TABLE 1—LABOUR FORCE

1. This is a replica of Table 11 in volume 3.—This table classifies the total population, excluding Non-Pakistanis into broad categories of Economic Status.

2. All persons aged 12 years and over were asked "Are you usually self-supporting or partly self-supporting or are you seeking work?" Persons who answered "Yes" to any part of this question, were then asked to state their Occupation and the Economic Group in which they were engaged in the previous month. From their answers they have been classed as belonging to the Agricultural or Non-Agricultural Labour Force or as not being in the Civilian Labour Force. Persons who answered "No" to all three parts of the main question were classed as Dependents as were all children under 12 years of age.

3. The Agricultural Labour Force includes all persons who reported their usual main occupation as "cultivators" or who stated that in January, 1951 they were engaged or seeking work in cultivation, stock-raising, hunting and game propagation, or some other occupation associated with the agricultural industry but not generally those engaged in forestry or fishing. It should be noted that the Census definition of a cultivator was a "Tiller of the Soil" which term meant a person who himself works on the land or who employs others to do so under his direct personal supervision.

4. The Non-Agricultural Civilian Labour Force includes all self-supporting persons who during January 1951 were engaged in Public Service (except the Armed Forces), personal service trade, commerce, transportation or any industry other than agriculture, but including forestry and fishery. It also includes persons seeking work in any non-agricultural occupation.

5. Persons not in the Civilian Labour Force include the members of the Defence Services and also the several classes of self-supporting persons who are regarded as economically inactive. The latter consist of two main categories, first, those persons of private means who have not indicated that they follow any of the professions or occupations which would class them in the labour force. This group includes retired persons and pensioners, students (if they have stated that they are self-supporting or partly so) and those landowners who have not claimed to be cultivators or to be engaged in service or industry. Secondly, the economically inactive category includes the inmates of hospitals, asylums and jails, if they have not stated in occupation which enables them to be classed in the Labour Force, and what may be called "Social Parasites" namely persons who have described themselves as beggars, vagrants, prostitutes, etc.

6. Dependents include all children under 12 years of age and all other persons who did not claim to be self-supporting, partly so, or seeking work. The female element of this group therefore contains the large number of women engaged in house-hold duties, but it does not contain those who described themselves as helpers in the trades, profession, or other gainful work of the family or household. Similarly, this group includes all students, old people, invalids, etc., living with or supported by their families or friends if such persons have not claimed to be wholly or partly supporting themselves by some definite occupation, nor to be seeking to do so.

7. It is believed that the number of Male children reported as under 12 years of age is somewhat inflated and this may have increased the figures for male dependents at the expense of the Labour Force. The data should therefore be used with reasonable caution. The probable effect, if expressed as a percentage of the male Labour Force is not likely to exceed 3 per cent.

8. MUHAJIRS are included in the figures appearing in this table, but are also given separately in Table 19-C.

Table 1A- -Muhajirs in the Labour Force

1. This is a replica of Table 19-C in volume 3. This table shows the total Muhajir population according to economic status. Muhajirs have been treated as part of the normal population and included in the figures for table 1. This is a separate table showing the numbers of Muhajirs in each category of table 1.

2. A Muhajir was defined for census purposes as a person who moved into Pakistan as the result of partition or fear of disturbances connected therewith. Persons who came for that reason have been treated as Muhajirs no matter from where, when or for how long a stay they had come. Children born to Muhajirs families after arrival in East Pakistan have generally however, been enumerated as Muhajirs.

3. Labour force, agricultural and non-agricultural, dependents and other terms have the same meaning as explained in the title sheet of table 1, and the same methods were used in collecting the information.

Table 2—Detailed Analysis of Occupations

1. This table analyses the Total Civilian Labour Force of the Province according to the individual occupations of the Classification Code. In a few cases some of the items in the Code have been combined for ease of presentation.

2. The table deals with the Civilian Labour Force. It therefore excludes the following elements of the population :

(a) Dependents ;

(b) Military personnel of the Defence Services ;

(c) Land-owners, pensioners, students and other self-supporting persons not reporting an occupation ;

(d) Inmates of jails, asylums, hospitals, etc., unless they reported that they had been engaged in an occupation during January 1951 ; and

(e) Beggars, vagrants, prostitutes, etc.

3. The table deals only with persons who reported their nationality as Pakistani.

4. The table is in two parts; Part I deals with all occupations except the skilled industrial crafts and similar occupations. Part II deals mainly with the skilled industrial craftsmen normally engaged in manufacture, production and maintenance work, transport operators, mine and quarry workers and certain occupations closely associated with such activities, including unskilled non-agricultural labourers.

5. The data was analysed by punched card machinery but, in view of the difficulties encountered by enumerators in obtaining clear definitions of many of the occupations, and the difficulties of interpreting such records in terms of the classification code, it is not possible to claim absolute reliability for all the details of the table. On the whole, however, it is believed that the figures, which are now presented for the first time in this form, give a reasonably complete idea of the detailed composition of the Labour Force.

Table 3—Occupations of NALF.

1. This table analyses the Non-Agricultural portion of the Labour Force according to occupational classes, sex, industrial status, age and educational level.

2. The first section of the table shows the totals for the province as a whole and is a replica of Table 11-B in volume 3; the subsequent sections give similar data for each district and selected towns. The figures given for towns are included in the totals for the districts in which they are located. Table No. 4 gives some of the informations separately for sub-divisions and selected urban localities.

3. The population analysed in this table is the total Non-Agricultural Labour Force as shown in Table 1 and explained in the title sheet of that table. This table therefore excludes all Non-Pakistanis and all children under 12 years of age.

4. The sources of the data on occupations, industrial status, age and education are the same as for the various table in which those characteristics are shown for the whole population, and are explained in the respective title sheets. The data for numbers of the Non-Agricultural Labour Force was recorded on punched cards and the cross tabulation given in this table was effected by machine sorting.

5. This table is discussed in Chapter IX of Part I of Volume 3.

Table 3-A--Occupations of the Civilian Labour Force

1. In this table persons in the Civilian Labour Force, excluding non-Pakistanis, are classified by main religions and according to their occupational groupings. The first section is a replica of Table 11-A in volume 3 and gives totals for the province as a whole, the subsequent sections give separate data for each district and for selected towns. The figures for towns are included in the totals for the districts in which they are located.

2. This table is a detailed analysis of the Agricultural and non-Agricultural elements of Civilian Labour Forces as shown in Table 1, the title sheet of which explains the source of the information and the definitions used.

3. The analysis of occupations is by main groups of the Classification Code of occupations of the Civilian Labour Force (Census 1951--Publication No. 11 A). Main groups 'Professional and technical', 'Administrative', and 'Manufacturing workers' are further divided into sub-groups. The agricultural labour force is divided into two broad categories viz., cultivators (see definition in Title Sheet of Table 1) with whom are also included all minor agricultural occupations, and Herdsmen and Dairymen, which includes all persons other than cultivators who are engaged in stock raising or animal husbandry.

4. The non-agricultural occupations are cross classified by Industrial status, Age group and educational levels in Table 3. The agricultural labour force is further analysed by occupations and agricultural land tenure status in tables 11 C and 14 in volume 3.

Table 4-A—Industrial Status and Religion.

1. This is a replica of Table 13-A in Volume 3.—This Table analyses the Non-Agricultural portion of the Civilian Labour Force according to Industrial Status, Religious Groups and Sex. The figures exclude all persons who did not claim to be Pakistanis.

2. The methods and definitions by which the data on Industrial Status was collected and classified are explained in para 3 of the title sheet to Table 12. The method by which the classification by religious groups was made is described in para 1 of the Title Sheet to Table 7. The records on the original slips were transferred to punched-cards and sorted by machine to produce the statistics shown in this table.

3. The group described as "Other Religions" includes Buddhists, Christians, Parsis, persons adhering to their tribal religions and persons of other religions, no religion or who did not report their religion.

Table 5—Economic Groups and Industrial Status of the Non-Agricultural Labour Force

1. This table lists the non-agricultural portion of the Labour Force as shown in table 1, showing the numbers of persons engaged in the main industries and services, and analysing them according to their industrial status.

2. The classification into Economic Divisions, i.e. the main industries and services of the Economic Organisation of the country, is based on the "Standard Industrial Classification, Pakistan". This code of classification was published as an appendix to the Census Code of Procedure and was used as a basis for the instruction of enumerators. It accords with the classification of industries agreed by United Nations but was specially adapted for use in Pakistan. The data was obtained in reply to Census Question No. 13 which asked "In what kind of industry, business or service did you work in January (1951)?" The enumerator was instructed to write out the answer. Code numbers from the Standard Industrial Classification were assigned on the basis of these replies and punched on the respondents cards which were then sorted and counted by machines to obtain the data given in this Table.

3. The analysis by Industrial Status was determined by the answers given to Census Question No. 15 which asked "In your main occupation; Do you employ others? or are you an Employee ? Or are you an Independent Worker ? Or an Unpaid Family Helper ?" Symbols were printed on the enumeration slip for each of these four categories and a ring was placed round the one applicable to the respondents' answer. Each category was given a number, which was punched on the persons card and sorted by machine. The enumerator was instructed that the whole of this question referred to the occupations in which the persons worked, or was seeking work, in January 1951 as reported in answer to Question 12. He was further instructed that persons were not to be classed as Employers merely by virtue of employing domestic servants but only if they employed others in their profession or business ; that all persons in any kind of service were to be classed as Employees, and that person who claimed to be partly self-supporting because they contributed their work to the family business but who received no separate remuneration in cash or kind, were to be classed as Unpaid Family Helpers.

4. The Table excludes all persons who did not claim to be either self-supporting, or partly so or to be seeking work. It also excludes Non-Pakistanis and children under 12 years old.

5. Persons who reported themselves as unemployed throughout the whole of January 1951 were not classifyable in any Economic Division and are shown at the foot of the table. Enumerators were instructed that Persons who did any gainful work at all in January 1951 were not to be classed as unemployed. This instruction, coupled with the tendency on the part of unemployed members of land-owning families, even if seeking work in industry, trade or service, to report themselves as cultivators, and a reluctance on the part of all unemployed persons to admit the fact, results in very low figures for them being reported in the census. The number of unemployed shown in this table should therefore be regarded as a complete record. The figure must however be taken into account in reconciling the figures in this Table with those in table 1.

6. The first section of the table shows the totals for the province as a whole and is a replica of Table 12 in Volume 3 ; the subsequent sections give similar data separately for the districts and selected towns. The figures for the towns are included in those given for the districts in which they are located. Table 8 gives a more detailed analysis showing the persons working in each sub-group of the standard Industrial Classification Code.

7. This data is discussed in Chapter IX of Part I of Volume 3.

Table 6—Economic Groups and Occupations of Civilian Labour Force

1. This table cross-classifies the persons engaged in different Economic Activities with the broad classification of their occupations. The Population analysed is the whole of the Civilian Labour Force as shown in table 1.

2. The classification into Economic Divisions is based on the Standard Industrial Classification, i.e. the classification according to the main industries and services, issued as an appendix to the Census Code-of procedure, as already stated in the title sheet of table 5.

3. The occupational classification is a simplified re-arrangement of the main Groups of Occupational classification as shown in Table 3-A, Agricultural and Fishery workers have been placed in the same column but are naturally in separate Economic Divisions. The group 'Administrative' has been split into two broad classes instead of three by combining the Business and Governmental Executive while showing the clerical workers separately. The skilled operatives in this table include 'Mine and Quarry workers, Transport Operatives, Manufacturing workers and Food Drink and Tobacco Processing workers'.

4. The sources of information for this table as the same as described for table 1, 3-A and 5, so far as they concern the Industry and Occupations.

5. Females are included in each class, but are shown separately in the figures in italics immediately below.

6. As pointed out in the title sheet of table 12, the unemployed persons cannot be said to be working in any industry business or service. Nevertheless, may have an occupation in which they seeking work. Therefore the numbers of persons reporting themselves as unemployed have been shown at the bottom of the table in their respective columns of the occupational classes. The total of persons engaged in all Divisions (i.e. in all Industries, Business and Services) plus the persons reporting themselves as unemployed make up the Civilian Labour Force as shown in Table 1. For reasons explained in para 5 of title sheet of table 5 very few persons have reported themselves in this Census as Unemployed and the figures are regarded as incomplete.

7. The first section of this table gives the totals for the province as a whole and is a replica of Table 13 in volume 3; the subsequent sections give similar data separately for the districts and selected towns (the figures for towns are included in the totals for the districts in which they are located.)

Table 7—Economic Groups and Occupations of Muhajirs in Civilian Labour Force

1. This Table is exactly the same as Table 6 but is confined to the analysis of Muhajir population only.

2. For census purposes a Muhajir was defined as a person who had entered Pakistan as a result of partition or for fear of disturbances connected therewith.

3. The persons dealt with in this Table are included in Table 13.

Tables 8 and 8-A—Economic Groups and Sub-Groups

1. In these tables the Provincial totals given in Table 13-B (13-A in West Pakistan) of the Provincial Census Report are analyzed by districts and certain important towns.

2. The detailed Sub-Groups are those in the "Standard Industrial Classification for Pakistan".

3. Table 8 gives the detailed figures for all Industrial classes except "Manufacturing" for which only the totals are included. Table 8-A shows the detailed analysis of the persons engaged in manufacturing industries.

TABLE 8—ECONOMIC GROUPS AND SUB-GROUPS-GENERAL.

The Non-Agricultural Labour Force according to the Economic Groups and Sub-Groups in which persons were engaged at their main occupation in January, 1951. (The figures for the totals include the figures for females shown beside them).
