PREFACE

The concept of Standard Urban Area is an introduction of the 1971 Census with a view to render inter-censal comparisons possible for longer durations. The town-group concept was found to be of limited utility because it did not take into consideration the intervening non-municipal areas, as also the spill-over area of a town. Further, as the administrative boundaries of towns keep changing, the need was felt to fix a geographic area that would take care of urbanisable areas in the next two to three decades so that urban development planning could proceed on sound principles. The Standard Urban Area concept was evolved in this background with the following essential features :—

(i) a core town generally with a population of 50,000 and above;

(ii) contiguous areas made up of other urban as well as rural administrative units having close socio-economic links with the core town; and

(iii) probability that the entire delineated area will get fully urbanised in a period of two to three decades.

The work of delineating Standard Urban Areas was taken in hand in close collaboration with the Collectors of the district and officers of the State Town & Country Planning Department. In all 25 core towns with adjoining areas were identified much before actual Census count in March, 1971. Neemuch, Itarsi, Korba, Raigarh and Rajnandgaon did not reach the 50,000 mark in terms of population but Standard Urban Areas have been delineated and retained in respect of these core towns also owing to their being important urban centres.

The tables give basic data like civic status, area, density, occupied residential houses, houseless and institutional population etc. Density, i.e., population per square kilometer, is highest in Indore urban area (9,553) closely followed by Mandsaur (8,557), Burhanpur (8,210) and Raipur (8,184). Houseless population has been returned highest from Bhopal urban area (2,466) followed by Indore urban area (2,226). This is not surprising because the Capital City of Bhopal has returned a very high decadal growth rate of 71.61 per cent for the urban component of its Standard Urban Area, next only to the fast expanding industrial townships of Korba and Durg-Bhilainagar where growth percentage of urban components is 151.22 and 77.41, respectively. The main reason for faster growth of all the three towns apparently is large scale migration both from within and outside the State.

It is felt that the data compiled in this volume would be of immense value to town planners and assist in organised development of rapidly growing towns of the State.

Sarvashri M. L. Sharma, Assistant Director, V. S. Joshi, Tabulation Officer and Vishram Singh, Statistical Assistant, worked assiduously to compile the various tables included in this volume. They deserve all praise for their hard work.
