KAMRUP

INTRODUCING THE DISTRICT

The district of Kamrup with an area of 3849·3 sq. miles has two subdivisions, Gauhati and Barpeta, with their headquarters at Gauhati and Barpeta. Gauhati subdivision consists of the thanas of Barama, Rangia, Nalbari, Hajo, Kamalpur, Gauhati, Palasbari, Chhaygaon and Boko; Barpeta consists of Sorbhog, Patacharkuchi, Barpeta and Tarabari thanas. The district has 4 towns, Gauhati, Nalbari, Palasbari and Barpeta, which are the headquarters of their respective thanas. The district headquarters are at Gauhati, situated on the south or left bank of the Brahmaputra.

PHYSICAL ASPECTS

The district is bounded on the north by Bhutan, on the east by the districts of Darrang and Nowgong, on the south by Khasi Hills and Mikir Hills and on the west by Goalpara. Kamrup is divided into two parts by the mighty Brahmaputra, which intersects it throughout its entire length. Its greater part consists of a wide plain, greatly broken up by hills in the south. There are no high mountains in the district proper, but there are some hills which form an integral part of the Assam Range being over 3,000 feet in height. North of the Brahmaputra, the plain of Kamrup falls roughly into three sections. In places and more especially in the neighbourhood of Gauhati, the river flows between high banks, which are only over-topped by a heavy flood. In the western part of the district a belt of marshy country which is subject to inundation in the rains, lies on either side of the cold weather channel. The soil of this flooded tract is covered by a dense growth of reeds and grasses, absolutely impenetrable to a man on foot. The central portion of the district is a densely populated plain, covered, as far as the eye can reach, with fields of waving rice and dotted over with the groves of graceful bamboos, which conceal the houses of the cultivators. The land is beyond the reach of floods, with little of marsh or forest. This densely populated tract, does not, however, stretch right up to the Bhutan Hills. Bushes and garden crops do not thrive in the Kachari Duars.

Rivers: Kamrup is intersected by numerous rivers and streams all of which issue from or flow into the Brahmaputra, which is the only river navigable throughout the year by steamer or large cargo boats. At Gauhati, it is confined between rocks and hills in a comparatively narrow channel, but even here the breadth of the telegraphic wire across the river, measure from post to post is 1.45 miles. Lower down, the river spreads itself during the rains over the marshy country on either hand, and, when in flood, the distance from one high bank to the other is very great. Between the main banks, there is a wide sandy strath in which the river oscillates from side to side, throwing out here and there divergent channels, which, after a time, rejoin the parent stream or may be silted up. The waters of the river are heavily surcharged with suspended matter and the smallest obstruction in the current is liable to give rise to an almond-shaped chapari, but the next flood may wash these chapari s away or may only increase their size by fresh deposits of sand, covered with reeds and jungle grass in a few seasons. These operations of alluvium and dilivium are continually being carried on in a gigantic scale by the Brahmaputra.

The principal tributaries of the Brahmaputra on the north bank are the Manas and the Barnadi. They originally formed the boundaries of Kamrup to the west and east ; originally, because, like so many of the rivers in Assam, they have more than once changed their courses and wandered away from their former channels. The Manas, which takes its rise in the Bhutan Hills, has only a small portion of it in Kamrup, the rest being largely in the neighbouring district of Goalpara, and ultimately, after receiving several small tributaries, falls into the Brahmaputra opposite to the town of Goalpara. The Barnadi, like the Manas, rises in the Bhutan Hills and also follows its evil example of changing its channel from time to time, so that it no longer invariably forms the boundary between Kamrup and Darrang. After following a southerly course, it empties itself into the main stream of the Brahmaputra. There are numerous other rivers that issue from the Bhutan Hills, but most of them are small and unimportant. Between the Barnadi and the Manas, there is a complicated network of shallow streams, which meander over the plains and ultimately find their way into the Brahmaputra, most of them being first collected either in the Pagladiya or the Chaulkhoa. The latter flows east and west and falls into the Manas a little above its confluence with the Brahmaputra. The Pagladiya is a river which, as its name implies, has been a continual source of trouble. It rises in the Bhutan Hills and ultimately finds its way into the Chaulkhoa, but it seldom remains in the same bed and in the course of its vagaries, it has more than once converted valuable rice fields into swamp or what is even worse, a stretch of arid sand.

Other rivers useful for the purposes of trade are (1) the Puthimari which falls into the Barnadi, (2) the Baralia, (3) the Kaldiya which passes through Patacharkuchi and falls into the Chaulkhoa, (4) the Sessa, (5) the Kalajal, (6) the Pohumara.

Nearly all these rivers flow on sandy beds along shallow channels and, as a result, they not unfrequently, shift their courses. Many of them, when they first debouch upon the plain, vanish into the earth and only reappear again at some little distance from the hills. This shifting of the river courses and dissemination of the drainage is a phenomenon which is seen to some extent in Goalpara and Mangaldai, but in no district is it found in so pronounced a form as in Kamrup.

Lakes and Marshes: There are numerous bils and marshes in Gauhati, but no lake of any considerable size. These bils are generally shallow sheets of water, which collect in the centre of a saucer-like basin. One of the largest and best known of all is the Dhipor bil, about 6 miles west of Gauhati, a pretty and picturesque piece of water.

Geology: The hills are, for the most part, formed of gneissic rocks, from which excellent building stone could be obtained. The plain is of alluvial origin and consists of sand and clay in varying proportions, ranging from pure sand near the banks of the Brahmaputra to a blue clay so stiff as to be utterly unfit for cultivation. Surface lime was discovered over a small area at the foot of the Bhutan Hills.

Climate: The climate of Kamrup does not differ materially from that of the other districts of Central Assam. Its principal characteristics are a cold and foggy winter, a moderately cool spring, but a fairly temperate but very humid summer. In March and April, the weather begins to grow a little warmer in comparison with Dibrugarh but cold enough in comparison with Upper India. During the height of the rains, the climate is decidely oppressive. The air is absolutely saturated with moisture and the damp heat is very trying indeed.

Rainfall: In the central portion of Kamrup, the rainfall is, as for Assam, comparatively low. At Gauhati, it is only about 65 inches in the year, but as we approach the hills on either side of the valley, the rainfall gradually increases. Barpeta gets an average rainfall of 82" in the year. The end of March produces heavy showers. The hot dry weather of Upper India is completely absent and, in April and May, the rainfall is so heavy that it might easily be imagined that the monsoon had broken.

Storms and Floods : Kamrup is seldom visited by violent and destructive storms, though an interval of dry weather in the rains is often closed by a thundershower which at once relieves the oppressiveness of the atmosphere and is thus extremely welcome. The country lying on either side of the river is exposed to injury from floods.

Earthquakes : Kamrup, like the rest of Assam, has always been liable to earthquakes, but all disturbances of which there is any record were nothing in comparison with the terrible cataclysm of June 12, 1897. This earthquake was felt over an area of 1.75 million sq. miles, from Rangpur on the north-east to Kangra on the north-west, from the Himalayas to Masulipatam, and serious damage was done to masonry buildings over an area of 0.145 million sq. miles. The area of maximum disturbance was a tract of country of the shape of a cocked hat, whose base line ran from Rangpur to Jaintiapur, while the top of the crown was near Barpeta. The shock occurred at Gauhati a little after 5 p.m. on June 12, and was so violent that nearly every masonry building in the town was wrecked. The roads cracked up as ice breaks up on the setting in of a thaw. In many parts of the district, the fields were covered with water or deposits of sand. The ordinary drainage channels were choked, the beds of the rivers were raised and town of Barpeta, which was built upon a comparatively low ground was at once submerged. The Subdivisional Officer, Barpeta, had to take up residence in and transact public business from countryboats. Countryboats became in fact the kutchery, the treasury and the Barpeta Jail ! The actual loss of life was comparatively small and only 29 deaths were directly attributed to the earthquake, but the damage done to cultivation was considerable, owing to the choking up of drainage channels and the disturbance of the level of the country. The Great Earthquake of 1950 left the district comparatively undisturbed.

Fauna : Wild animal includes elephants, rhinoceros, bison, buffaloes, tigers, leopards, bears, wild pigs and different kinds of deer—the swamp, the sambar, the hog, the spotted and the barking deer. Elephants are fairly common especially near the hills and when the crops are ripening, do much damage unless the numbers of the herds are regularly kept down by mela shikar operations. Rhinoceros live in the swamps that fringe the Brahmaputra and the Manas, but now becoming very scarce. They breed slowly and as the horn is worth more than its weight in silver and the flesh prized as food, they present a tempting mark to the hunters. Steps have been taken to preserve the game in North Kamrup or Manas Sanctuary. Small game consists of hares, peacocks, wild fowls, herons, wild geese, wild ducks of various types, patridges, floricans, and pheasants. All the rivers, lakes and marshes are leased out as fisheries on behalf of Government. The ruhi, the chittal and the pithiya, are among the principal varieties of fish available in the district.

FORESTS

There are about 430 square miles of Forest Reserves in the District and about 1,300 square miles of Unclassed State Forests, the latter of which is simply unsettled land at the disposal of Government with or without tree growth. There are also probably about 15 to 20 square miles of Forest land owned by proprietory Estates. Proposals for constitution of another about 50 square miles as Forest Reserves are being submitted.

The forests are situated on both banks of the Brahmaputra. On the north bank of the Brahmaputra, the forests, with the exception of a few square miles situated isolated among villages, occur mainly as strips about 10 to 15 miles in width along the Bhutan Himalayas from the Manas river on the west to the Barnadi on the east. On the south bank of Brahmaputra forests occupy the ridges, foot-hills and high land projections of these hills into the plains of the outlying ranges of the Khasi Hills.

The north bank forests contain principally Sissoo (Dalbergia Sissoo) Khoir (Acacia Catechu) Kuhir (Bridelia retusa) Simul (Bombax malabaricum) Koroi (Albizzia procera) and scattered Gomari (Gmelina arborea) among useful species. There are a few Bonsum (Phoebe goalparensis) and Titasopa (Michelia champaca) trees along the boundary between Bhutan and Assam. There are also three Forest Reserves on the north bank namely the Aigyathuri, Hajo and Sildhar Hill Forest Reserves which also contain Sal (Shorea robusta). Much of the land in the forost reserves is occupied by high land grasses, and these areas are being slowly planted up with useful species by the Forest Department.

The predominant species in the Forest Reserves of the south bank is Sal (Shorea robusta) which along the foot of the Khasi Hills and its lower slopes grow under optimum conditions, being almost pure.

The forests of the district yield annually an income of Rs. 6 lakhs approx, principally from the species Sal, sold in the form of logs to the Pakistan purchasers, the form of sleepers to the Eastern Group, Sleeper Control and in the form of posts and sawn timber for consumption within the district and in the neighbouring district of Nowgong.

The district contains the oldest Teak plantation in the State and one of the oldest in India, at Kulsi, the plantation having been created as early as 1872. The growth of Teak in plantations in the District has been found to be excellent and the Forest Department has been creating such plantations annually, there being over 1,500 acres of such plantations at present in the district.

There is one Wild Life Sanctuary, namely, the North Kamrup Wild Life Sanctuary in this district situated east of the Manas river with an extent of over 100 square miles. There are estimated to be over a hundred rhinoceroses in this Sanctuary as well as some good herds of wild buffalo and swamp deer. Bison, wild elephants and tigers also occur in fair numbers in this Sanctuary. Proposals for construction of an Inspection Bungalow at Phulguri, a place of great scenic beauty inside the Sanctuary as well as for creation of Wild Life observation towers and improvement of the main approach road from the Fatimabad Tea Estate north of Barpeta Road Railway Station, are receiving Government attention. Among other interesting spots inside the Forests should be mentioned the Sandubi Bheel, an inland lake about 2 miles long and about a quarter of mile broad at its widest, situated about 35 miles from Gauhati towards Lohargha' formed as a result of the 1897 earthquake and the water fall along the Kopili stream near Ranigudam.

The Forest Department has created over 2,000 acres of plantations, principally of teak, in the district and has over 4,000 acres of sal forests under intensive regeneration under a technique which has been attracting considerable attention from Foresters all over North India and elsewhere. There are about 1600 acres of Forest Reserve land under cultivation by Forest villagers who number 700 adults.

HISTORY

The district of Kamrup originally formed part of the kingdom of Kamrupa, which at one time is said to have included part of North-Eastern Bengal and the whole of the Brahmaputra Valley. Narak's name, mentioned in the Yogini Tantra, is still remembered as one of the first protectors of Kamakhya and the builder of the causeway up the southern face of the hill Nilachal, on which the temple of Kamakhya stands. His son Bhagadatta is mentioned in the Mahabharata as fighting on the side of the Kauravas at the great battle of Kurukshetra. For many centuries, the history of the district is involved in great obscurity. It seems probable that the line of Narak was displaced by a Bodo chief who was subsequently driven eastwards to the valley of the Dhansiri. In 640 A. D., Hiuen-tsiang visited Assam and the record of his travels affords a momentary glimpse of the conditions of the country. The country seems to have advanced some distance on the path of civilisation. The soil was deep and fertile, the towns surrounded by moats, the people fierce in appearance but upright and studious. Hinduism was the national religion, and, though Buddhism was not prohibited, its milder tenets had comparatively few followers.

The evidence afforded by the Copper Plates which have been discovered in Kamrup, Nowgong and Darrang, suggests that the Pala Kings who reigned over Kamrup in the 11th century A. D. were powerful princes. After the disappearance of the Palas, of whose subsequent fate we know but little the next dynasty of whom we have any certain record, is that of the Koches, founded by a Mech named Viswa Singh. He was succeeded in 1534 A. D. by his son Malla Deva who assumed the name of Nara Narayan (1534-1584 A. D.). His reign represents the zenith of the Koch power. He received the submission of the Ahom king, the Kachari Raja and the Raja of Manipur and conquered and slew the kings of Jaintia, Tippera and Sylhet. Thereafter, Nara Narayan tried to conquer Gaur but failed. Nara Narayan refused to accept this defeat as final and a few years later, joined with the Emperor Akbar in a second attack upon Gaur. This enterprise was crowned with success and Gaur was divided between Akbar and the Koch king. The decline and fall of the Koch Kingdom, which had attained to an extraordinary height of prosperity and power within the space of two generations, was as rapid as its rise, on account of the division of the kingdom between Nara Narayan's son and nephew. This division enabled the Muslim Subedar of Bengal to establish suzereignty over both the divisions of the former Koch kingdom. When one of the claimants sought the intervention of the Ahoms, they too were defeated and driven out of Kamrup and Gauhati became the capital of the Muslim Governor. However, in 1658, the Ahom Raja Joydhwaj Sing took advantage of the disputes amongst the claimants to the throne of Shah Jahan, marched down the valley of Brahmaputra and drove the Muslims and his former allies, the Koches, alike before him. The new Subedar of Bengal, Mir Jumla, however, was not the man to brook this unprovoked aggression. In 1662, he led a powerful expedition for the conquest of the Assam Valley. The Ahoms offered no resistance to him in Kamrup. Gauhati was occupied without the loss of a single man and a Mohemmadan Fouzdar was posted there. Mir Jumla continued to march up the valley and even entered Gargaon, the capital of the Ahoms. The later history of Mir Jumla's expedition is not unlike that of Napolean's ill-fated eruption into Russia and rain and fever did for the Ahoms what frost and snow did for the Russians. After March, tha rains broke out, converting the country into one huge swamp, making military operations impossible. Sickness broke out among the soldiers. The commencement of the cold season enabled the Muslims again to resume offensive operations. The determination of Mir Jumla's followers not to remain another rainy season in Assam was so strong that he patched up a peace with the Ahoms and retreated down the valley of the Brahmaputra. Mir Jumla himself did not survive the failure of his expedition and died on the river about a mile from Dacca. The unfortunate town of Gauhati continued to be the sport of the contending powers, the Ahoms and the Muslims. After a stormy period, it was finally captured by Gadadhar Sing in 1681 A. D. In the short space of 50 years, Gauhati was occupied by hostile forces no less than 8 times and this continual taking and re-taking of the town must have been frought with the utmost misery for its inhabitants. From this time onwards, Kamrup became part of the Ahom territories and was administered by a Viceroy who was stationed at Gauhati.

Early Muslim Invasion : It should be noted, however, that prior to the final invasion of Assam by Mir Jumla in 1662, Assam was already invaded by Bakkhtiyar Khilji after the latter's conquest of Bengal in 1203 A. D. He was followed by Giyasuddin Bahadur Shah who is said to have advanced as far as Sadiya in 1220 A. D. In 1256 Ikhtiyar Uddin Yuzbak Tughril Khan invaded Kamrup. The first was compelled to retire without annexing any portion of the Brahmaputra Valley as the difficulties of the country proved insuperable. The second, though unsuccessful at first, was also defeated and driven back to Gaur. The third one's triumph was of very short duration. The rains and fever took their toll once again and only a few returned to Bengal to tell of the destruction of his army, the General himself and most of his followers being killed by the Assamese. He was followed by Muhammad Shah who, in 1337 A. D., sent "one lakh horsemen well-equipped to Assam, but the whole army perished in that land of witchcrafts and no trace of it was left" ! (Alamgirnama). In 1506, Turbuk marched up the Assam Valley gaining a victory over the Ahom troops ; he met with less success in his second invasion of Assam and was defeated and killed in a bloody battle in the Bhareli in 1532. Twenty one years later, Kala Pahar, a Hindu apostate made a moranding expedition into the Valley, and attempted to demolish the temples at Kamakhya and Hajo. A fanatical zeal for the propagation of his new religion seems to have been his guiding motive and no attempt was made to permanently annex new territory to the Mughal Empire.

The Ahoms: The Ahoms were a Shan tribe from the kingdom of Pong in the Upper Valley of the Irrawaddy, who, at the beginning of the 13th century A. D., crossed the Patkai and settled in the south of the territory which now form the districts of Sibsagar and Lakhimpur. They first overthrew the Chutia kingdom at Sadiya and afterwards the Kachari kingdom at Dimapur. At the beginning of the 17th century, the Ahom kings began to intervene in the affairs of Lower Assam. We have already seen their struggles with the Muslims for the possession of Gauhati. Gadadhar Sing was the first king to definitely annex Kamrup to the Ahom territories but the zenith of their power was reached in the reign of his successor Rudra Sing (1695-1714). When he died at Gauhati in 1714 A. D., his son erected the Rudreswar Temple in memory of the sad event, which still stands on the north bank of the river opposite to Gauhati. From the middle of the 18th century the Ahom power began to decline. Lakshmi Sing's reign (1769-1780) was signalised by the outbreak of the Moamaria insurrection. After initial successes, the Moamarias were defeated and very cruelly dealt with. He was succeeded by his son Guari Nath (1780-95) in whose reign the Moamaria insurrection brought out anew with increased violence. At first the king's troops met with some measure of success and orders were issued outlawing the rebels and authorising any person to kill any Moamarian he might meet. According to the Ahom Chroniclar, "the villagers there upon massacred the Moamarians with their wives and children without mercy". The rebels in their turn were not slow to make reprisals; they plundered the country on every side and "the burning villages appear like a ball of fire". The ordinary operations of agriculture were suspended, no harvest could be raised and famine killed those whom the sword had spared. "The price of a katha of rice raised to one gold mohur and men starved in crowds under the trees, forsaking their wives and children." In 1786, the Moamarian rebels under Bharat Sing inflicted a decisive defeat upon royal troops and took the capital Rongpur by storm. Soon after, Gouri Nath died and was succeeded by his son Kamaleswar Sing, in whose reign the country remained in a state of great disorder, due chiefly to the attacks of the Daflas. He was succeeded by his brother Chandra Kanta Sing in 1809. The Bor Phukan or Viceroy of Gauhati incurred the suspicion of the Bor Gohain or Prime Minister and fled to Burma via Calcutta. At the beginning of 1816, the Burmese army crossed the Patkoi, re-instated the Bor Phukan; but shortly after their withdrawal, Chandra Kanta was deposed and Purandar Singh appointed in his stead. The banished monarch appealed to the Burmese, who, in 1818, returned with a large force and replaced him on the throne. They soon, however, made it clear that they intended to retain their hold in Assam. The Burmese were guilty of gross atrocities during their occupation of the country, burning and plundering villages. Assam, groaned under the oppression and lawless tyranny of the Burmese, whose barbarous and inhuman policy depopulated the country of its more than one half of the population, which had already been thinned by successive civil wars and Moamaria insurrections. Chandra Kanta fled to Goalpara and from British territory began a series of abortive attempts to recover his lost kingdom. In the mean time, however, causes of quarrel arose between the British and the Burmese and in 1824 war was declared by British Government and a force sent up the Valley of Brahmaputra. The Burmese evacuated Gauhati without striking a blow, such fighting as there was taking place in the districts of Sibsagar and Nowgong. Rongpur was occupied in 1825 and in the following year, by the treaty of Yandaboo, Assam was ceded to the East India Company. The above is but a brief account of the rise and fall of the Ahoms. When Assam was created a separate province under a Chief Commissioner, the headquarters of the new administration was shifted to Shillong from Gauhati, which enjoyed at that time a very evil reputation for unhealthiness.

The next historical event with which Kamrup is connected is the Bhutan War of 1864, which resulted in the occupation of Dewangiri. The subsequent history of the district is uneventful.

POPULATION

The population of Kamrup at the present census has come up to 1,490,392 which is an increase of 226,192 over its 1941 population of 1,264,200. Kamrup is now the most populous of all districts in Assam, a position which it first attained in 1931 by displacing Sibsagar and retained in 1941. Though this increase is very large indeed, in fact larger than that registered by any other district except 237,883 of Nowgong, it is still far below the tremendous increase of 287,545 shown by Kamrup in the decade 1931-41, which was the largest increase ever shown by any district of Assam during any of the last five decades, nay, in fact during the entire recorded census history of Assam. Ignoring the displaced persons who contributed 42,871 to this increase, the nett increase comes only to 183,321, which is less than the increase registered during the previous decade by more than one lakh. The rate of percentage increase for Kamrup works out at 17.89 for 1941-51 against 29.43 in 1931-41. In terms of mean decennial growth rate these percentages will be reduced, 24.49 and 25.65 respectively for the same periods. During the two previous decades, Kamrup registered a higher percentage rate of increase than any other district except Nowgong, but during the last decade it is surpassed not merely by Nowgong but Cachar, Darrang and Lakhimpur as well in this respect.

The density of Kamrup has exactly doubled itself in the last 30 years, from 198 in 1921 to 387 in 1951. The density has increased by 59 per square mile during the last decade. Looking at the district as a whole, the most thickly populated area is in the centre, around Nalbari, where the density is as high as can be found anywhere else in any purely agricultural country of the world. The upper Barbhag mauza which has an area of 23.6 sq miles has a density of 1,319 persons to the square mile and two other mauzas, Bansjani and Khata, have densities of 1,101 and 879 and over—figures quite astonishing for Assam.

At the present census, Gauhati subdivision has increased by 17.4% as against 22.46% in the previous decade, while the percentage increase for Barpeta subdivision in these two decades is 18.77 and 44.06% respectively. It appears that the hey-day of population growth of Barpeta revealed by the last three previous decades is over when Barpeta showed a rate of growth very much larger than Gauhati. In the present census, the rate of increase of Gauhati subdivision has almost caught up with that of Barpeta and is now only 1.5% less than that of the latter. The density of Gauhati subdivision is 367 at the present census, as against 313 in the previous one, compared with 430 and 362 of Barpeta during the same period.

The highest increase during the last decade has been recorded by Gauhati thana, which is as high as 61%. That this in not due to the growth of the town of Gauhati is clear when we consider the break-up of this increase by rural and urban areas. Gauhati town has increased by 47.4% only, whereas Gauhati thana rural, omitting the town, has increased by an even higher rate than that of the thana as a whole, viz. 693%, This thana alone accounts for an increase of nearly half a lakh of persons (47,380 to be exact), to which the displaced persons alone have contributed a figure of 13,215, not taking into account the number of refugees present in the town of Gauhati. Tarabari 35'8, Barpeta 25.1, Boko 26.6 and Barama 18'1 are among those who have registered a high percentage rate of increase. The lowest increase is shown by the thanas of Nalbari (4.7), Sorbhog (4.8), Hajo (11.8) and Rangiya (12.1). The rural tracts of Barpeta and Tarabari thanas contain a refugee population as large as 8,850, whereas Sorbhog and Patacharkuchi account for another large slice of 5,432. Rangiya's rate of growth is so low as 12.1 in spite of the fact that it received 3,878 refugees within its fold. As a result of these varying increases, the density of Barpeta thana now stands at the high figure of 629, Kamalpur 574, Patacharkuchi 417 and Gauhati 408, all surpassed by Nalbari with its 866, one of the highest densities of any thana in Assam. Boko thana has as in 1941, the least density of 166 in the district, the second lowest, being that of Rangiya 295, followed by Chhayagaon 316, Palasbari 320 and Sorbhog 323.

Looking at the district as a whole the most thickly populated area is in the centre, around Nalbari, whereas the area of the lowest density is in the north-east (Rangiya) and south-west Boko (166) and Chhayagaon (316). As a rule, the portion of the district on the south bank of the Brahmaputra with the exception of Gauhati thana has a lower density than the portion on the north bank.

Subsidiary Table I (i) shows that no part of the district has a density below 150 per square mile, whereas only 10.67% of its area with 4.57% of its population has a density below 200 As much as 70.54% of its area and 62.25% of its population are within the middle density group of 200-450. 18.89% of its area inhabited by 33.80% of its population has a density higher than 450, out ofwhich only 5.18% of the area consisting of Nalbari police station falls in the highest density group of 750 and over. This is an improvement on the position of the district in 1941 when no part of the district had a density of less than 100 or between 150-200 or higher than 600. Boko with its 10.66% of the area of the district was yet in the density group 100-150 and had not yet swept itself over the next higher group of 150-200 which it has done in 1941. Kamrup does not show such wide contrast between the spread of population within its different areas as shown for example by Goalpara. Like all other districts of Assam, the largest percentage both of its area (57.67%) and population (52.55%) falls in the density group 300-450. These percentages are much higher than that of Goalpara, 31.52 and 38.70, though lower than that of its another neighbour Darrang which has 60.23% of its area and 67'95% of its population in the same density group.

The very large fall in this percentage increase between the last decade and the two decades previous to the last requires little explanation. The public health of the district was fairly good during the decade except an outburst of cholera epidemic which accounted for the death of 1,184 persons in 1942-43 in Barpeta subdivision. There was also smaller epidemics in 1941-42 and 1948-49 accounting for a total death of 472 and 410 persons respectively. The extraordinary increase in the population of the district in previous decades was due to the immigration of Mymensighas, especially in the Barpeta subdivision where they have filled up large areas of waste lands and swamps near the Brahmaputra river. More than one-third of the record increase registered by the previous decade in this district was due to immigration which was responsible for the extremely high increase of 58.9% in Barpeta thana. Immigration did continue to some extent even in the present decade and would have been responsible for a larger rate of increase but for the reverse stream of emigration of displaced Muslims on account of the widespread communal disturbances in Barpeta subdivision and other parts of Kamrup as well during the early part of 1950. The Table given below throws some light on the extremely moderate increase registered by Sorbhog, Nalbari, Rangiya as well as Barpeta. But for the refugees, the decrease in the stream of East Bengal immigrants coupled with the reverse stream of emigration of displaced Muslims would have produced a still lower percentage increase for this district.

INTRODUCING THE STATISTICS

In the past, village statistics for each district used to be printed after the Census, giving the population of each village and showing the distribution of communities and of literate persons. In view of the importance of the 1951 Census, at which in addition to the usual population data, valuable information was collected concerning the social and economic life of the people, it was decided to publish a District Census Handbook containing the more important Census abstracts and tables.

The Primary Census Abstract gives the details of each village by the 8 Livelihood Classes. There are five general population tables of the 'A' Series, three economic tables of the 'B' Series, five household and age (sample) tables of the 'C' Series, seven social and cultural tables of the 'D' Series and one table 'E' giving summary figures for the district and tahsils. As far as possible, these tables furnish district data with break-up for Census tracts within the district.

At the 1951 Census, the economic classification was substituted for the classification based on religion. The people have been divided into two broad livelihood categories, namely, the agricultural classes and the non-agricultural classes. There are four agricultural classes defined as below :—

I. Cultivators of land wholly or mainly owned and their dependents

II. Cultivators of land wholly or mainly unowned and their dependents.

III. Cultivating labourers and their dependents.

IV. Non-cultivating owners of land, agricultural rent receivers and their dependents.

There are similarly four non-agricultural classes defined as persons including dependents who derive their principal means of livelihood from :—

V. Production other than cultivation.

VI. Commerce

VII. Transport

VIII. Other services and miscellaneous sources.

The above eight classes have been referred to as livelihood classes.

Each of the above eight livelihood classes has been divided into three sub-classes with reference to the economic status as below :—

(i) Self-supporting Persons ;

(ii) Non-earning Dependents ; and

(iii) Earning Dependents.

(i) A 'Self-supporting Person' is one who earns an income in cash or kind sufficient at least for his own maintenance.

(ii) A 'Non-earning Dependent' is a person who has no income of his own either in cash or in kind.

(iii) An 'Earning Dependent' is a person who earns a regular (not casual) income not sufficient even for his own maintenance. It includes seasonal income also.

All self-supporting persons are, ordinarily, economically active. But there are certain classes and groups which constitute an exception to this rule. These are mentioned below :—

(i) All self-supporting persons of Agricultural Class IV,

(ii) The following groups of self-supporting persons who are included in Non-Agricultural Class VIII, and derive their principal means of livelihood from miscellaneous sources (otherwise than through economic activity) :—

(a) Non-working owners of non-agricultural property,
(b) Pensioners and remittance holders,
(c) Persons living on charity and other persons with unproductive occupations, and
(d) Inmates of penal institutions and asylums.

Economically active persons engaged in industries and services are classified in economic table B-III into the ten divisions and 88 subdivisions mentioned above, and are further divided into three sections, namely :—

(i) Employers,
(ii) Employees, and
(iii) Independent Workers.

A person should be treated as an 'Employer' only if he has necessarily to employ any person in order to carry on the business from which he secures his livelihood, provided that employee is regularly employed and derives his Principal Means of Livelihood by such employment. Part-time or casual employment which does not provide the Principal Means of Livelihood of the employee should not be taken into account. A person employing a cook or other servants for domestic services is not an employer.

An 'Employee' is a person who ordinarily works under some other person for a salary or wage in cash of kind, as the means of earning his livelihood. Managers, Superintendents, Agents etc. and all Government servants should be recorded as employees only even though they may have power of employing or appointing subordinate officers or assistants.

An 'Independent Worker' means a person who is not employed by anyone else and who does not employ anybody else in order to earn his livelihood.

The Age (Sample) tables were prepared from the original enumeration slips by taking a ten-per-cent sample in accordance with the following instructions of the Registrar General, India.

The 'D' Series social and cultural tables include Table D-V relating to the displaced persons giving particulars about their arrival into India. Table D-VI gives details of the non-Indian Nationals and Table D-VII is designed to show the distribution of educated man-power among the different livelihood classes.

Important population data for the district and the tahsils have been summarised in Table 'E' which also gives the classification of the people by livelihood classes.

The main Report of the 1951 Census for the States of Assam, Tripura and Manipur will be found in two parts entitled "Census of India 1951—Volume XII—Assam, Manipur and Tripura". Part I contains an analysis of the statistics collected and Part II statistics arranged in different tables for the States, their natural divisions and districts.

In addition to these Volumes there are National Registers of Citizens prepared for every village and ward and maintained in manuscript giving important census details for each person. These registers are preserved as permanent records in the district headquarters.

From the data collected at the Census of the Small-scale Industries, three tables were prepared which are included in the District Census Handbook, giving village or wardwise distribution of small-scale industrial establishments, employment in textile establishments for Census tracts and employment in non-textile establishments for the same tracts.

While the accuracy in respect of the details actually recorded by the Enumerators during the Census of the small-scale Industries has been reported to be good, the District Officers were of the view that there was tendency towards under enumeration of the establishments, due to the failure of the enumerating staff to make intensive efforts to discover all establishments within the areas allotted to them. The figures in the tables for the small-scale Industries should, therefore, be regarded as illustrative of the nature of small industries prevalent in the different parts of the district and should not be relied upon as giving accurate number of specific type of establishments in different localities.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR TABULATION OF VILLAGE NOTES

The important information for every village was separately recorded on printed forms and has been incorporated in columns 3 and 4 of Primary Census Abstract using the symbols given below :—

1. Floods—"F" if it is liable to flood of any category.
2. Epidemics—For entries like Cholera, Small-pox, Kala-azar, Malaria, write Ch, Sp, Ka or Mal. For all other epidemics mentioned in this column, enter it in full.
3. Water Supply—
   - A. The village has a source of water supply provided by the Government or Local Board.
   - B. Natural sources of supply like rivers and bils.
   - C. Private supply.
   - D. Acute scarcity.

   Underlined, it will indicate that quality of drinking water is bad.
4. Medical Facilities—
   - (a) The village has a Local Board or Government regular dispensary within 5 miles radius.
   - (b) There is no regular dispensary but a Public Health Dispensary within 5 miles radius.
   - (c) There is no dispensary but a private qualified doctor within 5 miles radius.
   - (d) No medical facilities of any sort.
5. Educational Facilities—
   1. Served by a Local Board or Government School within 2 miles radius.
   2. Served by a Private Venture School only within 2 miles radius.

3. No educational facilities of any kind (Mission Schools have been generally treated as private schools although in some areas where they get grant-in-aid they have been shown as Government Schools by Enumerators).

CENSUS TRACT—SAMPLE POPULATION AND DISPLACED PERSONS

Census statistics of the urban and rural population can be studied in various ways. The results of such studies in comparing the conditions and characteristics of the urban and rural people in the matter of births, deaths, sex composition, sanitation, levels of living etc., would be of great value in economic planning and development of social welfare work in the State and its different parts.

Each district was, therefore, divided for purposes of the Census into a number of rural and urban tracts according to the size of the population.

Preparatory to the sorting and tabulation of Census information, rural and urban areas of a district were grouped into Census Tracts on the basis of instructions issued by the Registrar General of India. With the approval of the Registrar General of India, the following rural and urban tracts were formed in the case of

Rural

Tract No.

17. Nalbari, Barama
18. Rangia
19. Kamalpur, Hajo
20. Gauhati (Rural)
21. Chhaygaon, Boko, Palasbari
22. Soibhog, Patacharkuchi
23. Barpeta, Tarabari

Urban

6. Gauhati, Palasbari, Nalbari & Barpeta towns

In several Tables the term "Sample Population" has been used. This sample was drawn according to the following instruction of the Registrar General of India. Enumeration was done on pads of 100 slips each, a slip containing the record of an individual.

"Break each pad and stack the slips of the pad ; and "cut" the stack as in a card game. Place the lower portion above the upper portion and then deal the slips into the pigeonholes. You should deal the slips into pigeonholes in the order of 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, S, 6, 7, 8 and 9 successively. All the time, you should watch the slips of "Displaced Persons". If you come across any slip of a displaced person deal it in the pigeonhole separately labelled for 'Displaced Persons'. Thus there were three bundles ; (i) General Slips i. e. Slips combined for holes labelled for 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 (ii) Sample Slips i. e. Slips in the hole marked 'S' and (iii) Displaced Persons.

Hence it will be seen that that the sample is not a sample of the total population but of the latter excluding the 'Displaced population'.

The check factors for the sample population :—

1,000 S/G Rural Total	=	111
1,000 S/G Urban Total	=	111
1,000 S/G District Total	=	111

A "Displaced Person" was defined by the Registrar General of India as follows :—

"A Displaced Person" means any person who has entered India having left or being compelled to leave his or her home in Western Pakistan on or after the 1st March, 1947 or his/her home in Eastern Pakistan on or after the 15th October, 1946 on account of civil disturbances or the fear of such disturbances or on account of the setting up of the two Dominions of India and Pakistan."
