the double capacity of Public Interpreter and Private Dubash to the Resident. Gopaul Krishnamma was found guilty of embezzling public money, and was ordered to refund 17,150 Rupees. As he failed to make full payment of this sum as ordered, he was confined at Ganjam, but finally disgorged the whole amount and was released.

Resident abolished

In 1794 the office of Resident and Chief at all the settlements along the cost was abolished, the office of Collector was established, and Mr. Walter Balfour was appointed Collector at Ganjam. Unfortunately the general Reports of the Board of Revenue (printed) do not supply the details of administration between 1793 and 1800, and the District records of these eight years are said to have been destroyed by Mr. Brown who relieved Mr. Snodgrass in 1800. *The disturbances caused by Sano Padsha, the usurper of Jalantra, and by the quarrels of the district Zemindars, still continued to distract the country and impoverish the revenues, whilst bodies of banditti headed by Sano Deo and Moja Deo, burnt and plundered the villages both in the Haveli and in the Zemindari lands.

Mr. Snodgrass returns again as Collector

In 1797 Mr. Snodgrass returned to the district as Collector, and made his administration notorious by the wholesale corruption which he allowed to prevail in every department of Government. He appears to have abandoned all control over the affairs of the district, and to have given up his extensive powers to his dubash, Jagannatha Rao, whilst he himself resided at Rambha, ten miles away from his Cutcherry.

Defalcations of the revenue, coupled with fraud and wholesale oppression, were the speedy results of such an administration. The Zemindars of the district were disgusted with the treatment that they experienced at the hands of the dubash, and the country was brought to the brink of ruin by the wholesale corruption that prevailed. Jagannatha Rao, the dubash, kept up a small Court of his own at his dwelling at Ganjam, where Zemindars and their Patros as well as Renters and Peshkars appealed and sought for audience.

Mr. Snodgrass removed from office

To quote Mr. Brown's own words : "He had in his train sepoys, peons, and a multiplicity of attendants, and as an indispensable addition to the character, he supported the captivating allurements of a despotic dancing woman to encourage and promote intrigue, dissipation, and extravagance." The public departments of the district from top to bottom speedily became all equally corrupt, and every species of extortion and oppression was practised for the purpose of extorting money. Mr. Snodgrass himself neglected all means of obtaining authentic information, and left the entire conduct of affairs to the native servants of his Cutcherry with the natural consequences of a widespread dishonesty. This state of affairs appears to have lasted from the 3rd March 1797, until August 1800, but the falling off of Revenue in Ganjam had, in the meanwhile, become so great that Mr. Snodgrass was removed from office, and an investigation ordered by Government.

Mr. Snodgrass gave the following reasons for the very great deficiency of the public Revenue :

*According to a statement signed by Mr. Spottiswoode, the Collector, Mr. Brown burnt some of the records and the white-ants destroyed others. What Mr. Brown's object was in burning the records is unknown. His conduct in this respect is all the more extraordinary, when it is remembered that he was sent up to Ganjam by Government to investigate the charges made against Mr. Snodgrass, whom he succeeded in the district as Collector. There is a story current in Ganjam that Mr. Snodgrass not only dropped his accounts into the Chilka lake in order that they might not be a testimony against him, but that he threatened Mr. Brown's life if he ventured to come to Rambha where Mr. Snodgrass usually resided. I can find nothing in the Records, however, to substantiate either of these stories.

the failure of the rains and conscquent loss and reduction of crops, the low price of grain, the scarcity of specie, the disaffection of the Zemindars, the disturbances raised by the Khonds, and the want of sufficient military force in the district. Whereupon the Board of Revenue, after criticising Mr. Snodgrass' different reports, observe that, "a more extraordinary statement in extenuation of a gross defalcation of Revenue (has) we believe never before been submitted by a Collector."

Mr. Brown appointed Collector

Mr. William Brown was appointed to succeed Mr. Snodgrass, but upon arriving in the district in August 1800, it was some time before Mr. Snodgrass could be prevailed upon to deliver over charge to him. At length on the 31st August Mr. Snodgrass gave over charge of the district to Mr. Brown, who found an Augean stable to clean out at the Cutcherry, and the Zemindars of the district upon the eve of revolt.

The whole administration of the province required revision; and Mr. Brown in one of his sesquipedalian and very ungrammatical and unintelligible periods, states that he found the province "once a most flourishing and delightful tract of country" reduced to "nearly the last ebb of a depopulated and frightful waste capable of recovering, however, from the brink of utter dilapidation and ruin, and likely by a wise and honorable system of Government to rise superior to its apparent destiny and yield in importance and splendour to no province." Pending further investigation, Mr. Brown detained Jagannatha Rao in prison, and Government appear to have intended at first to prosecute both Mr. Snodgrass and his dubash in the Courts of Adawlut, but as no Courts had yet been established in Ganjam, the intention was apparently abandoned. The extent of Jagannatha Rao's embezzlements was therefore never exactly ascertained. Some idea of them may, however, be gathered from Mr. Brown's subsequent reports and from the fact that, in Mohiri alone the amount unaccounted for was upwards of 68,000 Rupees, whilst in the Khandams of Aska, Pubbakonda, Mantreddi, Tirustanam, Mansurkota, and Baruva they were probably not far short of 1,00,000 Rupees (vide Mr. Brown's reports on the above Purgannahs for the year 1801). The disturbed state of the country and the rebellion of the Goomsur Raja occupied too much of Mr. Brown's time, during his comparatively short stay in the country, to allow of his bringing a public prosecution to a successful issue.

Mr. Snodgrass discharged from service

Mr. Brown meanwhile set to work with energy to re-assure the minds of the inhabitants, and to take the best steps he could to preserve the peace of the country and secure its Revenues. In his report, dated the 15th March 1802, he details at considerable length all the occurrences that had taken place since his arrival in the district in August 1800. Mr. Brown's investigations do not, however, appear to have given entire satisfaction, as the Board writes to its successor in May 1803, "No information has been derived from the examination of Mr. Brown's report which could reward the labour imposed on Government or the Board by its prolixity." It must be admitted that the reproof is not unmerited. The Board of Revenue stated with reference to the charges made against Mr. Snodgrass that "adverting to the general character of Mr. Snodgrass' talents and to the proofs of ability which his writings contained", they do not consider themselves at liberty to attribute "the heavy defalcation of Revenue in Ganjam to the ignorance or to the imbecility of the Collector." They thought it their duty therefore to record that there was convincing proof that "that failure was derived from the deepest source of corruption." Mr. Snodgrass was dismissed from the service, but the charges of corruption brought against him were never verified, although there is not the slightest doubt that his neglect of his duties was grossly culpable. The enquiry against Jagannatha Rao dragged on for many years. Mr. Brown upon quitting Ganjam left with his successor a sealed packet which was said to contain the most material documents relating to the conduct of Jagannatha Rao, but when opened by the Collector the very documents, which were most likely to afford satisfactory proof of Jagannatha Rao's guilt, were deficient. After undergoing an imprisonment of nearly seven years, Jagannatha Rao was at last released by an order of the Foujdari Adawlut.

Revolt of the Zemindars

A general revolt of the Zemindars was one of the consequences of Mr. Snodgrass' mal-administration of Ganjam. Srikara Bhanj, the Zemindar of Goomsur, was the first to take up arms against the Company. As early as May 1799 he had been joined by Sano Padsha, the Pretender to Jalantra, and by Parla-Kimedi Jagannath Deo, both of whom had been endeavouring to incite him to rebellion. Srikara Bhanj had succeeded his father Lachmana Bhanj in 1788, but disgusted at the situation in which he found himself with his country in the hands of the money lenders who had made themselves securities for the Revenue, he resigned his Zemindari and went on a pilgrimage. His son, Dhanunjaya Bhanj meanwhile held the Zemindari until 1795 when his father returned and expelled him from the country. From 1797 to 1800, little or nothing had been paid into the Treasury, and the Zemindari continued like the rest of the district in a state of the utmost disorder and confusion. Srikara Bhanj himself absconded and declared that the course he had taken was forced upon him by the ill-treatment and frauds of the Agents employed by the Collector, Mr. Snodgrass. Mr. Brown, after his arrival in the district, at first entertained hopes of reclaiming Srikara Bhanj to obedience, but these expectations proved fallacious.

Taking advantage of the confusion of affairs that prevailed after Mr. Brown's arrival in the district, Jagannath Deo of Pratapagiri and Moni Deo of Vijayanagar, both escaped from custody at Ganjam, and were soon at the head of their respective followers.

Encouraged by the attitude of the Goomsur Raja, a combination of the District Zemindars was the result. Aska and Berhampore were threatened on the one side by the force of Moni Deo, and on the other by nearly the whole body of Goomsur Paiks. To prevent the junction of these two bodies, the troops under Lieutenant-Colonel Smith made a rapid march at night time and appeared most opportunely before Sergada at day-break. Moni Deo's men had been joined by the Zemindar of Sergada and his adherents, and were in full march for Goomsur, when a lucky shot from a six-pounder cut off the Zemindar of Sergada's head, and the enemy, startled by the occurrence, at once took to flight. This stroke of luck so terrified the Dharakot and other rebel Zemindars that they made no further attempts to join the Goomsur Raja in his rebellion. Jagannath Deo, the Ex-Zemindar of Parla-Kimedi, had meanwhile fled from the south, and joined Srikara Bhanj, whom it therefore became necessary to reduce by force.

Colonel Marly, a Bengal Officer, was appointed to command the troops in the district, and reached Ganjam on the 2nd May 1801 with two battalions of the 6th Regiment B. N. I. At Ganjam this force was joined by the 1st battalion, 10th Regiment M. N. I., from Chicacole, and a detachment of artillery. The troops at once marched into Goomsur and arrived at Gogu on the morning of the 9th May, when proclamations were issued declaring Srikara Bhanj a rebel, and offering a reward of 10,000 Rupees for his apprehension. The Zemindar's adherents collected in force at Kallada, and on the 14th May 1801, the troops under Colonel Marly's command attacked a very strong stockade there.[1] The rebels were driven off in every direction, and the stockade taken by the troops, six of whom were wounded. On the road to Durgaprasad the troops were assailed by the enemy with their fire at every point favourable to an attack, and as the march lay through jungles, the enemy could always make good their retreat. Three men were killed and five wounded on this march which lasted for two days. On the 23rd May the barriers and stockade at Durgaprasad were carried after some resistance, and the enemy fled to the hills which surrounded the place, from whence they kept up an annoying fire. Their better knowledge of the country enabled them at the same time to elude pursuit. Having established posts at such places as appeared best calculated for the protection of the country, Lieutenant-Colonel Marly returned to Aska in June 1801 with the rest of his force, and published the proclamation of Government formally deposing Srikara Bhanj, and appointing his son, Dhanunjaya Bhanj, Zemindar, in his stead. The country was however not yet reduced. Other minor engagements with the troops followed, and in the course of these, the fort at Kallada was twice retaken by the rebel party before being finally occupied by the Company's force. The main body of the forces eventually returned to Ganjam, and Srikara Bhanj meanwhile continued at large in spite of the reward offered for his apprehension. In December 1801, Colonel Marly returned with his detachment to Bengal. Mr. Brown made a vain attempt to seize Srikara Bhanj, and at length induced him to acquiesce in the accession of his son by allotting for his support certain Mutahs in the Zemindari. His presence, however, served to keep the country unsettled and disturbed, and both Srikara Bhanj and his son Dhanunjaya Bhanj were destined to give a great deal more trouble to the Company before it had done with them.

Although the troops employed had only partly reduced Goomsur, their presence in the field was an opportunity not to be lost for overrunning the Zemindaris of Pratapagiri and Vijayanagar, thereby producing an impression upon a part of the country which had been, for the past ten years or more, in a most distracted condition.

Moni Deo was deposed and his son, Balabhadra Deo, appointed Zemindar of Vijayanagar in his stead, whilst the Pratapagiri country was made over to Chandra Moni Deo, the son of Jagannath Deo. The latter had been charged with murdering his Patro, and was not considered fit to retain his Zemindari, and Moni Deo's contumacious spirit was only too well known. Both Moni Deo and Jagannath Deo became declared outlaws, but favoured by their respective sons and the wild nature of the country, they contrived for a long time to elude recapture. The ancient feud however between the two families was not suffered to die out, and the sons naturally favoured their father's pretensions.

Capture of rebel Jagannath Deo of Pratapagiri

In 1804 Moni Deo quietly returned to his Zemindari upon the death of his son, Balabhadra Deo, and Chandra Moni Deo came to terms with Moni Deo to make common cause against the Company. An expedition was sent against them under Colonel Durand but appears to have been withdrawn, and proved a failure chiefly owing to the imbecility of the then Collector. In 1805 Government offered a reward of Rs. 5,000 each for Moni Deo of Vijayanagar, and Jagannath Deo of Pratapagiri. The latter was finally captured in August of the same year, and the following extract explains how his capture was effected :—"On the 12th instant, Sirdar Lachminarasu (of whose good conduct I have before had occasion to speak in several instances) with two Jamadars and 200 peons made a forced march of 12 coss through a most dreadful jungle and came upon the rebel (Jagannath Deo of Pratapagiri) at day-break at the village of Becroocotah on the borders of the Bodogoda Zemindari. The rebel, independent of the peons he had with him, had stationed a small party on the entrance of the village with direction to fire immediately on seeing the Police Peons. By this signal the rebel was apprized of the approach of the Sirdar's party which, however, had been divided into three divisions to enter the village at three different points. At once the rebel being prepared by the signal, had got his people collected, and they received our peons with a heavy fire of matchlocks which, I am sorry to say, killed one or two men and wounded the Sirdar and five or six more. Our peons were not backward in returning the fire, and although the peons of the rebel separated after their own discharge to aid his *return, yet they did not effect it so securely." The Sirdar was again wounded, but the rebel was captured and a sword presented to the Sirdar for his meritorious conduct.

*(?) Escape.

In 1803 the Sibbundy corps which consisted of 5 companies, each 175 strong, was ordered to be disbanded in consequence of mutinous conduct at Baruva where they were then stationed. To preserve the peace of the country, the Collector raised a corps of 500 peons which took the place of the Sibbundy corps.

Courts of Circuit abolished

In 1804 the Courts of Circuit were abolished and stationary Courts introduced in their stead, Mr. Cherry exchanging the office of Collector for that of Magistrate and Judge. He was succeeded as Collector by Mr. F. A. Robson who held office until September 1806. Owing to the introduction of the salt monopoly in 1805, an alarming scarcity of salt prevailed at Ganjam and throughout the district. Mr. Cherry, however, exerted himself in his usually energetic manner, and salt was largely imported from Cuttack to meet the more pressing wants of the people.

History of Chicacole Division

It is now necessary to turn to the history of the Chicacole division between 1767 and 1802, in which year it was incorporated in the Ganjam district. Previous to this date, it had formed the 3rd division of the Vizagapatam district, and included Kasimkota, now attached to Vizagapatam. The limits of the 3rd division extended from Chinna Pantulu Daba, 20 miles south of Chicacole, to Kasibugga, 50 miles north of it. Upon the acquisition of the Northern Circars, the district was rented out to Sitaram Raz, the brother of Viziaram Raz, Raja of Viziyanagram, for a period of 10 years until 1777. In 1777 the rent of the country to Sitaram Raz appears to have been renewed for a further period of ten years, which expired in 1787. Sitaram Raz's management of the country was most oppressive, and seems to have been highly detrimental to the Company's interests. The country was rack-rented in a wholesale manner, and the renters took what share of the produce they pleased, leaving the remainder to the ryot. Sitaram Raz dispossessed the Brahmins of their charity lands of Agraharams, and, in recompense, bestowed upon them Haveli villages. The manufacturers and artizans of the country emigrated in large numbers and went to other places where they were less oppressed. At the expiration of Sitaram Raz's lease, Mr. Henry Crawford was appointed in 1787 the first Collector of the Chicacole Division subject to the authority of the Chief and Council at Vizagapatam. Mr. Crawford estimated the probable revenue of the country at four lakhs, including the two large Zemindaris of Parla-Kimedi and Tekkali. The alienations made by Sitaram Raz had been considerable, so that all lands not uninterruptedly enjoyed for twenty years were ordered to be resumed. As in Ganjam, so in Chicacole, the land Customs were numerous and burdensome, preventing the produce of the country being sent from those parts where it was plentiful to others where it was scarce.

Embezzlement by Mr. Keating

Upon Mr. Crawford proceeding to Ganjam as Resident in 1790, Mr. Michael Keating succeeded him. The Haveli lands of Chicacole were rented out to one Ramavadhanulu in 1791, but the Renter fell in arrears, and the Company seized his ships and other property at Calingapatam in satisfaction of their demands. In 1794 the Chief and Council at Vizagapatam were abolished, and Mr. Keating was directed to correspond direct with the Board of Revenue. Mulberry, cocoanut and opuntia plantations, and cochineal seem to have engaged the Company's commercial attention, but the success of these ventures does not appear to have been great. In 1797 Mr. Keating got into trouble, and was charged with embezzling a sum of 1,19,380 Rupees out of 1,73,414 Rupees allotted for the repairs of the 898 tanks which had been breached or damaged by the monsoon of 1795. Captain (Lieutenant) Pitman was, at the same time, charged with collusion, and Mr. Keating was removed, and made way for Mr. Andrew Scott in 1797.

Parla-Kimedi Zemindary declared forfeited

The country during the administration of Messrs. Crawford, Keating, and Scott continued in a more or less disturbed state. Gajapati Deo, the Zemindar of Parla-Kimedi, whom the English had put in as Zemindar upon the defeat of his father Narayana Deo in 1768, was declared to have forfeited his Zemindari in 1797 for repeated breaches of his engagements, and for disobeying the orders of the Collector at Chicacole. The management of this extensive Zemindari was accordingly placed under the Collector and Durga Raz, a relation of the Kimedi family, was appointed Manager in 1799.

Tekkali Zemindar died

In 1797 the Zamindar of Tekkali died, the last of a long and noble race, the Kadamba 'Vamsam' or family, and his estate which had been for 375 years in the possession of the same family, was converted into Haveli or Government land and managed by the Company.

Engagements with insurgents of Parla-Kimedi

During the years 1799 and 1800, disturbances in Kimedi took place concurrently with those in Goomsur, in consequence of which both the Chicacole and Tekkali Havelies suffered material injury. The Zemindar, Gajapati Deo, and his son had been sent to Masulipatam, but this step did not have the effect of quieting the insurgents who, besides laying waste the country, attacked the detachments posted at Varanasi and Kimedi. The former was compelled by the peons of the Doratanams to retreat out of the Zemindari, and the latter to capitulate on condition of being allowed to retire with their arms. After these successes the insurgents proceeded to take possession of the Tekkali Haveli, and to burn and plunder the villages at will. Jagannath Deo, the brother of Gajapati Deo, for whom he had been removed from the Zemindari in 1780, had, in the meanwhile, joined the insurgents who numbered a body 5,000 strong. 8 companies of Native Infantry, a detachment of Cavalry, and a brigade of six pounders were sent against the insurgents. After some delay the rebels were finally reduced by Colonel Vigors with the assistance and advice of Durga Raz. During the course of the operations, Lieutenant Youngson, a British officer, was taken prisoner and carried off into the Maliahs. His release was finally effected.

As a reward for the services rendered by him, Durga Raz was appointed Manager, and for 13 years his administration of the country was most successful. In 1802 Gajapati Deo died, and his son, Purushottama Narayana Deo, succeeded him. Upon the death of the latter in 1805, the Parla-Kimedi estate was managed by Durga Raz, subject to the Court of Wards, as Purushottama Narayana Deo's son was only 12 months old when his father died. Jagannath Deo who had joined the Goomsur Raja in his rebellion, and for whose capture Government offered a reward of Rs. 10,000, was seized and delivered up by the Zemindar of Surada in 1804, and sent as a prisoner to Masulipatam.

Mr. Cherry was the last Collector to succeed to the management of the Chicacole country in 1800, and in 1802 when Chicacole was incorporated with Ganjam, Mr. Cherry became the first Collector of the United Province.

Revenues of the Chicacole Division

With regard to the revenues of the Chicacole division they never seem to have exceeded by much Mr. Crawford's first estimate of four lakhs. The jama or rent paid by Gajapati Narayana Deo for Parla-Kimedi was 86,000 Rupees, whilst for Tekkali, the last Zemindar, Ram Kistna Jagga Deo, had paid 24,472 Rupees yearly. The average gross collections of the Chicacole Haveli lands from Fasli 1202 to 1206 (1792—1796) were 2,94,760 Rupees, making a grand total of 4,05,232 Rupees.

CHAPTER VII

Change in Management

Mr. Peter Cherry, who succeeded Mr. Brown in 1802, was the first Collector of Ganjam as now constituted. In 1803 the Ganjam district comprised all the territory north of the Langulya river near Chicacole, and extended from Mofazbandar on the sea coast in the south to Priagi on the Chilka lake in the north. It included four district Havelis, and 21 Zemindaris, including the large and important one of Parla-Kimedi, recently added. The disorganized state of the Ganjam district generally may be imagined, however, from the fact that the uncollected balances of Revenue amounted in 1804 to 18,25,651 Rupees, and extended over a period of 10 years, viz., from 1795 to 1804 inclusive.

Mr. Cherry's management of the country was vigorous and praiseworthy. His administration was marked by four important changes. 1stly.—The incorporation of the country north of the Langulya river at Chicacole with the present Ganjam district in 1803. 2ndly.—The introduction of the Permanent Settlement. 3rdly.—The establishment of Courts of Judicature, and 4thly.—The sale of the Haveli or Government lands in Ganjam and their formation into Proprietary Estates.

A general spirit of insubordination prevailed amongst the Zemindars of the district. Srikara Bhanj, the rebel Zemindar of Goomsur, had fortified himself in a part of the country whence it was impracticable to dislodge him, whilst the Zemindars of Pratapagiri and Vijayanagar continued openly disaffected. In spite of these adverse circumstances, the Collector managed by perseverance, and his conciliatory and judicious conduct, to collect a larger Revenue by 1,52,374 Rupees than in the previous Fasli.

Permanent settlement

Under great disadvantages Mr. Cherry gathered the necessary information for the Permanent Settlement, and successfully effected its introduction into the district. Mr. Cherry wrote in December 1803 : "I consider the introduction of the Permanent Settlement as offering the only prospect of permanent peace to this district". It required, however, something more than even a Permanent Settlement to produce peace in Ganjam. The progressive decline of the Revenues had been brought about almost as much by the evil consequences of temporary expedients as by petty warfare and famine. It was evident that a fluctuating management and a rack-renting system would not restore the prosperity of the country.

A special Commissioner was appointed to investigate the extent and resources of the district, with the view of arriving at a correct opinion of the tributes that might, at all times, be levied in perpetuity from each Zemindari with safety and a fair prospect of realization. The report to Government on the subject is dated 19th May 1804.

Disputes between Zemindars

In 1806 disturbances broke out between the Bodogoda Zemindari and the small estate of Katingia which bordered it on the west and served as a barrier against the predatory excursions of the Khonds. The Bodogoda man was in the habit of paying the Sirdar an annual contribution to purchase his forbearnce, but alleged that the Sirdar was his servant, an assertion indignantly denied by the latter. On the 11th March 1807, an engagement took place between the Sirdar of Katingia, assisted by the Zemindars of Surada and Gadapore on the one side, and the Zemindar of Bodogoda, assisted by the people of Sergada, on the other. The Zemindar of Bodogoda's son-in-law was killed together with two peons whilst 12 others were wounded. To prevent similar disturbances in future, a Sanad was granted to the Sirdar of Katingia by Government.*

*General Report of the Revenue Board, dated 10th October, 1807.

Mohiri and part of Goomsur attached

In September 1806 Mr. Robert Alexander became Collector and Mr. Samuel Skinner filled the office of Magistrate. In 1807, the Mohiri Zemindari which had been restored to Krushna Periya Mahadevi in 1804 fell into arrears and was placed under attachment. The Goomsur Zemindari still remained in a disturbed state owing to the intrigues of the old Zemindar, Srikara Bhanj, to whom Mr. Brown had made over for his subsistence the Maliah districts of Kukuluba, Galeri, Jakasabadi, Pantso Godo, and Uttoro Godotolo of Goomsur. In 1807-08 Srikara Bhanj got into trouble with the Khonds, and in 1808 Dhanunjaya Bhanj, his son, had acquired sufficient influence to oblige him to quit the country, to which he did not return until 1815. For many years he wandered about in the garb of a religious mendicant or Bairagi, visiting most of the cities and places of pilgrimage in the western provinces of Bengal, and travelling thence to Nagpore and Madras, where he finally procured from the Governor a passport permitting him to return to Goomsur.

In November 1808 Mr. G. F. Travers became Collector, but was shortly afterwards succeeded by Mr. Hugh Spottiswoode in 1809. There was a scarcity of salt for a second time in 1809 owing to continued rain, and to the fact that the quantity of salt manufactured was limited to the probable consumption. The Collector therefore suggested the importation of 300 garces of salt for two successive years, which certainly seem absurd, if we consider the present unbounded capacity of Ganjam for the production of salt.

The Zemindari estates of Dharakot, Kalikot, Chikati, and Atagada were in arrears, and part of the Goomsur Zemindari was attached for the same reason.

Mohiri sold

In 1810 the Mohiri Zemindari was attached for a balance of Rs. 33,169-2-6 and sold by public auction. The last Raja of Mohiri, Narayana Deo, had married the sister of the Chikati Zemindar. The Raja was murdered in 1786 by his own brothers, Sano Deo and Moja Deo, and as he left no heir and the perpetrators of the murder were excluded from the succession, the Zemindari escheated to the Sirkar. At the recommendation however of the Chief and Council at Ganjam, founded on the policy of conciliating the inhabitants of the country, Government re-called the Rani in the year 1786 from Chikati, where she had sought an asylum after her husband's death, and confirmed her in the possession of the Zemindari by a Sanad in the usual form. The Rani of Mohiri however became involved in difficulties with her brother-in-law, Moja Deo, the former rebel, who laid claims to Mohiri, and although illegitimate, had sued the Rani in the Civil Court. In 1809 an order was passed by the Court confirming a Rajinama or agreement, alleged to have been made between Moja Deo and the Rani, and ordering that the Rani should hold the Zemindari during her life and that it should afterwards revert to Moja Deo, The Rani shortly afterwards fell in arrears, and Mohiri was attached and sold.

For a period of about eight years, the district had been comparativley quiet, and since the sale of the Mohiri Zemindari in 1810, the regularity with which the Revenue had been collected was unexampled. In 1814, however, the district again began to assume a tumultuous and threatening appearance, more especially in the south.

Disturbances in Parla-Kimedi

The Parla-Kimedi Zemindari still continued under the Court of Wards during the minority of Raja Jagannath Gajapati Narayan Deo. The latter's grandfather, Gajapati Deo, had been dispossessed of the Zemindari by Government for repeated acts of hostility and rebellion, and the estate had been placed under the Collector's management in 1805, on the death of the minor's father, Purushottama Narayana Deo. Previous to this, at the time of the permanent settlement, the proprietary right to Parla-Kimedi had been declared vested in Gajapati Deo and his heirs, by the usual Sanad-i-Milkeut Istimrar.

The management of Padmanabha Deo, who had succeeded his father, Durga Raz, as Manager in 1813, became so unpopular with the Bissoyis and Doras of the country as to lead to serious complications. The insurgents, instigated probably by the Gajapati Patta Mahadevi, the widow of the late Zemindar, and by Durga Raz, the son of Jaganath Deo, a former Zemindar, began to create disturbances by bruning and plundering the villages. Government accordingly made preparations to put down the disturbances by force, and Colonel Fletcher was appointed to command the troops in Ganjam. The Magistrate, Mr. Woodcock, and the Collector, Mr. Spottiswoode, were at the same time directed to proceed to Kimedi to enquire into the complaints made by the Bissoyis against the Manager, Padmanabha Deo.

In an interview that the Collector and Magistrate had with the insurgents, the latter appear to have had some thoughts of seizing their persons, for the Jeringi Bissoyi is said to have suggested that course to the Bissoyi of Guma, saying, "Are not the golden sparrows flown into our cage, why should we part with our prize till the object we have in view is obtained ? Let us then, with one accord, catch them by the feet, and let them be watched with care until this promised answer from the Government arrives." In spite of this suggestive speech, however, the interview passed off without disturbance. Pending the negotiations that ensued, the insurgents had committed no further acts of aggression, and the Magistrate was unwilling that the troops should act until he had made a further reference to Government. The apparent tranquility that ensued led to the troops not being employed at all. Padmanabha Deo was removed from his post of Manager, and one Kanukurti Narasingarao was appointed in his stead. The lull was, however, only momentary, and disturbances soon broke out again and continued with but little intermission until 1817. The lenity of Government on this occasion was therefore clearly misplaced.

Padmanabha Deo had in the meanwhile retired to his estate at Tekkali, but in October 1816 his intrigues seem to have once more made the Zemindari the scence of rebellion. At the beginning of 1817 one Gudipati Lachanna commenced the disturbances by burning Nagarikatakam and five other villages in the Karakavalasa estate. Mr. Spottiswoode promptly entered the Zemindari with four companies of sepoys from Vizianagram, and found the passes stockaded, but the presence of the troops appears to have temporarily prevented further outrages. No military operations were, however attempted, and the troops were subsequently withdrawn, but not before Durga Raz, the grandson of a former Zemindar, who was directly concerned in the disturbances had been caught and hanged. A solitary instance of well-timed severity was not, however, in itself sufficient to quell the rebellious spirit of the Bissoyis, Doras, and Paiks of Parla-Kimedi.

Fever at Ganjam

In August 1815, a most dreadful epidemic fever broke out in Ganjam, which had hitherto been the chief town of the district. The public buildings of the station, as well as the houses and gardens of the Civilians are described as having been upon a scale of grandeur surpassing almost every other station in the Madras Presidency.* Under the influence of the malignant disease which attacked the inhabitants, Ganjam was reduced in a very short time from a populous town of 30,000 souls to one of less than 6,000. From 20 to 30 deaths occurred daily, and a panic seized upon the inhabitants who fled from the fever-stricken place in large numbers. All the principal merchants in the place died, and many Europeans. The deaths in the Collector's and Magistrate's Cutcherries were so numerous that public business was at a stand-still.

In November 1815 the troops were removed to Berhampore, whilst the Collector transferred his treasury first to Mansurkota, and afterwards to Berhampore as being more central. With the exception of Chicacole, which was entirely free from it, the fever seems to have overrun the whole district. About Sonnapur the people are described as being so weak from its effects, as scarcely to be able to reap the standing crops in their fields. The causes of the outbreak do not appear to have been clearly traced in spite of the enquiries made. Mr. Woodcock, the Magistrate, was of opinion that the fever was due to the low situation of Ganjam, and to the prevalence of standing water in the fields around. The filthy state of the town seems to have had a good deal to do with it, as Ganjam had previously been as healthy as any town in India. The prevalence of fever was, however, noticed by Mr. Cherry as far back as 1803. Upon the present occasion the fever proved fatal to between 20,000 and 30,000 people and continued throughout the district for more than three years.

Irruption of Pindaries

The Pindaries were an off-shoot of the Mahratta armies, who had taken to robbing and plundering the country, when their Chiefs could no longer afford to pay them. Consequent upon the disturbances in Parla-Kimedi, and, there is reason to suppose, instigated by Padmanabha Deo, the ex-Manager, the Pindaries made an irruption into the Ganjam District in December 1816. Their strength seems to have been between 4,000 and 5,000 men, and they were well mounted, although but ill armed. They entered the district through the Jeypore country, and proceeded northwards burning and plundering as they went. The Ichapur and Mansurkota Parganas seem especially to have suffered from their ravages, and as they spread over the country in small detached bodies, it was difficult to account for their movements. The troops at Berhampore prevented their molesting that town, and near Boirani a body of Pindaries, 1,000 strong, were surprised by Lieutenant Borthwick and a small force, and completely routed. Before leaving the district, however, for the northwards, they succeeded in looting Ganjam under the very nose of the Commercial Resident. The destination of the Pindaries was supposed to be the rich temple of Puri, but before reaching that place, they appear to have turned off to the west and disappeared, no more to return.

Mr. Cazalet appointed Collector and Magistrate

In 1816, the Collector was invested with Magisterial powers, and the separate office of Magistrate was abolished. In 1817, Mr. Spottiswoode left the district upon Sick Certificate, having been for nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ years in tents, constantly moving about.

Mr. Spottiswoode was succeeded by Mr. Peter Reade Cazalet on the 25th July 1817. The country was now in a most distracted state. There were disturbances prevailing in Goomsur and Mohiri, and fresh troubles were momentarily expected to occur in Parla-Kimedi. The loss of Revenue that resulted from this state of things was so serious, that Government resolved on the 20th October 1818 to depute Mr. Thackeray as a Special Commissioner to investigate the causes of the disturbances existing in Ganjam. After furnishing three interesting reports upon the state of the country, respectively dated the 8th February, 15th February, and 30th March 1819, Mr. Thackeray returned to his permanent appointment of Collector of Bellary.

Goomsur forfeited

In 1814, Dhanunjaya Bhanj, Raja of Goomsur, was openly accused of murdering his own mother by his father Srikara Bhanj. Other atrocities being also alleged against him, summonses were issued to the witnesses by the Magistrate Mr. Woodcock, but the Raja refused to allow them to be served. As he still continued to resist the processes of the Criminal Court, his Zemindari was declared to be forfeited to Government by a proclamation dated the 21st May 1815. The Zemindar showing no signs of yielding obedience, the troops, under Colonel Fletcher, were marched from Aska into Goomsur, and took possession of the fort at Kallada without opposition on the 20th May. In an attempt that the troops made to capture the Zemindar, they accomplished a forced march of 19 hours, and only failed through the extreme fatigue which they had endured. Dhanunjaya Bhanj, however, shortly afterwards gave himself up to the Collector, and the troops returned into Cantonment in June 1815, after having had the satisfaction of liberating upwards of a hundred miserable prisoners, a great many of them in irons, who had been illegally kept in confinement by the Zemindar at his own sweet pleasure.

After a long and exhaustive enquiry, * Dhanunjaya Bhanj was committed to take his trial before the Court of Circuit by Mr. Travers, the Magistrate. The evidence was, however, deemed insufficient on the ground that the witnesses against him were "either persons who had been maltreated by him, or the relations of such perosns." He was therefore acquitted, and sent to Chingleput as a State prisoner. There can be but little doubt, however, that Dhanunjaya Bhanj was guilty of the most atrocious and inhuman crimes in spite of his acquittal by the Court of Circuit for the extraordinary reason given above. Amongst other outrages he was charged with murdering his mother and his own son, besides three out of four of his wives. Blue-beard himself could scarcely have held a candle to him. His father, Srikara Bhanj, was one of his chief accusers. Colonel Fletcher, who commanded the troops against him, calls him "that tyrannous monster, the bare recital of whose fiendish acts makes humanity shudder." In the gloomy fort at Kallada he appears to have been in the habit of immuring prisoners who had excited his vengeance, and unfortunate women, the victims of his lust, and starving them to death by slow degrees. Some he confined in stocks, whilst he bent the hands of others with heavy stones, or tied them to stakes, in the sun, and left them to a lingering death.

In one well alone no less than 18 skulls were found upon its being searched by the Magistrate, Mr. Travers. The troops, upon occupying the fortress, also found ample evidence of the tortures that had been practised, and their suspicions were afterwards confirmed by the testimony of the numerous prisoners whom they subsequently released, when they so nearly captured the Zemindar in his flight. And yet this monster in human form was not only acquitted, but was actually afterwards reinstated as Raja of Goomsur in 1832.

Srikara Bhanj reinstated

In 1818, Srikara Bhanj, ex-Zemindar of Goomsur, who had been confined under a Military guard ever since 1815, escaped from Berhampur and returned to Goomsur, where he was soon at the head of a party, and virtually recovered possession of his Zemindari. Two persons named Dora Bissoyi and Bahu Bolendro, both of them afterwards noted rebels, obtained possession of the country, and for two years they succeeded in passing of a female child upon the authorities (if there were any) as Balabhadra Deo, the son of Dhanunjaya Bhanj, who was generally believed to have been murdered by his own father. Srikara Bhanj upon escaping from confinement, however, got possession of the child, and sent it in to the Collector, and for 14 years after this he seems to have managed the country fairly, and paid his tribute of 75,000 Rupees a year with regularity. Upon Mr. Thackeray visiting the Ganjam district in the following year (1819) Srikara Bhanj was formally reinstated in the Zemindari upon the 3rd May 1819.

Thus after having been declared a rebel in 1801, having wandered as a Bairagi since 1808, and having been a prisoner since 1815, Srikara Bhanj found himself once more in possession of the country of his ancestors. A pension of 8,000 Rupees was at the same time granted to Dhanunjaya Bhanj out of the Revenues of the Zemindari, which he continued to draw at Chingleput.

*Letter dated 18th August 1815, from Magistrate to Chief Secretary to Government, with Enclosures.

Colonel Fletcher, the Commanding Officer, was subsequently tried by Court Martial for plundering the Zamindar's property, the Government remarking that under any circumstances the property of the Zamindar could not have been claimed as prize, but should have been preserved inviolably by the captors with a view to its regular confiscation, or as the case might be.

Disturbances in Mohiri

The management of the Mohiri estate which had been secured in 1810 by Bandam Chalamaya, the Cutcherry Shroff,* was in the meanwhile most unsatisfactory. With the permission of Government, Mr. Spottiswoode had undertaken the management of the taluq on the 14th November 1816 at the request of the Bandam family. The Collector received a commission of 1½ per cent for managing the taluq, and thus appears to have become the servant of his own Shroff. Moja Deo was still alive, living at Chicacole, and the taluq peons had a grievance upon being dispossessed of their Inam lands. A body of peons, headed by one Sarsungi Maharta, formed a retreat at Sirhoot in the Mohiri hills not far from Berhampore, and betook themselves to a course of outrageous plunder. On the 8th March 1817, Maharta entered the town of Berhampore by night with his adherents, and burnt and plundered nearly the whole of it, threatening to return on the following night to complete the work of destruction. Efforts were made to capture him, but in vain. The Bandam family was unpopular, and Maharta professed the cause of the ancient Zemindari.

Disturbances continued in Mohiri throughout the whole of 1818. Troops were stationed at Ichapur and Berhampore to protect the country and peons and rangers were employed to guard the villages from Maharta's ravages. The whole province appears, however, to have aided and abetted the insurgents to the full extent of their power. The Police of the district consisted of 3 regular corps of Infantry, a corps of Hill Rangers under Captain Jobson, whilst grants of money were allowed for secret service, and yet with all this not a native could sleep in his bed in safety. Maharta still continued at large in spite of a reward of 10,000 Rupees offered for his capture, and people were mutilated, murdered and robbed, or carried up into the hills, where they were kept until they paid ransom. In 1818 an attempt seems to have been made to seize or drive Maharta from the Mohiri hills, but the expedition ended disastrously. Three hundred men and seven officers including Captain Jobson and Mr. Mason, the Assistant Collector, died either from fever or exposure on service. Maharta was eventually captured, but instead of being hanged as a rebel, he was sent to Gooty as a State prisoner. Sirhoot, the post on the Mohiri hills that he had so long made his stronghold, appears to have been occupied by Sibbandi peons under the orders of the Collector. In 1830, however, Lakshmana Bissoyi, Maharta's nephew, surprised the post in company with 400 insurgents, intending to procure Maharta's release. He appears to have come from Goomsur together with the insurgents who accompanied him, and was subsequently given up in 1835 by Dhanunjaya Bhanj, and transported for life. Like his uncle, however, he burnt and plundered Government villages in the interim, although not to the same extent.

The Mohiri Zemindari was finally repurchased from the Bandam family by Government on the 18th October 1820 for 35,000 Rupees, and made over to Krushna Chandra Deo, the reputed son of Moja Deo, on the 17th July 1821. Pending the majority of the young Zemindar, the estate was managed by Mr. Cazalet under the Court of Wards. The former Rani of Mohiri, Krushna Periya Mahadevi, received a pension for herself and her relations varying in amount between 9,000 and 12,000 Rupees yearly, and as late as 1833 appears to have made a final appeal to Government to be reinstated in the Zemindari.

Disturbances in Parla-Kimedi

Besides enquiring into the affairs of Mohiri and Goomsur in the north, Mr. Thackeray's attention was directed to those of Parla-Kimedi. The Raja was still a minor. There were eleven Hill Bissoyis, each with a small fort, who were supposed to act as the police of the country, and prevent the Savaras or Hill people from breaking into the country and plundering it. To aid these Bissoyis and attached to them, there were a number of peons, and both Bissoyis and peons were paid by grants of land. There were besides some hundreds of turbulent town peons. The Swaji Mahadevi, or young Raja's grandmother, and the Gajapati Mahadevi, the widow of the rebel Zemindar Gajapati Deo, were rivals for power in the country. Each Rani had a party amongst the Bissoyis and peons. The country itself was under the Collector's management, but Subba Rao, the Government Manager, had in 1818 imprudently mixed himself up with the party of the Swaji Mahadevi against the Patta Mahadevi, and the Guma Bissoyi who supported her. The Gajapati Mahadevi, who was possessed of considerable influence in the Zemindari, disgusted at the slights to which she was exposed from the Manager's party, quitted the Zemindari in 1818, and proceeded to Chicacole. One disturbance now commenced to follow another.

*Nominally bought by Bhagavan Mahanti, a merchant of Mantreddi, for 33,000 Rupees.

The Bissoyis of the country were in some measure considered as holding their lands or Mokhasas at the will of the Raja. In the course of the quarrels and intrigues that had taken place between the two opposite factions, the Bissoyi of Roigodo had been turned out in October 1817, and one Dandasena, the brother of the Guma Bissoyi, put in his place. Dandasena again was turned out of Roigodo by the Manager and the Swaji Mahadevi's influence, whereupon in September 1818 Dandasena and his people began to burn and plunder villages, as was the custom, and to demand the return of the Gajapati Mahadevi. These quarrels were always a good pretext for robbing and plundering, the unfortunate ryots being the sufferers, and the Bissoyis and peons, originally the police of the country, the gainers. Consequent upon Mr. Thackeray's report, however, Mr. Sub-Collector Bird was appointed to have especial charge of the Hill Zemindaris in Ganjam, and his head-quarters were located at Parla-Kimedi, but in other respects no more effectual means were taken to preserve the peace of the country. Upon his death he was succeeded by Mr. Bayard, an officer well acquainted with the Uriya language, and long resident in the country. As long, however, as the two factions resided in Parla-Kimedi, the Zemindari could have no peace, and reconciliation between them was not to be thought of.

Sir Thomas Munro visits Ganjam

In 1822 Sir Thomas Munro, Governor of Madras, paid a visit to the Ganjam District, In 1820 and 1821 the disturbances amongst the Bissoyis and town peons of Parla-Kimedi still continued in spite of the exertions of Mr. Sub-Collector Bayard to prevent them. In order to secure the peace of the Zemindari it was determined to deliver the country over at once to the Minor Raja, Jagannath Gajapati Narayana Deo, without waiting for his coming of age. The young Raja was incapable and sensual, and Gopinatha Patnayak, the new Manager, gave offence to the more powerful party under the Guma Bissoyi. The town peons, who were the bullies of Parla-Kimedi, moved away their families, and commenced burning and plundering. The Zemindari continued in a disturbed state between 1822 and 1830, and the country was alternately managed by Gopinatha Patnayak, Padmanabha Deo, and the Gajapati Mahadevi. Constant fights took place between the rival factions, who met and fought out their quarrels in the streets of Kimedi. The Revenues of the country naturally suffered, and in 1829 the Zemindari was attached for arrears. The work of plunder and destruction however still continued, and the Raja was gradually lapsing into a state of imbecility, the result of self-indulgence. The Zemindari was at length once more resumed by Government in 1830, and its affairs placed under the Court of Wards.

Insurrection

Padmanabha Deo, who had previously been so ready to foster existing disturbances, and had repeatedly been denounced by the then Collector, was now foolishly re-appointed to the management. The policy followed was a temporising one, and the Government of the country was weak. Padmanabha Deo proved to be as obnoxious as ever, and a conspiracy was formed against him amongst the Bissoyis and the town peons, which in 1831 again culminated in an insurrection. The secret instigator of the disturbances was Gopinatha Patnayak, who had been the Raja's Manager in 1822, but there were many others in the country who did not care to conceal their professions. The chief of these was Godiyapadhi Krushnama Dora.

In January 1832, Mr. Ogilvie assumed charge of the Ganjam Collectorate. The Government had been hitherto under the impression that the disturbances could be put down, without the presence of troops, by means of peons. The Bissoyis, Doras, and peons of the Zemindari were elated by former successes and encouraged by the comparative impunity, with which they had been so long allowed to carry on their excesses. In the course of these disturbances, the ryots had been murdered by the Savaras, and depredations were committed upon their property and cattle by the insurgents. Frequently they had been outraged in their own persons, or through the dishonour of their wives and daughters, and the country was gradually being abandoned by its cultivators. Last but not least, the Collector of the district was powerless, as Government had disapproved of his repeated proposals to call in military aid, and declare martial law. In October 1832 Padmanabha Deo died, and a temporary lull in the disturbances was the result.

The attention of Government had, however, at last been drawn to the serious results likely to accrue if the disturbances in Parla-Kimedi were suffered to continue. Whilist the Bissoyis, Doras and peons continued to possess themselves gradually of additional villages, land and money at the Raja's expense. The lawlessness of these men originally began at the end of 1813 and had continued to prevail in a more or less open manner for a period of 19 years.

Mr. Russell appointed Special Commissioner

On the 11th December 1832, Mr. George Russell, the 1st Member of the Board of Revenue, was appointed Special Commissioner to ascertain the causes which had led to these continual outbreaks, to devise and carry out measures for their suppression and to recommend what future course he thought best suited to prevent their recurrences. He was invested with extraordinary powers including that of proclaiming martial law, if necessary, in the Zemindari.* Brigadier General Taylor was Commanding the Division in the Northern Circars, and Major Baxter was appointed to command the troops in Parla-Kimedi.

Mr. Russell's Campaign

Mr. Russell's first enquiry was to ascertain who were the real instigators of the disturbances. Having obtained positive proof against Gopinatha Patnayak, the ex-Manager, and Rakana Chandrudu, who was the Sirdar or Chief of the town peons in Parla-Kimedi, he proceeded to take them into custody. In May 1833 the fort at Guma was occupied by the troops upon the Guma Bissoyi failing to give up Godiyapadhi Krushnama Dora, a noted rebel of 1831, but no real opposition was offered to the troops. The Zemindari had remained in a state of comparative peace since Mr. Russell's arrival, and no further outrages were reported, except by the Savaras. The Special Commission sitting at Chicacole had, in the meanwhile, sentenced the prisoners sent for trial by Mr. Russell to transportation for life, that being the highest penalty in their power to inflict. The inhabitants had expected the public execution of their oppressors, and they learned with dismay that their lives had been spared. Hitherto there had been no direct act of rebellion, except in Guma.

In August 1833 Mr. Russell saw however fit to issue the proclamation of martial law, by which act treason and rebellion became capital crimes. Negotiations were commenced with the Bissoyi of Jeringi to deliver up the rebel Godiyapadhi.

During Mr. Russell's temporary absence at Masulipatam, Major Baxter anxious to secure Godiyapadhi, sought for an interview with the Jeringi Bissoyi at his own fort in order the better to secure the object he had in view. This was a fatal mistake. With a misplaced confidence in the people whose suspicions were easily aroused, Major Baxter, accompanied by a small body of troops, proceeded on the road to Jeringi. His movements were known to the Bissoyis, and he was fired upon by an unseen enemy, receiving a ball in his only remaining arm. The wound subsequently proved mortal. The first shot had been fired, and the signal for a general revolt of the Bissoyis, the Doras, and the peons attached to them, had been given. Of the 1,100 town peons of Kimedi some 600 now threw off the mask and joined the insurgents. It would serve no purpose to attempt to describe in detail the different operations of the campaign.

The country was woody and hilly, the paths unknown and the people disaffected. Caution was therefore necessary, Jeringi and other forts in the Eastern Division were gradually reduced with but trifling loss, and the Bissoyis of Roigodo and Lawanyakota were captured and hanged. The insurgents met with defeat at every point. Their principal leaders either died or were captured, and by April 1834, the campaign in Parla-Kimedi was at an end, and the troops were gradually withdrawn. The most efficient means of repression were found to be the destruction of the insurgents' villages and grain.

The anarchy which had existed for so many years had hitherto united all the turbulent classes of the country in one interest. It was Mr. Russell's object to separate the Bissoyis in the hills from the Doras in the plains and to crush out the insolence of the peons of the four streets in Kimedi town. The connection that had so long subsisted between the Bissoyis themselves was also effectually broken. The two Bissoyis of Roigodo were hanged along with 13 other insurgents, whilst 103 of the town peons were sent to Vellore as State prisoners. Some 25 other insurgents had been previously sentenced to transportation for life by the Special Commission sitting at Chicacole. As regards the town peons of Kimedi, their numbers were considerably reduced. Only 200 were retained in employ in Kimedi, whilst waste land was allotted to others who had rendered services, sufficient to afford them a comfortable subsistence, subject to a light quit-rent after 4 or 5 years' tenure. This latter arrangement proved highly advantageous in many ways.

The moral effect of the troops' operations was great, as it taught the inhabitants to respect the power of Government by enforcing obedience. Kimedi had been in a state of open rebellion for years, the authority of Government had been despised, whilst the rebellious spirit of the peons and their leaders had been allowed to continue for long almost unpunished. The measures taken to suppress the prevailing anarchy were not more severe than necessary, and the country has ever since reaped the benefits of the measures so judiciously taken by Mr. Russell to ensure its future peace.

Srikara Bhanj retires

We must now turn to the affairs of Goomsur. Srikara Bhanj had continued to pay the tribute of 75,000 Rupees fixed upon his Zemindari with regularity from 1819 until 1830-1831, when he fell into arrears to the amount of 77,623 Rupees. Being unable to make any satisfactory arrangements for its liquidation, he intimated his wish to the Collector or retire from public business, and give up his Zemindari to his son Dhanunjaya Bhanj.

Dhanunjaya Bhanj was accordingly recalled from Chingleput where he had been in confinement ever since 1815, but before he arrived, the old man had changed his mind and refused to surrender the country to him. Srikara Bhanj was, however, compelled to submit, and finally retired to Jagannath in 1832 on a pension of 8,000 Rupees per annum.

Dhanunjaya Bhanj reinstated

The Zemindari was then formally made over to Dhanunjaya Bhanj for the second time, subject to the condition that he was to discharge the balance due by his father for former years. On the 9th December 1833 Dhanunjaya Bhanj bought the Surada Zemindari for 8,000 Rupees, the Zemindar having died without issue in 1830, but wilfully continued to neglect his engagements with Government.

Death of Dhanunjaya Bhanj

In 1835 the Collector, Mr. Stephenson, announced to the Zemindar that, if the arrears were not discharged within one month from the date on which the announcement was made to him, the Zemindari would be resumed agreeably to the terms of the Sanad granted to him in 1832. This the Zemindar failed to do, and retired to his stronghold at Kallada. The troops moved forward from Aska, where they had assembled pending the negotiations of the Collector with the Zemindar to induce him to submit quietly, and occupied Goomsur on the 3rd November 1835. Kallada was taken possession of on the 9th but upon the arrival of the troops at Galeri, the Zemindar's adherents opened fire upon the camp and thenceforward did all in their power to oppose their progress. Dhanunjaya Bhanj himself had fled into the Maliahs at the commencement of the operations and died there at the end of 1935. The treasure which he had taken with him was plundered by the people around him, and as it amounted to upwards of 70,000 Rupees, it served to enable his adherents to continue the disturbances. Mr. Stephenson, the Collector, had meanwhile represented to Government that the country must be completely reduced, if peace were wanted, and that some persons vested with greater powers than himself should be appointed to take the conduct of affairs in Goomsur.

Mr. Russell—again as Special Commissioner

Mr. Russell was accordingly once more selected to undertake the office of Special Commissioner, and joined General Taylor's camp in Goomsur at the commencement of 1836. The force in the field consisted of the 49th and 8th Regiments, 2 Companies of the 21st, and detachments of the 3rd and 10th Regiments together with 4 howitzers. The active advisers and supporters of Dhanunjaya Bhanj's rebellion were his illegitimate brother Brundavana Bhanj, Jagannath Bhanj, a member of the family, and Dora Bissoyi, a Bonia Khond. Besides these men there were other leaders, whom it became necessary to capture and bring to justice as open rebels. It will be sufficient here to point out the principal events of the two campaigns in Goomsur. The strongholds at Kollada, Galeri, and at Durgaprasad below the ghauts were occupied, and the country over-run in every direction. The troops occupied the positions they had gained, and by constant enterprises in which the rebel party were frequently surprised and suffered severely, compelled them to seek shelter in the distant mountains bordering on Daspalla and Nuagodo (Nyagarh).

Campaign against insurgents

On the 14th February 1836 the troops under Captain Butler ascended the ghauts for the first time, and entered the Maliah country of Goomsur in pursuit of Brundavana Bhanj and the family of the late Zemindar who were supposed to be at Udayagiri. Their object was not only to capture the members of the Raja's family, but to recover at the same time the treasure that he was known to have left behind him when he died. The troops met with some opposition from the Khonds when ascending the ghaut, but subsequently established friendly relations with the inhabitants. The Khond Chieftains, however, mindful of the rights of hospitality, still refused to deliver up the refugees.

Whilst negotiations were still pending, some men of the detachment misconducted themselves, by forcibly seizing fowls in the villages of the Khonds, and this produced a quarrel with the inhabitants, which led to the sepoys losing their lives. Instigated by Dora Bissoyi, the Maliah Chief appointed by the Zemindar, the Khonds of Goomsur first began by cutting off all small escorts, and at last ventured to attach stronger detachments under European officers.

One detachment of 35 men was attacked by the Khonds in the Kurmingia pass whilst escorting prisoners between Udayagiri and Durgaprasad, and 13 of them were killed, besides the two European officers, Lieutenant Bromely and Ensign Gibbon. This disaster would probably never have occurred, had not the two English officers been deserted by the Native officer of the detachment and most of the sepoys. Reprisals were the result, and the Khonds were soon made sensible of their inability to cope with our troops.

The insurgents had soon no place that they could rely upon as a safe retreat, and the neighbouring Zemindars of Daspalla and Nuagodo (Nyagarh) were reluctantly compelled to deliver up the rebels who had sought refuge in their territories. The approach of the rainy season, however, made it necessary to desist from further active operations. The troops was accordingly withdrawn from the Maliahs, and those not absolutely necessary to command the low country in Goomsur were marched back into cantonments in June 1836.

Dora Bissoyi

Further hostilities in Goomsur were suspended during the monsoon of 1836, but one of the chief insurgents, Dora Bissoyi, was still at large in the Maliahs, and although closely pursued upon several occasions, he had hitherto managed to escape capture. Mr. Russell determined meanwhile to detain in the low country the Bissoyis and other Chiefs who had given shelter to Dora Bissoyi, with the object of inducing them by kind treatment to serve us faithfully when hostilities were resumed. It was necessary, however, to pursue the advantages that the troops had gained, and a system of compromises, already too long pursued, was no longer to be thought of.

In November 1836 the troops commanded by General Taylor once more simultaneously ascended into the Maliah country by different passes, and entered upon the second Goomsur campaign. The operations were everywhere successful, and the losses on the part of the troops but trifling, consisting chiefly of camp followers murdered by the Khonds. A large number of rebel Chiefs took refuge in the territory of the Bod Raja who sent information of their retreat. Troops from both the Madras and Bengal sides accordingly moved simultaneously into the Bod Zemindari, and the rebels were at length put into our possession.

Peace

The insurrection was now practically at an end. Considerable numbers of the rebels have been either hanged or transported. Dora Bissoyi had escaped to the Patna Zemindari, but having obtained the promise of his life from the Commissioner of Cuttack, he came in and eventually surrendered himself. The Khonds sought for peace by putting us in possession of all the ringleaders of their tribe. None of the Chiefs, except Dora Bissoyi, remained at large, and all his relations of any note together with Sirdars and most of the peons had either been killed or taken. Dora Bissoyi himself was a wanderer, and his influence in the Maliahs had been completely broken. In the low country he had never possessed any. New Molikos (Chiefs) were installed in the place of Dora Bissoyi's late adherents, and his own office was conferred upon Sam Bissoyi of Hozagodo, who had rendered us considerable assistance in the course of the two campaigns.

Grants and Rewards

With regard to the paiks or military dependents of the Goomsur family, it was not considered advisable to put down the system found to prevail, as they were a numerous body of men, who were mostly dependent upon their service lands for a livelihood. The establishment was therefore remodelled, and grants of land were made for life to the Sirdars, Naiks, and Paiks of Goomsur, dependent upon their good conduct, and the faithful discharge of the duties of their office. Instead, however, of being confined to one or two Mutahs only, the paiks were distributed over the country. Six Sirdars were appointed, 69 Naiks, and 1,244 Paiks and over 50,000 Bharnams of land (i. e. about 10,000 acres) were made over to them at a small quit-rent.

The only Zemindar in the district who had rendered any assistance was the Raja of Atagada whose estates adjoined Goomsur. As a reward his tribute was reduced from 55,000 to 52,000 Rupees.

Effects of Russell's arrangements

The arrangements made by Mr. Russell gave great satisfaction. The Government had previously resolved to confirm the former forfeiture of the Zemindari, and the announcement was received throughout Goomsur with complacency by the people. The members of the Bhanj family, nearly all of them illegitimate, were removed from the country, and small pensions allotted to them, whilst other persons who had done good service to Government during the two campaigns were suitably rewarded. Sundara Sing, for instance, a member of the Surada Zemindar's family, was granted the village of Lanjapalle near Berhampore, upon Mokhasa tenure. The exertions of the troops throughout the campaign had been most praiseworthy in spite of their suffering considerably from fever, and the 8th Regiment had been so much weakened by it after the first campaign, that it was not considered prudent to allow the regiment to enter upon the second.

The conspicuous services rendered by Mr. Russell were publicly acknowledged by Government, and the abilily, energy, and firmness with which he had carried out all the measures adopted by him were justly commended. The system of warfare had been for the rebels to burn the villages, and force the inhabitants to desert the open country. In this way more than three-fourths of the villages in Goomsur were destroyed, and the country at the end of the war was almost depopulated.

The impression produced by Mr. Russell in the Ganjam District has been a lasting one, and his tours through the country "hanging some and transporting others", as a native letter naively puts it, were indirectly productive of the greatest advantages. The rebellions and disturbances that had been prevailing in the country, ever since we had taken possession of it in 1768, were at last effectually stamped out, and the district restored to a state of peace and security. It was only right, therefore, that the man who had done so much for the good of the country should have his name commemorated in a lasting manner. Government saw fit to locate a regiment in Goomsur and the name given to the new cantonment was that of Russellkonda or "Russell's hill." At the present day Russellkonda is the chief town of the Goomsur Taluq, and one of the pretticst spots in India.

Disturbances in Surada

It has already been stated that Surada became annexed to Goomsur by purchase in 1833. Adjoining Goomsur, the Zemindars of Surada were always considered to be more or less subject to their more powerful neighbour. At the time of the permanent settlement Koonja Sing, the reigning Chief, distinguished himself by the active aid he afforded to the public authorities in the suppression of disturbances then prevailing. The Zemindari had previously paid a yearly tribute of 5,000 Rupees, but as an acknowledgement of the Zemindar's services in 1805, Government had reduced the assessment to 2,500 Rupees. Upon the death of Koonja Sing, his widow took possession of the country. Her right was, however, disputed by other members of the family, and the Zemindari became the subject of litigation in the Civil Courts. It was finally made over by the Civil Court to Lakshmi Narayana Sing, the nephew of the last incumbent, in 1829. This individual was, however, much disliked by the inhabitants and hill people, and disturbances were at once commenced by the widow of the last Zemindar aided by the perosns of most influence in the country. The chief leaders in these disturbances were Sundara Sing, Conjan Sing, Mohana Sing and Gopi Sing. In consequence of these disturbances the Zemindari had, in the meanwhile, fallen in arrears. It was therefore determined to sell the estate by auction for the arrears due, in the hopes that Dhanunjaya Bhanj, the neighbouring Zemindar of Goomsur, would buy it, as he was supposed to be the only person likely to be able to manage it to advantage.

Surada was accordingly sold at public auction to Dhanunjaya Bhanj for 8,000 Rupees on the 9th

December 1833, but their new master proved even more obnoxious to the inhabitants than their old one. The disturbances continued, and to such an extent was the country laid waste by the rioters that, out of 69 villages which Surada had previously contained, only 9 remained in 1835, all the rest having been either burnt or abandoned. At the commencement of the first campaign in Goomsur, the Goomsur insurgents under their leader, Hattiram, had made Rogada, a small tract, subject to Surada, their head quarters, but the measures taken by the troops were so well considered that they were entirely dispersed, and were never again able to make any stand.

Surada had been repeatedly transferred to new claimants by the Civil Courts, and latterly to Dhanunjaya Bhanj by sale. In the confusion that ensued, all had taken up arms in their turn to support their pretensions, and the country had been rendered utterly desolate. The first object in view was therefore to restore confidence in order to bring back the cultivators, who in 1837 had so long deserted their fields that the traces of where they had been were scarcely visible. The Zemindari was therefore rented out at a nominal rent upon a quadrennial lease to influential persons, and upon its expiry, upon a triennial one. In six years' time (1836—1842) the revenue of the country had increased from Rs. 2,060-13-8 to Rs. 12,127-9-0.

The ancient Surada Zemindari now forms a part of the Goomsur Taluq, and is administered by a Tahsildar who resides at Russellkonda.

Since the termination of the second Goomsur campaign the Ganjam District has enjoyed for 40 years the blessings of almost unbroken peace, if not prosperity.

Famine

Owing to the failure of the crops in Goomsur in 1836, combined with the desolate state of the country from the previous disturbances, a partial famine prevailed throughout the Goomsur Taluq. Public works were authorised in 1837 for the relief of the distressed, and private charities were organised by the officers of the 17th and 43rd Regiments at Nattinga, Vishnuchakram, and Russellkonda.

Captain Campbell, an officer of experience and well acquainted with the Goomsur and Maliah country, was entrusted in 1836 with Revenue powers as the Collector's Assistant, and commissioned to raise a small Sibbandi corps of armed peons, who were disciplined and commanded by him. These were intended to check the Khonds, with whom we had for the first time been brought into contact in 1836, should they attempt to renew their former predatory incursions into the low country.

There had been bad years in 1837 and 1838, but in 1839 the season was so disastrous that the inhabitants were put to the greatest distress, and many of them emigrated, whilst cholera and other diseases carried off multitudes of those who remained. The distress was greatest in the northern taluqs of the district, but it affected all the estates in the district more or less. The south-west monsoon had been tolerably copious, but the drought that prevailed in the district after September was so severe that more than 10 per cent of the cocoanut trees in the Tirastanam withered and died from its effects.

Nomination of Governor's Agent

In the same year certain tracts in Ganjam and Vizagapatam were removed from the jurisdiction of the ordinary Civil Courts, and the Collector of Ganjam was nominated Agent to the Governor of Fort St. George, and charged with the special administration of all the ancient Zemindaries attached to the Collectorate.

Meriah sacrifice

Upon the troops penetrating into the Maliah country in 1836 the practice that prevailed amongst the Khonds of sacrificing human beings was prominently made known to Government by Mr. Russell. Instructions were issued for the suppression of these barbarous rites, and in 1845 Captain Mac pherson was appointed the first Agent for the suppression of the Meriah sacrifices under Act XXI of 1845. Large numbers of Meriah victims were rescued by the different officers of the Meriah Agency, who traversed the tracts of country inhabited by the Khonds, between the Mahanadi and Godavari rivers, in every direction, and the Agency was finally abolished on the 18th December 1861. The following are the names of the various officers who contributed to the suppression of the Meriah sacrifices throughout the Hill Tracts of Ganjam and Orissa, between 1845 and 1861, viz : Captain Macpherson, Dr. Cadenhead, Dr. Pinkney, Captain Frye, Colonel Campbell, Captain MacViccar, Captain McNeill, and Lieutenant Crawford.* The success of the Meriah Agency in effecting their object has been more especially noticed in connection with the manners and customs of the Khonds, and the Maliah country of Ganjam.

Mohiri attached and bought by Government

The reinstated Zemindar of Mohiri, who was of unsound mind and without issue, had fallen in arrears, and about the end of 1844 the estate was taken under the Collector's management. The arrears in 1850 amounted to Rs. 1,64,280-1, and Mohiri was therefore put up to auction, and bought in by Government for 100 Rupees. Pensions were at the same time allotted to the Zemindar and to the rest of his family. It is to be observed, however, that the last Zemindar of Mohiri would never have been Zemindar at all, had it not been that the Government saw fit to buy back the Mohiri estate from the Bandam family for 35,000 Rupees, and put in Krushna Chandra Narendra Deo as the legitimate son, which he was not, of Moja Deo, the illegitimate brother of a former Zemindar.

In 1852 there were some disturbances in Chinna-Kimedi or Pratapagiri in consequence of the Zemindar claiming the right of levying taxes from his tenants. The matter caused an enquiry, and the District Zemindars were expressly forbidden to levy the taxes known as Dwarabhoda or House Tax, Thiyabhoda or Standing Tax, Porodza Maguni or direct payment of the ryots to the Zemindar, besides all other extra cesses which they are precluded from levying by the terms of their Sanad-i-Milkeut-Istimrar.

Inroads of Savaras

In March and November 1853 inroads were made upon different parts of Parla-Kimedi by the Savaras, but they were quickly put down by the troops, who burnt the crops and drove off the cattle as the most efficient means of punishing them for the outrages. The Savaras were supposed to have been instigated by the Patta Mahadevi and disaffected Bissoyis of Parla-Kimedi.

Frauds in salt

In July 1854 Mr. Prendergast took charge of the district from Mr. Knox, and was engaged for a considerable time in enquiring into extensive frauds principally in the Salt Department, which there was every reason to suppose had been going on for the past nine years. As the frauds in the Salt Department had been connived at by Government servants in the Sheristadar's department, Mr. Prendergast suspended the Huzoor Sheristadar.

Disturbances in Atagada

For a long time past the Atagada Zemindar had been constantly in arrears with the payment of his Peishkush, in spite of the Government having deducted 3,000 Rupees a year, as a mark of their approbation for his good conduct during the Goomsur disturbances in 1835—1837. In 1841 the Zemindari had been sold by public auction on account of arrears amounting to Rs. 40,097-8, and bought in on account of Government for Rs. 61,000. The sale was not, however, confirmed by Government and Atagada was restored to the Zemindar. In spite of this warning, the Zemindar again fell in arrears, and in July 1851 the estate was once more sold, and bought in by the Collector for 1,00,200 Rupees. Upon the arrears being paid, with the exception of Rs. 2,466-7-10, the estate was once more restored to the Raja. When Mr. Prendergast took charge in 1854, the Zemindar was in arrears to the extent of Rs. 39,150-15-0, and as he neglected to pay the tribute it was sold by auction on the 15th July 1854. Mr. Prendergast knocked down the estate on behalf of Government though their's was not the highest bid, on the ground that the highest bidder, the Zemindar of Kallikot, had failed to pay up the prescribed deposit there and then. The Kallikot Zemindar was however, a nephew of the Atagada Raja, and upon a reference being made by him to Government they gave orders that the Atagada Zemindari should be made over to him and the amount of his bid accepted. The transfer of Atagada to the Kallikot Zemindar created a great deal of dissatisfaction throughout the country, and in November 1855 the ryots of the taluq entered into a combination amongst themselves to withhold their kists or rents from Kallikot. Upon this the Zemindar naturally appealed to the Collector of the district to interpose his authority. As Mr. Knox, the Collector, was engaged at the time in the Jamabandi of Mohiri, he deputed his Assistant, Mr. Davidson, to proceed to Boirani where the ryots were assembled, and use his influence with them to induce them to pay their kists to the Kallikot Zemindar. The ryots, some 700 or 800 in number, expressed their willingness to pay their kists to Government, but persisted in their refusal to pay their kists to another Raja than their own. After the necessary formalities Mr. Davidson placed six of the most prominent leaders under arrest, and confined them in his tent. This act so aroused the feelings of the assembled mob that there was every appearance of a serious riot ensuing, but owing to the coolness and discretion of Mr. Davidson, the people were at length prevailed upon to disperse. The ringleaders were subsequently punished for their contumacy, and the Atagada Raja was warned that he would be removed from his fort at Atagada, if any more disturbances took place in the country.

*The records of the Meriah Agency appear to have been destroyed as I have been unable to discover their existence either at the India Office in London, or in India.

Rising of the Kuttiya Khonds

A rising of the Kuttiya Khonds and several of the hill Mutahs took place in 1857, and the Khonds attacked the Agent's camp at Oorladoni, but the attack was speeedily repulsed, and five Khonds were killed, whilst a Deloyat of the Agent and two camp-followers were wounded. The Agent was accompanied by betwwen 200 or 300 Sibbandies and one company of native infantry. Two or three days later the Agent's camp was again surrounded by the reinforced Khonds who were chiefly Borikia Khonds of Kalahandi, and Khonds of the Kuttiya country. The reason for the rising was as follows : In 1855 a Meriah victim had been secretly sacrificed in the village of Kidili in the Borikia Mutah of the Kalahandi Zemindari, which adjoins the Ganjam Maliah country. For this offence, Rendo Maji, the Head of the Mutah, was arrested with his son Palaso Maji, and confined for two years at Russellkonda. In 1857 the Agent took his two prisoners in irons through the hills on his annual tour in the direction of their Mutah in hopes that it might afford a deterrent example. On reaching that part of the country it became evident that ill-feeling existed, and the Khonds of Korikiya and other Mutahs refused to come in for the customary visit (Bheto) to the Agent. The attack upon the camp followed soon afterwards as already mentioned, but through the agency of the friends of the imprisoned Majis, the insurgent Khonds were induced to come in to visit the Agent. Rendo Maji and his son were released in due course, but no punishment was apparently inflicted on the rioters.

Chokra Bissoyi

Between 1855 and 1856 there had been some slight disturbances in Goomsur where Chokra Bissoyi was the leader of gangs of robbers. He endeavoured to gain over the sacrificing Khonds to his side by promising them a renewal of the Meriah rite, which the officers of the Meriah Agency had practically put a stop to by their operations in the Maliah country.

In 1859 the Zemindar of Sergada died and was succeeded by his nephew the Raja of Bodogoda. His succession to the estate was, however, disputed by the widow of the Sergada Zamindar on the ground that her deceased husband had given her authority to adopt a son. The estate remained under the Zemindar of Bodogoda until 1872 when it was ultimately made over to the adopted son by Decree of the Civil Court.

Sayara rising under Radha Krishna Dandasena

In 1856 and 1857 there were some rather serious disturbances amongst the Savaras in the Parla-Kimedi Zemindari, headed by Radha Krishna Dandasena of Gaiba. Some 50 villages were burnt or plundered by the Savaras, but upon the troops under Captain Wilson penetrating into the Savara country, the disturbances were quickly suppressed. The villages and crops were burnt down, and Dandasena was caught and hanged as a rebel in 1857. The reprisals of the troops upon this occasion, and their penetrating into the heart of the Savara country had an excellent effect in preventing disturbances for the future. Most of the Bissoyis and Doras in Parla-Kimedi gave most efficient assistance to the troops acting independently against the rioters, and the Bobbili, Goomsur, and Vizianagram paiks were usefully employed upon the occasion.

The Great Famine

Between 1865 and 1866 a famine of the most unparalleled severity desolated the country, and slew between 10,000 and 15,000 people by actual starvation. The number of deaths reported was 10,898, but there is no doubt that the total loss of life by starvation was greatly in excess of this return, as many hundreds must have perished, of whom no account was kept. The northern part of the district suffered chiefly.

Kuttiya Khonds rise again

In November 1865, another rising of the Khonds took place in the Maliahs of Ganjam. In June 1865, the Subarnagiri Patro had contracted with Captain Stuart, the District Superintendent of Police, in common with other Patros in the Hills, to clear and open an ordinary village road through the Mahasingi District which skirts the Kuttiya country on the west. The Subarnagiri Patro received an advance of money for this purpose, and proceeded to construct the road with the aid of his subordinate Patros and the villagers of the neighbouring Uriya and Khond villages. In the absence of the Subarnagiri Patro from the spot the work was delayed, and the Khonds seem to have been dissatisfied, especially the Kuttiya Khonds, either at the allotment of work made to them by their Uriya Patros, or at the way in which they were treated. They accordingly quitted their work, and upon being recalled, they murdered the two Digalos or village watchers sent after them on the 13th November 1865 at Bollampallam, a Kuttiya village not far from Gumagur.

The murder of these two unfortunate men was the signal for a general rising of the Kuttiya Khonds, and as soon as the Subarnagiri Patro's authority had been openly resisted, the Khonds resolutely attempted to expel the Uriyas from their country. The rising was, however, chiefly confined to the Kuttiya country of the Chinna-Kimedi Maliahs and was restricted to the Mutahs of Subarnagiri, Mahasingi, and Kalahandi, the latter no being attached to the district. They burnt the Uriya villages, and murdered all Uriya or Pano inhabitants, both men, women, and children who fell into their hands, besides carrying off their property. They also attacked Tumariband where they were repulsed by the Sub Magistrate with Paiks and a few Constables. Reprisals on the part of the Uriyas soon however took place. The reinforcements of Police arrived from the plains, and Pakala Suriya Narayana Patro, the Sub- Magistrate of Udayagiri of Goomsur, at once took decisive steps to protect the inhabitants. Upon the arrival of Captain Stuart, the Superintendent of Police, and Mr. Goodrich, the Assistant Magistrate, the disturbances may be said to have terminated with the night attack on Kuripuji, when the Khonds received a lesson which taught them the wisdom of submission. By the end of 1865 the rising was over.

Fortunately the disturbances in the Hills had been confined to a somewhat isolated portion, or the consequences might have been more serious. It had, however, one beneficial effect for the Khonds, which was to draw the attention of Government to the necessity that existed for stationing European Officers in the heart of the Hill tracts, and thus securing the rude inhabitants from the oppression of their alien neighbours, the Uriya Paiks, and the Sundis or liquor sellers who live in their midst.

On the road to prosperity

Since the famine of 1865 and the concurrent disturbances in the Hill tracts, chiefly amongst the Kuttiya Khonds, the Ganjam district has, on the whole, been remarkably free from events of an untoward nature. It is sufficient to add that the district is gradually increasing in prosperity, and that it only needs a well considered scheme of irrigation, and the utilization of the Rushikulya, Vamshadhara and Langulya rivers to secure it permanently against famine and floods, so as to render it in every respect one of the finest provinces in the Madras Presidency.

THE MEMOIR ON THE GANJAM MALIAHS

In the Madràs Presidency

By

Collector and Agent to the Governor, Ganjam

PREFACE

This Memoir on the Ganjam Māliahs is taken from the manual of C.H. Mounsey, Esq.,I.C.S., and list of manuals prepared by A. Thompson, Esq., I.C.S., revised and brought up to date for the Special Assistant Agent's Division by F. A. Coleridge, Esq., I. C. S., Acting Special Assistant Agent, with additions for the whole district arranged and edited by H. D. Taylor, Esq., I. C. S., Collector and Agent to the Governor in Ganjam.

INTRODUCTORY

General

The maliahs or hill tracts are under the Divisional charge of the Principal, Senior and Special Assistant Agents and the Goomsur General Deputy Collector. The Senior Assistant Agents' agency consists of the Parlakimedi Maliahs with an area of 354 square miles, and population of 52,309 according to the Census of 1891. It contains 360 villages, of which 122 are below ghats. The Principal Assistant Agent's agency consists of the Jalantra, Budarasingi and Mandasa Maliahs with an area of 50 square miles, and population of 6,000. The General Deputy Collector, Goomsur, is in the charge of the Pondakhol Agency consisting of the Pondakhol Muttah with an area of 104 square miles, and population of 2,286, and the Adigudi and Minnajodi Muttahs of Surada Maliahs.

Extent and population of division

The division of the Special Assistant Agent comprises the Pedda Kimedi, Chinna Kimedi, Surangi, Goomsur, Bodagada, Katingia and Surada Maliahs including Korada and Ronobha. The transfer of the last two muttahs to this division from the charge of the General Deputy Collector, Goomsur, was sanctioned in G. O., No. 179, dated 3rd February 1900, published at Page 405 of the Fort St. George Gazette, dated 13th March 1900.

It has an area of 3,250 square miles and a population (at the census of 1891) of 242,058, made up of about 40,000 Sourahs, 140,000 Khonds, 25,000 Uriyas, 25,000 Panos, and 12,000 others who are chiefly artisans, headmen and Gonds.

SPECIAL ASSISTANT AGENT'S DIVISION

Taluks

The division is divided into the Taluks of Balliguda, Udayagiri and Ramagiri, with headquarters at Balliguda, Goomsur-Udayagiri and Ramgiri-Udayagiri, respectively. The Balliguda Sub-Magistrate has jurisdiction over the Surada, Katingia and Chinna Kimedi Maliahs except the muttahs of Birikot, Chendiput, Chendragiri, Raipur and the Rumsi sub-muttah of the Panigonda Muttah. These with the Bodagada, Pedda Kimedi and Surangi Maliahs form the jurisdiction of the Ramagiri Sub-Magistrate under the Special Assistant Agent.

The Pedda Kimedi Maliahs were handed over from the Senior Assistant in 1894 and Surangi Maliahs in 1898 (Vide G. Os., Nos. 2406 and 196, Judical, dated 18th November, 1893 and 2nd February 1898, respectively).

Formerly in 1873 the Ramagiri Sub-Magistrate had also jurisdiction over the Parlakimedi Maliahs, but this was found to be so inconvenient to parties and witnesses that after a few years the Parlakimedi Maliahs were excluded from his jurisdiction and attached to the Parlakimedi Taluk (Vide G. O., No. 14, Judicial, dated 6th January 1876, Paragraph 13). Another reason that rendered this transfer desirable was that the Sub-Magistrate of Ramagiri was under the control of three distinct officers, viz., the Principal, Special and Senior Assistant Agents, and the result was a dead lock.

Prior to the Khond rising in 1866 there was no Balliguda Tahsildar, but two heads of Police at Tumeribundo and Baminigam exercised magisterial powers. After the rising, this system was abolished and a head-quarters for a Deputy Tahsildar made at Balliguda (Vide G. O. No. 1440, Judicial, dated 31st October 1872), and in 1872 the officer's quarters and reserve Police lines were completed there. At the same time the Ramagiri Taluk Headquarters were fixed at Udayagiri owing to the unhealthiness of the former place, and in 1873 the taluk building was completed. From a health point of view the transfer cannot be said to have been a success, as five Deputy Tahsildars and a large number of clerks and peons have since died of fever. It has been proposed to transfer the headquarters to Chendiput or Mohono, but the advantage from a point of health is problematical, while the expense would undoubtedly be great (Vide paragraph 35 of G. O., No. 1540, Judicial, dated 3rd November 1897). The (G) Udayagiri Deputy Tahsildar's office and house were completed at this time. Prior to this the present rest-house had been built for the Junior Assistant, who was stationed there and had magisterial powers over the whole taluk and parts of the Boad Zemindary in the tributary Mahals of Orissa.

Population of Taluks

2. According to the Census of 1901 the population of the Balliguda Taluk is 104,778; of the Udayagiri 76,857; and of Ramagiri Taluk 74,397.

Natural features

3. The northern part of the division, except Chokapad Khandam, which is a plateau by itself about 1,000 feet above sea level on its eastern or Goomsur side, consists of wide, well-cultivated valleys, separated by hills covered with poor jungle; whilst on its western, or Kimedi side, it is mountainous, covered with sal forest, mostly young, and the cultivation is chiefly that of the hill slopes. This part averages some 2,000 feet above sea level, and is from north to south about 30 miles wide, and from east to west about 60 miles.

In the southern part, both on the eastern and western sides, the mountains rise to some 3,000 feet. These are the territories of the Surada and Kutiah Khonds, respectively. Between these are ridges of high land, extending some 25 miles further south, where a general level of about 1,000 feet is maintained.

Southward towards Udayagiri and Ramagiri the level rises to over 2,000 feet.

Cultivation

4. Except in the Goomsur Maliahs paddy cultivation is not extensively carried on by the Khonds; elsewhere it is chiefly in the hands of the Uriyas. The staple products of the country are turmeric, pulses, millet and oil-seeds, i.e., mustard, gingelly, niger and castor. The mohwa and mango are the most useful trees for edible products, the flowers of the former and the fruit of the latter being eaten, and are carefully preserved from the ravages of the jungle fires by first cutting away the scrub from around and under them. The Sourahs of Pedda Kimedi and Parlakimedi cultivate paddy by terracing the hill sides, and their fields show wonderful labour and ingenuity; paddy cultivation being carried on at the slopes of the valleys almost to the top of the hill ridges. Wheat is grown in the Ramagiri Taluk. Arrowroot is also grown in parts. Alum is got from the hill villages. Saffron and turmeric are very largely cultivated and despatched.

Kumeri

5. Kumeri cultivation is universal. Though great labour is spent on felling hill sides, and in Goomsur in making paddy fields out of dry land, the Khonds take little trouble in raising their crops. The result is that, except in the Goomsur Maliahs where they grow crops to sell in market for profit, we find a poverty-stricken race, possessing hardly any agricultural stock and no signs of affluence. In Kimedi, however, they are beginning to follow the example of Goomsur, and doubtless their material prosperity would much increase if some check could be devised to save them from the Uriyas and Sondis who are steadily acquiring all the wet land and utilising some of the Khonds merely as cultivators.

Character of Khonds, Panos and Uriyas

6. The character of the Khonds varies as much as their language does in different places. Where there has been much contact with the plains, it is not as favourable as elsewhere. Though exceptions will be found everywhere, as a rule they may be taken to be a bold and fitfully laborious mountain peasantry of simple, but not undignified, manners; upright in their conduct; sincere in their superstitions; proud of their position as landhol-ders; and tenacious of their rights. Everywhere but in the Kutia country are found associated with them the race of Panos, probably an aboriginal tribe. These people, often goodlooking have well-marked gypsy proclivities. "Their occupations are trade, weaving and theft. They live on the ignorance and superstition of the Khonds as brokers and pedlars, sycophants and cheats." In those parts where there are no Uriyas, they possess much influence, and are always consulted by the Khonds in questions of boundary disputes. The dominant race above ghats are the Uriyas, the descendants of immigrants of seven or eight generations back. These men came to the country either as followers of the chiefs, to whom the nominally ruling rajahs gave shares of the land as a reward for service, or to check the Khonds, or to get the chiefs, if troublesome characters, out of the way, or else they were invited by the Khonds to reside as Patros among them for the sake of helping them in their fights, or deciding their disputes.

In the south of the division in Pedda Kimedi are found the Sourahs, a hill race similar in many respects to the Khonds, but not so fine in physique though much more laborious. Neither in their customs, their weapons or their cloths do they resemble the Khonds and there is no intermarriage.

The Sourah is more docile and timid than the Khond and far less addicted to liquor. He has not the artistic battle-axes nor beads nor gay cloths of the Khond, nor does he indulge in war dances. He but rarely celebrates buffalo sacrifices to the earth god, though the custom which has replaced the old Meriah rite prevails at Nuagodo, which is in the heart of the Sourah country. He is a careful cultivator, skilled in revetment and terracing.

Works of improvement

7. During the administration of the Agency Department, the following things may be mentioned as having been done for the preservation of the public peace, the advancement of the hill tribes in civilization, and the opening out of the country:-

Division	Stations
Udayagiri (N. Division)	1. Udayagiri 2. Raikia 3. Possar
Balliguda (M. 1. Division)	4. Balliguda 5. Shubarnagiri 6. Belghur 7. Budaguda 8. Daringabadi
Balliguda (M. 2. Division)	9. Baminigam
Ramagiri (Do)	10. Nolaghat 11. Mohono.
Serango (K. Division)	12. Ramagiri 13. Udayagiri 14. Serango in Parlakimedi Maliahs

Police and Magisterial

8. A reserve force of 80 police is stationed at Balliguda and 14 police stations under four Inspectors are scattered over the country.

Sub-Magistrates with the powers of a District Munsif for settling civil disputes are stationed at Udayagiri, Balliguda and Udayagiri of the Pedda Kimedi Maliahs. Sub-treasuries also are opened at these three stations (Vide G. O., No. 556, dated 22nd March 1884, Paragraph 52).

Abkari

9. Since May 1871 until recently no Uriya or Pano had been allowed to sell or distil liquor. The Khonds themselves are not permitted to sell, but they supply their own wants, distilling a spirit from the direct mohwa flower, making a beer from the 'tsamalu' grain and drawing toddy from the sago palms which abound. In 1871 the Aska firm of Messrs. Minchin Brothers & Co. contracted to supply the Goomsur Maliahs where the caste of Uriya Sondis had been reducing the Khonds to indigence by pandering to their taste for liquor. In 1874 the system was introduced into the other maliahs, but smuggling and illicit distilling were so prevalent that in March 1883 it was abandoned. Now licences are sold by public auction to distil and sell liquor, but no liquor shopkeeper is allowed to hold land. This condition was found necessary in order to keep the Sondis in check and has to some extent stopped the alienation of Khond land into their hands and induced many of them to leave the country. A list of shops will be found in the appendix. The yearly revenue is about Rs. 16,500. Until quite recently, Khonds were, under the executive orders of Government, permitted to distil liqour on the occasion of feasts and festivals. This permission, however, appears to have been based on an erroneous conception of the law (section 28 of Act III of 1864) which permitted the manufacture of fermented liquor only on these occasions. Hence Government has, recently in July 1899 under G. O., No. 380, R., dated 17th June 1899, passed an rder withdrawing from the Khonds the permission to distil on such occasions, and this order will be gradually enforced only on complaint of the licensed shopkeepers. Act III of 1864 is still in force in the agency and not the later Act I of 1886 which is in force only in the 122 low country villages of Parlakimedi.

Roads and Markets

10. Government has opened up the country by means of markets and cart roads. The principal markets are at Tickaballi and Udayagiri in the Udayagiri Taluk and Chelligodo in the Ramagiri Taluk. Various attempts have been made at different times to start markets at Chokapad, Linepada, Sarangodo, Ramagiri-Udayagiri and Gumma; but they have always failed to attract traders. The Tickaballi market is by far the largest and weekly visited by merchants from Bispara in Boad, pack-bullock owners from Kalahandi and merchants from Bellugunta in Goomsur. It is conveniently situated near the junction of five roads and is well laid out with room to expand. There is also an important market at Rayaghada.

In G.O. No. 975, Judicial, dated 17th July 1900, Government sanctioned the levy of fees on the market site at Tickaballi at the monthly rate of 4 annas a ground of 100 square feet. In the same order the establishment of two toll-gates at Kalingia and Sankarakhole under Act VIII of 1851 as amended by Act XV of 1864 was sanctioned.

The roads of the agency may be divided into those which are available for bandies and those which are not.

Of the former the most important is the one from Kalingia to Tickaballi and so on to Bispara, this is metalled and bridged, as far as the Boad frontier, 18 miles in length.

The next most important is the one from Kalingia to Udayagiri and so via Raikia and Mahasingi bridge to Balliguda and then via Barakhoma and Mohangiri ghat into Kalahandi in Central Provinces; the total length is 70 miles. It has masonry bridges as far as Balliguda including the five-girder bridge at Mahasingi completed in 1899 and has a graded metalled ghat at Mohangiri 3 miles long. It being metalled by degrees throughout and by the end of 1900 will be completed 20 miles beyond Udayagiri. It is practicable for carts at all times of the year. It is known as the Kalipano Road.

There is an alternative route from Udayagiri to Balliguda via Sarangodo which is 2 miles shorter, 42 miles and is preferred by cart drivers, but the bridges are of wood and in the rains the river cannot be crossed at Mahasingi.

In the Ramagiri Taluk there is a well-made ghat at Taptapani by which carts can go as far as Udayagiri or Ramagiri without much difficulty except for one unbridged river. The road, however, from the foot of the ghat (Govindupur) to Digupudi, where the branch main road to the coast meets it, is still incomplete. The Puipani ghat in the dry weather is also available for bandies, though steep; it leads from Chelligodo to the plains. Besides these roads for carts there is the military road from Balliguda to Ramagiri-Udayagiri and on to Parlakimedi which runs through the heart of the agency for 120 miles. Owing to a series of ghats it is not suitable for carts. Along it lie the Police stations of Balliguda, Budaguda, Daringabadi, Baminigam, Mohono, (R) Udayagiri and in Kimedi Maliahs Serango. There is another road 40 miles long from Balliguda to Kotghur through the Kutiya country. This road is quite practicable for carts, as in 1899 the big river at Kurtimghur was bridged. At present carts do not, however, use it. In time it should be continued to Bissemcuttack, a large market in Vizagapatam Agency.

A road runs from Tickaballi via Tentuligodo ghat to Chokapad and Neddiguda which is suitable for carts but little used.

Again from Tickaballi to Udayagiri 10 miles, there is a good cart road considerably used and a fair road from Tentuligodo to Linepada, 10 miles, sometimes used by carts. There are small roads from Raikia to Deegi 6 miles, Chelligodo to Ramagiri 8 miles, and Udayagiri to Porimolo 10 miles, these are not used by carts.

Postal routes

11. A line managed by the post office runs from Balliguda to Udayagiri and so to Russellkonda.

A Maliah line runs from Balliguda to Belghur 36 miles, in 12 hours, and another from Balliguda to (R) Udayagiri in four days.

A Maliah line from (R) Udayagiri connects with the post office at Pudamari, but it is proposed to abandon this as soon as the post office opens a line from Chikaty to (R) Udayagiri. The post offices are largely used specially for money orders.

Education

12. In the matter of education attempts have been systematically made to introduce and spread it. In 1851 seven schools were founded by Captain MacViccars. In 1854 only three of these were left with a total attendence of 25; but in 1855 Captain MacDonald founded nine more. On April 1st, 1884, however, in the division, there were 1,328 children being educated, of which Government primary schools, 13 in number, educated 860; and combined system schools, eleven in number, educated 468. Of the total 1,328 girls and boys, 863 were Uriya and 465 were Khond. In 1899 there were 41 Government upper primary schools, eight lower primary schools, and 60 results grant schools, having in all an attendance of 2,700 of whom 1,600 were Uriyas, 505 Khonds, 389 Sourahs, 204 Panos, 9 Sourah girls.

There is now a steady demand for education and the schools could be considerably increased in number.

A satisfactory method of securing Khond pupils and teaching them when secured has still to be found. It would seem that an oral system of object lessons would be better suited than the present book system, both for Khonds and Sourahs.

The agency schools are directly under the Agent and his Assistants in all, but purely educational matters. There are two inspecting officers called Superintendents of the Northern and Southern Ranges with head-quarters at Russellkonda and Parlakimedi. The former supervises the Udayagiri and Balliguda taluks and the latter Ramagiri and Parlakimedi taluks in which to inspect all schools, result and salary, not less than three times a year. For educational matters, they are under the Sub-Assistant Inspectors of Russellkonda and Berhampur. They are appointed by the Director of Public Instruction in consultation with the Agent. The Agent and Divisional Officers can fine and also suspend them, but the Director of Public Instruction alone has powers to appoint and dismiss in consultation with the Agent (Vide G.O., No. 385, Educational, dated 22nd May 1891).

To enable the Divisional Officers to check the work, a tour programme is submitted, and when approved of has to be adhered to. Monthly numerical returns and a diary are also submitted, and Government has ordered the Divisional officers to inspect as many schools as possible. Taluk officers also are supposed to inspect the schools of their taluks. Once a year the Sub-Assistant Inspectors or the Assistant Inspectors have to visit the agency and conduct the results examinations. School buildings, new furniture, books and prize cloths are provided for from school contingencies allotted to the Divisional officers.

In the Northern Range there are 37 schools and in the Southern Range in the Ramagiri Taluk 12 schools containing two first-grade masters on Rs. 15, 11 second grade masters on Rs.11, 38 third grade masters on Rs. 8 and 30 fourth grade masters on Rs. 5; these masters are appointed, promoted, fined and dismissed by the Divisional Officer. In the Southern Range a system of Sourah scholarships has been introduced to encourage education amongst Sourahs.

Vaccination

13. By degrees vaccination has been introduced into the Agency, and the Khonds and hill people are now generally firm believers in its efficacy and so long as there is any fear of smallpox the vaccinators have no difficulty in the execution of their work. In 1898 the vaccination staff was thoroughly revised and now consists of a Deputy Inspector of Vaccination for the whole Maliahs on Rs. 70/- four first-class vaccinators on Rs. 16 to 20 with batta of 4 annas a day, five second-class vaccinators on Rs. 10 to 15 with batta of 3 annas a day, four third-class vaccinators on Rs. 7-8-0 to Rs. 9-8-0, and one peon with batta of 2 annas a day (Vide G. O., No. 111, Judicial, dated 18th January 1899). Of these, one first-class and one second-class vaccinator belong to Parlakimedi, and one third-class vaccinator to Mandasa, the rest are in the Special Assistant Agent's Division. First-class vaccinators have to show an outturn of not less than 100 cases a month, second-class not less than 80, and third-class not less than 60 cases. Lanoline lymp is supplied from Bangalore fortnightly to the Tahsildars and distributed by them.

The Deputy Inspector has to inspect not less than 50 per cent of all cases vaccinated, and the Special Assistant by means of the Tahsildars and his Hospital Assistant verifies them.

Vaccination has been steadily progressing; the figures for the last three years being 1896-97, 9,388; 1897-98, 16,759; 1898-99, 20,029 cases.

Kimedi Maliahs

14. The Kimedi Maliahs formerly were ruled over by the Rajah of Parlakimedi, but in 1607 the territory, which forms now the Pedda and Chinna Kimedi Maliahs, was assigned to a younger branch of the ruling family, and in 1776 this territory was again divided, the younger son obtained the China Kimedi portion, whence the names. With regard to the Katingia Maliahs which originally belonged to Bodogodo, an ancestor of the present Zamindar was appointed Tat Rajah by the Bodogodo Zemindar, the latter keeping possession of what are now the Bodogodo Maliahs.

Korada Maliahs

15. In the same way the Korada Rajah possessed the muttah of Deegi known as the Korada Maliahs.

16. Copies of the Sannads in which the various muttahs are held are attached to the appendix. None was ever granted for the Parlakimedi Maliahs.

The muttahs are held, as will be seen from the Sannads, on pure service tenure, the lands being absolutely inalienable from the office of muttahdar.

First account of Maliahs

The first authentic accounts of the Maliahs find their inhabitants semi-vassals (i. e., inferiors in cultivation, not as half-subdued subjects) of the chiefs whose territorial names they bear, except the northern half of the Goomsur Maliahs which used to belong to Boad, but which at the beginning of the century transferred its allegiance from Boad to Goomsur.

Goomsur rebellion

17. In 1836 disturbances broke out in Goomsur through the Rajah's refusing to pay his peshkash. Mr. Russell, first Member of the Board of Revenue, was appointed to the supreme control of affairs. The Rajah fled to the Maliahs with his treasuries and in February of that year (1836) the troops followed him, but, though the Khonds from rights of hospitality refused to give him up, hostilities did not commence till the sepoys through bad conduct had led the Khonds to make reprisals. Their only success was to cause the loss of two officers and thirteen men in the Kurmingia pass. The death of the Rajah at Udayagiri did not end the struggle, for a Bimiah Khond of Kullada, Dora Bissoyi, carried it on. The cold weather of 1836-37 brought it to a close, as the Khonds found that submission was their only resource, numbers of them having been shot, and many of their leaders captured, tried and hanged. Where the treasure, said to amount to Rs. 40,000, was concealed no one could be induced to reveal; and it is still said to be faithfully kept by them. Goomsur and Surada, which belonged to the Goomsur Rajah by purchase, were forfeited to Government by this rebellion, and with them the Goomsur and Surada Maliahs.

Meriah sacrifices

18. Mr. Russell's report on these events drew attention to the rite of human sacrifice known as the "meriah" which commonly prevailed above ghats. With a view to stamp this out and also for the better administration of the country, Captain Campbell was appointed Assistant to the Collector of Ganjam with especial charge over the Khonds of Goomsur and Surada. Afterwards Act XXIV of 1839 was passed, vesting the jurisdiction, civil and criminal, above ghats in the Collector as Agent to the Governor of Fort St. George. From 1836 to 1840 Captain Campbell made annually short tours above ghats, and rescued 130 victims destined for the sacrifice. In 1842 Captain MacPherson succeeded him, and between then and 1845 he had rescued 255 Meriahs, and had strenuously worked with some success towards the abolition of female infanticide—a crime prevalent in the Surada and adjacent Maliahs.

Meriah Agency

19. In 1845 at Calcutta Captain MacPherson helped to draw up the details of the scheme for the "Agency for the suppression of human sacrifice and female infanticide," which agency, with him as Agent, was established by Act XXI of 1845. The opening of the new regime was signalised by a proclamation from the Government of India to the effect that neither then nor thereafter did Government intend to levy taxes from the hill races; and that the hill chiefs, by whatever name known, would maintain all their hereditary privileges inviolate. It is on account of this proclamation that no payment of any kind is exacted from the Khonds of the Goomsur and Surada Maliahs. A quit-rent of Rs. 100, since reduced to Rs. 99-9-0, is however collected from the Oriya Paiks or inamdars of Pondakhol, having been fixed when that muttah was annexed by Government to the district and decided to form no portion of the Korada Maliahs (Vide G. O., No. 650, Judicial, dated 11th May 1870, and G. O., No. 810-A, dated 2nd October 1893). A suit for the recovery of the mutha was filed by the Korada Chief and decided against him in 1897 in the Agent's Court.

The following is a list of other payments levied from the various Patros and hill chiefs :—

In return for this privilege the hill chiefs are bound to perform bhet and certain other customary services to the Agent—services which they used formerly to rendr to their Rajahs. In 1846 in Boad, Captain MacPherson restored to the Khonds, the Boad Rajah being responsible for their safety, 170 Meriahs, whom he had in his camp. The Khonds believed that this was a signal defeat of the Government scheme, and attacked several times in Upper Goomsur the camp of the Agent as he marched down to Russellkonda.

Chokro Bissoyi's rebellion

20. They further invited Onkaru Chokro Bissoyi, a near relation of Dora Bissoyi, who had led them in 1836 as "Champion of the Meriah". They were supported by Chokapad Paiks and Bissoyis, and detachments of troops had to be scattered all over the country to keep order. Chokro Bissoyi finding himself hard pressed in the Maliahs led his followers into the plains to burn villages; and, finding but few to help him there, he set up a child as the son of the late Goomsur Rajah. This, however, only attracted to his camp lowlanders who habitually lived by plunder and violence.

21. Brigadier-General Dyce was sent to command the troops and he took a totally different view of affairs to that taken by Captain MacPherson; and within a week of his arrival expressed his opinion so strongly to the Government of India that Captain MacPherson and his assistants (Lieutenant Pinckey and Assistant Surgeon Cadenhead) were suspended, and charge of the agency was given to General Dyce, until that offieer was relieved by Colonel Campbell in 1847. The charges against the Agency officers were entirely disproved after long inquiry.

Colonel Campbell's expedition to Chinna Kimedi

22. In 1849 Colonel Campbell, who had rescued 235 victims in Boad the year before, made his first campaign in Chinna Kimedi. This country appears to have been only twice visited before by European officers, namely, Lieutenant Hill in 1838, who went for survey purposes, and by Mr. Russell before that date when he went accompanied by Colonel Campbell in a fruitless chase after Dora Bissoyi. In 1849, 206 Meriahs chiefly from Mahasingi were rescued, and since that date the Maliahs have been regularly visited. In 1853 armed opposition was met from the Tarpangia Khonds near Parighur; and 1855, from the Lunkagur Khonds, incited thereto by the above-mentioned Chokro Bissoyi, who, strange to say, was never captured.

23. Notwithstanding the steady work of the agency from 1845 onwards, five sacrifices took place in Upper Goomsur in 1855 and two in 1857; though the rite was so far believed to have been stamped out, that in 1850 the jurisdiction of the Collector of Ganjam, as Agent, had been restored there, and in 1852 the regular Police had been introduced.

The last Meriah sacrifice occurred at Solaneska on November 12th, 1852; and there are still Khonds alive who were present at it. The Khonds have now substituted a buffalo for a human being, but, in other respects, the sacrifice is conducted just as before with perhaps a little more risk to the performers as the buffalo before dying frequently kills one or more of his tormentors. This was the case near Balliguda in 1899.

Abolition of Meriah Agency

24. As Colonel Campbell retired in 1854, one of his assistants, Captain MacViccars, succeeded him for a year; and on his departure, Lieutenant MacNiel took up the duties of the office, which he held till its abolition on May 31st, 1862, the Government of India having passed a resolution of abolition in December of the previous year.

In November 1865, a general rising of the Kutiya Khonds took place, having its origin in a dispute about payment of certain road works which the Shubarnagiri Patro has contracted to execute through the Mahasingi district.

Two Digalos who were sent to order on the Khonds to work were murdered on 13th November at Bollanipello near Gunupur. This was followed by a rising of the Kutiya Khonds in general, many Uriyas and Panos being murdered by the latter.

Pakala Suryanarayana Patrudu, Sub-Magistrate of Udayagiri (Goomsur), with a few constables and Paiks kept the rebellion until the arrival of the Police under Captain Stuart with Mr. Goodrich from the plains, and the Khonds were finally reduced to subjection by the close of the year.

Retransference of Goomsur and Surada Maliahs to agency

25. In 1866 all agency tracts below ghats which included Goomsur and Surada were retransferred to the ordinary jurisdiction of the Collector, but of these Korada, Ronobha, Pondakhol and the Chokapad Khandam of Goomsur were in 1869 again placed under the Agency department. A light assessment had in the meantime been levied in Chokapad, which still exists and yields about Rs. 2,000 per annum.
