PREFACE

This paper presents some basic and important information on the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes population of West Bengal and also on the religious persuasions of the people of the States.

The population figures of the Scheduled Castes and Tribes have already been published in Part II-A of the Census Publications of West Bengal for districts, police stations and towns and cities. Figures at the village level are presented in the District Census Handbook.

Two tables of the C-series have been incorporated in this volume, viz., C-VII and C-VIII—Parts A and B. Table C-VIII classifies the Scheduled Castes and Tribes population by literacy and industrial categories of workers and non-workers according to their main activity. An appendix has also been added giving the population figures caste-wise and tribe-wise, cross—classified by literacy for each district separately.

A special tabulation on other aspects of the S.C./S.T. population is in progress and the findings will be brought out shortly in another volume—Part V(A).

This volume also presents tables C-VII on religions. The data have been presented upto the district level.

Presenting as it does the basic information on the two important aspects of the life of the State, this volume will, it is hoped, be of immense and immediate use to the scholars, planners and administrators.

I am grateful to the colleagues in my office who have worked on the volume and also to the Registrar General, India who arranged for the scrutiny of the tables at the Central Tabulation Unit at New Delhi. I would also like to record my gratitude to the Manager, New Government of India Press, Santragachi, Howrah and his staff for printing this paper in a very short time.

A NOTE ON RELIGIONS IN WEST BENGAL IN 1971 CENSUS

ıtroduction

In the pre-Independence period religion had been the ısis of classification of the people in all Censuses and e data used to be collected and presented community-ise. The emphasis shifted to economic classification nce 1951 when the first census was taken after indepen-nce. Data on religion are nevertheless collected and esented as religion continues to be a very important pect of the life of the people.

Information on religion was collected in the individual ıs in 1971 against question no. 10. The question ı was framed and explained raised no controversies. with all census questions the answers to the question ıting to religious faiths were also to be recorded vere returned by the respondents. If anybody said he did not follow or practise any religion the erator was to record the fact as reported.

Table C-VII present the data on religions in the state. The data are presented separately for the six numerically important religions, those for the other religions being shown under the omnibus heading "Other Religions and Persuasions".

Two main religions : Hinduism and Islam

Hinduism and Islam are the two main religions practised by the people of the State. Between them the Hindus and Muslims account for 98.57 per cent of the population. The statement below gives the percentage of the followers of the three main religions to total population in each district.

The statement shows that Hinduism and Islam are the main religions and account for the bulk of the population in all districts (except Darjeeling) and the other religions claim the following of only minute percentages of the population. The percentages claimed by the two main religions together range between 99.81 per cent (in Cooch Behar and Howrah) and 84 per cent (in Darjeeling). In the district of Darjeeling, however, Buddhism has a sizeable following, second only after Hinduism. Buddhists constitute as much as 11.68 per cent of the district population. Darjeeling is again the only district in which Islam has a very small number of followers accounting for less than four per cent of the population.

Other religions : Christianity, Buddhism, Sikhism, Jainism and Saridharma

After Hinduism and Islam, the third largest following is claimed by Christianity. Of the total population of the state 0.57 per cent professes this faith. Districtwise, the largest percentage of Christians is to be found in (1) Darjeeling, (2) Jalpaiguri and (3) Calcutta where they form 3.59 per cent, 3.18 per cent and 1.40 per cent respectively of the total population. The largest number of Christians is, however, to be found in Calcutta, the figure being 44,064.

Another religion which deserves special mention is Saridharma which claims a following of as many as 161,942 persons in the state or 0.37 per cent of the population. The other faiths which have any fairly good following are :—

(1) Buddhism—121,504 persons concentrated mostly in Darjeeling.

(2) Sikhisim — 35,084 persons spread mainly over Calcutta, Twentyfour Parganas and Burdwan.

(3) Jainism — 32,203 persons in Calcutta, Murshidabad and Cooch Behar.

Regional distribution of the main religions :
II—concentration in different districts

It will be seen further that the three western-most districts, namely, Purulia, Bankura and Midnapore have the highest percentages of Hindus among their population. The Hindus constitute 92.89 per cent, 90.85 per cent and 90.65 per cent respectively of the people in the three districts and the followers of Islam account for 4.64 per cent, 4.85 per cent and 7.74 per cent respectively. In Howrah, Calcutta, Burdwan, Hooghly, Jalpaiguri and Darjeeling the proportion of the Hindus in the population vary between 80 per cent and 90 per cent. In the remaining districts the Hindu percentage is less than the state average.

Murshidabad is the only district in the state where Muslims are in the majority, comprising 56.34 per cent of the population against 43.46 per cent of the Hindus. The other districts which have 30 per cent or more of Muslims in the population are Malda (43.13 per cent) and West Dinajpur (35.89 per cent).

As already stated, the Buddhists constitute 11.68 per cent of the population of Darjeeling. Darjeeling is then the only district in which the Muslims are negligible in number accounting for less than 4 per cent of the population. The third largest following among the religions in the district is claimed by Christianity, the percentage of Christians in the total population being 3.59.

Decadal growth of different religions

The statement below shows the decadal growth rate of persons of different religious persuasions in the tate as a whole for the period from 1961 to 1971.

STATEMENT II

DECADAL GROWTH RATE OF PERSONS OF DIFFERENT RELIGIONS IN WEST BENGAL

Name of Religions	Population			Decadal percentage growth rate
	1971	1961	1951	1961—71	1951—61
1	2	3	4	5	6
Buddhists	121,504	112,253	81,665	8.24	37.46
Christians	251,752	204,530	181,775	23.09	12.52

Sikhs	35,084	34,184	30,623	2.63	11.63
Saridharma	161,942	35,928	..	350.74	..
Swarna	24,034	..	..	..	..

It is interesting to note that during the decennial period 1961-71 the followers of all the major religions except Islam have recorded growth rates which are lower than that of the total population. Against the general population growth of 26.87 per cent the Hindus and the Christians have increased by 25.75 per cent and 23.09 per cent respectively during the period. The Muslims have on the other hand grown by 29.76 per cent, a rate which is higher than the general population growth. A look at the districtwise growth rates may throw some light on the factors which may have resulted in the high growth rate of the followers of Islam during the decade in the state. Statement III presents the growth of the followers of the two main religions of the state during the last two decades.

Higher growth rate of followers of Islam

It will be observed that during 1951-61 also the Muslims registered a big increase of 36.48 per cent as against 32.63 per cent recorded by the Hindus in the state. In the districts of Malda and Nadia the rate of their growth had reached the staggering figures of 62.80 and 63.16. They have again increased in numbers particularly fast in the districts of Burdwan, Twentyfour Parganas and Bankura during 1961-71. The growth in Burdwan is as high as 43.74 per cent. The districts of Twentyfour Parganas and Bankura do not lag far behind with big increases of 36.19 per cent and 34.90 per cent respectively.

As against the big increases in Muslim population in these districts a contrast is presented by the districts of North Bengal. All of them, including Malda and West Dinajpur which contain quite big percentages of Muslims in the population—43.13 per cent and 35.89 per cent respectively—have recorded comparatively smaller growth of 23.24 to 27.94 per cent in the numbers of Muslims during the decade. In Jalpaiguri, Cooch Behar and Malda the rates are below the state average for the Muslims and nearer to the growth rate of the total population. In Murshidabad where they constitute the majority in the population the Muslims have recorded a growth of 29.48 per cent only which is below the state average for Muslims but above the growth rate of the total population.

Purulia is the only district which has recorded a fall in the number of Muslims. In 1971, the followers of Islam in the district totalled 74,410 against 81,521 of 1961. Out-migration to the neighbouring industrial belt of Bihar may be an explanation for the fall in their numbers.

Two "new religions" :

Two of the minor religions as returned in the census of 1971 deserve special mention. One of them is Saridharma which has a sizeable number of followers totalling 161,952. This religion has the largest following in the districts of Bankura, Midnapore and Purulia. As the special tables on the Scheduled Tribes to be published shortly will show, Saridharma is the religion mainly of the Santhals. It is in fact the name given to the traditional religion of the tribes and appeared in census returns as a separate religious faith only recently since 1961 due, partly, to a conscious attempt to establish the tribal identity. It will be borne out by the fact that Saridharma registered an increase of as much as 350.74 per cent in the numbers of its followers during the last decade.

While Saridharma made its first appearance in census records in 1961, the census of 1971 has also added a new name to the list of religions practised in the state. The religion is "Swarna" claiming 24,034 followers. Like Saridharma "Swarna" is also the religion of the tribals, mainly Santhals, and has been returned from the districts of Bankura, Midnapore, Purulia, Twentyfour Parganas, Hooghly and Bnrdwan.

TABLE C-VII

TABLE C-VII--RELIGION

This table furnishes information pertaining to different religions in the State. The table is presented for administrative divisions and districts, police stations, cities and towns classified by sex. The data for rural and urban areas are given separately and with them, the totals are also given for the administrative units. The table is comparable to table C-VII of 1961.

Data are presented separately for the six main or numerically important religions viz., B, C, H, J, M & S arranged alphabetically. Data relating to other religions and beliefs have been shown in the table under the omnibus column, "Other Religions and Persuasions". For persons whose religion was not recorded in the enumeration slip there is a separate column headed 'Religions not stated'.

Annexure to the table shows individual figures for all the religions and beliefs (sects and subsects etc.) which have been clubbed together under the main religions.

Appendix I shows individual figures for all the religions and beliefs which have been clubbed together in column No. 18 and 19 (Other Religions and Persuasions).

Appendix II shows the figures of Urban Agglomerations—Calcutta, Asansol and English Bazar.

The following are the main religious communities of West Bengal. These are arranged in order of numerical strength at State level.

Religious Community	Persons	Males	Females	Sex Ratio (Females per 1,000 males)
1	2	3	4	5
Hindus	34,611,864	18,341,033	16,270,831	887
Muslims	9,064,338	4,763,571	4,300,767	903
Christians	251,752	130,888	120,864	923

Sikhs	35,084	20,811	14,273	686
Jains	32,203	18,354	13,849	755

The percentage of population accounted for by each of these major religious communities and the rate of decadal growth during 1961—71 are given below :

Religious Community	Percentage to Total Population	Decadal Growth Rate (Percentage 1961-71)

A NOTE ON THE SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES OF WEST BENGAL

Introduction

The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Lists Modification Order, 1956 classified 63 castes as Scheduled Castes and 41 tribes as Scheduled Tribes in West Bengal. As the Lists appended to the note will show, some of the castes and tribes are scheduled for the entire state while others are treated as shcheduled for parts of the state only. Some basic characteristics of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes population have been tabulated in table C-VIII parts A & B which is presented in this volume. Further detailed information on the castes and tribes will be presented in the series of Special Tables to be published shortly as Part V-West Bengal.

Enumeration of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes

If the censuses prior to 1951 had a hard time in classifying and tabulating the hundreds of castes and sub-castes, septs and sub-septs, tribes and sub-tribes the collection and tabulation of information on the castes and tribes in the Schedules, though limited in number, is an equally formidable task. While tabulation is in itself a painstaking job, that of the Scheduled Castes and Tribes is still more so. This is partly due to the difficulties inherent in the system of census enumeration and partly due to a lack of proper awareness amongst the concerned people about the importance of census in general and enumeration of scheduled castes and scheduled tribes in particular.

Instructions to Enumerators

The information whether an individulal belonged to any of the scheduled castes or tribes was obtained against Question 11 of the individual slip of 1971. The enumerators were furnished with a list of scheduled castes and tribes and asked to follow it strictly. The instructions to the enumerators to elicit and record the answer against the question are reproduced below :

"64. Ascertain if the person enumerated belongs to a scheduled caste or scheduled tribe and if he does, then record the name of the scheduled caste or scheduled tribe which should find place in the list furnished to you. The answer should be recorded against the correct rectangle provided for the purpose against this question. For a person who is not a member of any scheduled caste or scheduled tribe write 'X' in both the rectangles.

65. If the person belonging to a scheduled caste or scheduled tribe returns his caste or tribe by a synonym or generic name of a caste or a tribe it should be entered only if it finds a place in the list furnished to you. Do not write the names of scheduled castes in general terms as 'Harijan' or 'Achhut'. You should ascertain the name of the caste when it is returned and write it in the rectangle provided for recording the name. Similarly, do not write the name of scheduled tribes in general terms as 'Adivasi'. You should ascertain the name of the tribe when it is returned and write it in the rectangle with broken lines provided for recording the same. If a person is negligent and insists on calling himself merely 'Harijan' or 'Achhut' or 'Adivasi' as the case may be, tell him that this description is not adequate for census purposes and persuade him to give out the actual name of the caste or tribe. You should make all efforts to ascertain the correct name of the scheduled caste or scheduled tribe as found in the notified list. If the person merely claims to be a scheduled caste or scheduled tribe but says that he does not belong to any of the notified communities applicable to the area, he will not be entered as a scheduled caste or scheduled tribe.

66. Scheduled castes can belong only to the Hindu or Sikh religions. If a person belongs to scheduled caste, there will be either 'H' or 'S' in the answer to question 10. Scheduled tribes may belong to any religion."

Difficulties of accurate enumeration of castes and tribes :

The instructions are clear and unambiguous and there was hardly any scope for further elaboration that might improve the results. Questioning on castes has been a difficult and delicate part of the job of enumerators ever since the ethnographic enquiries were first attempted in the late eighties of the last century. It still remains to be so although the task is far more simpler now. The enumerators were not and cannot be expected to be anthropoligists nor was there any large scope for making detailed enquiries about the answers provided by the respondents. The enumerators were to record the answers as were received from the respondents and had but little option or scope to cross-question the respondents to test the veracity of their statements. As Sri Asoke Mitra as the Superintendent of Census Operations, West Bengal in 1951 has observed, "A fundamental point to remember about a census is that the enumerator is obliged to recored whatever is tendered. He may challenge what he recognizes as a deliberate lie, and report it to his superior, but is not at liberty to record a person's information according to his best knowledge and information although he, the enumerator, may have lived with the person as next door neighbours for years."

This is a fundamental point, and also an important limitation, of the censuses which has to be borne in mind while examining the census data.

Attitude of respondents

The instructions being as they were, the task of the enumerators was made all the more difficult on the question of caste names because of the attitude of many a respondent at the time of census enumeration. It is well known that there is a general lack of proper awareness of the importance of census enumeration in the country. While many are apathetic about the census, there are others who consider the census questionnaire as an exercise of doubtful utility and tolerate it only because it bears the stamp of state sanction. The enumerators, therefore, consider themselves lucky if the respondents condescend to spare a few minutes for them to answer the questionnaire and if the time schedule is maintained. The scope for any interrogation by an enumerator regarding the actual name of the caste or tribe (or any other questions requiring clarification or elucidation) becomes limited indeed in the circumstances.

In the 1961 sensus a person who reported his caste or tribe by any synonym or generic name or a local name known to the enumerator was recorded as a member of a Scheduled caste or Scheduled tribe, as the case may be, irrespective of whether or not the synonym or generic name found a place in the notified schedule. The enumerators were, in fact, provided with a list of the synonyms and generic names for the purpose which was prepared in consultation with District Officers and other authorities. In addition special instructions were issued to enumerators to hold enquiries in respect of castes and tribes like Bhakat, Dhibar, Buna or Buno, etc., to find out if they belonged to any of the Scheduled Castes or Tribes in order to record them as belonging to such Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe. In spite of all the precautions taken in 1961 returns in such general terms as 'Harijan' or 'Adibasi', etc., were not too small and they had to be treated as unspecified Scheduled Castes or Scheduled Tribes. The unspecified castes and tribes were as much as 310,721 and 68,923 respectively in the state in 1961. Consequent on a Supreme Court Judgement, however, the notified list of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes only was followed strictly in 1971 and the generic or local names or synonyms were ignored.

There has not, however, been much improvement in 1971 although the instructions were, as already stated earlier, clear, precise and unambiguous. It has again been the experience of many an enumerator and other census personnel that a number of respondents were reluctant to give the specific names of the castes or tribes. There were some others again who were really ingnorant of the actual caste/tribe names and did not know their exact status, i.e. whether the caste to which they belonged was Scheduled or not. Still some more preferred to call themselves simply 'Harijans' or 'Adibasis' or 'Achhuts' and would not disclose their caste/tribe identity. But the enumerators are enumerators and were not much different in 1971 from what they were in 1961. Many of them were ignorant of what exactly the "Scheduled Castes" or "Scheduled Tribes" meant. So confronted with such returns in general terms many of them appear to have followed the "easiest" course of recording, faithfully, "Scheduled Caste" or "Scheduled Tribes" or "Harijan" as was returned by the respondents. Some of course did follow the instructions strictly and in the slips filled in by them those who had returned their caste/tribe by any generic or local name were not enumerated as members of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe. While processing the enumeration slips vague and incomplete returns were treated as "unspecified Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe". Wherever they could be identified otherwise as belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Tribe. The net result is that there is a large number of unspecified Scheduled Castes as well as Scheduled Tribes in almost all the districts. As the tables below will show, as much as 8.50% of Scheduled Castes and 7.29 % of the Scheduled Tribes had to be classified as "unspecified" in 1971.

Position of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in West Bengal : comparison with other states.

Coming to the tables as have been finally prepared it is seen that the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes constitute among them 25.62 percent of the total population of West Bengal. In other words, every fourth person in the State belongs to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe. This is higher than the all-India figure of 21.54 in 100 persons and also makes a good comparison with the other states. The statement below shows the percentage of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to total population for india and the states and Union Territories.

* Includes Mizo district, now constituted as Union Territory of Mizoram.

Among the major states, Orissa and Madhya Pradesh have the highest percentages of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in their total population, the figures being 38.20 and 33.23 respectively. In Rajasthan, Himachal Pradesh and Bihar also the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes together constitute a sizeable part of the total population. The proportion is higher than the all India average in each of these states.

Within the state of West Bengal, again, an inter-district comparison brings into relief some interesting aspects of the composition of the population. Statement II gives the parcentage of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to the total population in the State and the districts.

The percentage of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in the total population is the highest in Jalpaiguri, the figure being as big as 58.51. Next in order comes Cooch Behar with a figure of 47.78.% . A unique feature about Cooch Behar is that the Scheduled Castes alone comprise 47.03 % of the population of the district while the Scheduled Tribes account for a meagre 0.75%.

The statement also highlights a peculiar feature of the composition of the population of the five North Bengal districts. These districts except Malda have all a higher percentage of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes than the state average. Further, all the districts of northern Bengal (except Cooch Behar comprise a higher parcentage of Scheduled Tribes population than the State average of 5.72 %.

Position of Scheduled Castes in the population of West Bengal : inter-district comparison.

The Scheduled Castes alone constitute 19.90 per cent of the population of West Bengal. That is, one in every 5 persons in the state is a member of one or the other of the Scheduled Castes. Statement III presents the relative position of the Scheduled Castes in the total population in the districts.

It will be observed that exactly half the districts has higher percentage of Scheduled Castes population than the State average. It is, of course, just a coincidence. But the fact that all the North Bengal Districts (except Darjeeling and Malda) are above the State average is not without significance. The two North Bengal Districts of Cooch Behar and Jalpaiguri rank 1st and 2nd in the list, the districts of Birbhum, Bankura, West Dinajpur, Twentyfour Pargans and Nadia also are in this half. Calcutta and Murshidabad occupy the last to positions at the end of the list.

The statement IV below, however, shows that numerically the largest Schedued Castes population is to be found in the district of Twentyfour Parganas which account for 21.67 per cent of the total Scheduled caste in the state. Then followed the districts of Burdwan, Midnapore, Cooch Behar and Jalpaiguri in this orders

At the other extreme are the districts of Darjeeling and Calcutta which account for an insignificant 1.35 per cent and 1.12 per cent respectively of the Scheduled Castes.

The five districts of Twentyfour Parganas, Burdwan, Midnapore, Cooch Behar and Jalpaiguri account for more than 55 per cent of the total Scheduled Castes population of the State, the other 45 per cent being spread over the remaining 11 districts.

A closer look at the statement reveals some special featues about the regional distribution of the Scheduled Castes in the State. As stated earlier, the five North Bengal Districts have a high concentration of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. Of them the three districts lying just below the hills district of Darjeeling (viz., Jalpaiguri, Cooch Behar and Widest Dinajpur) have the highest proportion of Scheduled Castes in the total populaton. The Scheduled Castes actually constitute one third of the total population of the three district. A second area of such concentration is the three Rarh districts of Bankura, Birbhum and Burdwan to the West of the Ganga. Of the total population of these three districts as much as 26·75 per cent are Scheduled Castes. The reasons for this peculiar spatial distribution may be traced partly in history. How far the other factors like migration, etc., are responsible are the subject of a detailed study which is beyond the scope of the note.

Decennial growth of Scheduled Castes—

During the last decade (1961-71) the Scheduled Castes have recorded a growth of 27.95 per cent in their numbers. This is higher than the growth of 26·87 per cent in the total population of the State. The rate of growth has not, however, been uniform and has varied widely from district to district. The Statement shows the variation of the Scheduled Castes population in the districts and compares it with the growth of the General population.

14.	Bankura	22.02	16.33
15.	Midnapore	26.89	32.67
16.	Purulia	17.86	19.67

It is seen that all the five North Bengal districts (belonging to Jalpaiguri Division) except Darjeeling have registered growth rates considerably higher than the state average for the Scheduled Castes. The decadal growth has been as high as 62.57 per cent for Malda, 49.96 per cent for West Dinajpur, 42.22 per cent for Jalpaiguri and 39.03 per cent for Cooch Behar. The other area of concentration of Scheduled Castes—the Rarhdistricts—also records quite a big increase except for Bankura. Along with them, two other districts namely, Nadia and Midnapore have also shown a sizeable growth of 35.79 per cent and 32.67 per cent respectively.

It is of significance that the rate of growth of the Scheduled Castes has been higher—often considerably higher than the growth rate of the total population in all districts except Burdwan, Hooghly, Twenty four Parganas, Murshidabad and Darjeeling. On the contrary, in two districts, namely Calcutta and Howrah, the Scheduled Castes population has actually gone down during the decade by—5.99 per cent and 0.74 per cent respectively. It is also a significant coincidence that the Scheduled Tribes have also recorded a negative growth in the same two districts by as much as—44 per cent and—4.44 per cent respectively.

Yet another remarkable feature of the rate of growth is noticeable in the northern districts of West Dinajpur, Malda, Cooch Behar and Jalpaiguri. Both the general population and the Scheduled Castes have grown tremendously in the area during the last decade. In fact, the growth rates of the general population in these districts (40.50, 31.98, 38.67 and 28.76 per cent respectively) have been more than matched by the growth rates of the Scheduled Castes (49.96, 62.57, 39.03 and 42.22 per cent respectively.)

The district of Nadia also presents an almost similar development, the general population there having grown by 30.14 per cent and the Scheduled Castes 35.79 per cent.

The question will naturally crop up : What has the higher growth rate been due to ? Is the negative growth in Calcutta and Howrah connected in any way with the slump or stagnation in employment opportunities in the two districts in the late sixties ? Or can this be due partly at least, to any disinclination to disclose caste identity in the newly urbanised population in these two predominantly urban districts ? One important factor that needs be mentioned here is the impact of the migration of the Hindus from erstwhile East Pakistan now Bangla Desh to West Bengal. The proportion of Scheduled Castes among the migrants has never been assessed but it must have been very high indeed, the final impact being an explosiveincrease in their numbers in Northern Bengal and districts like Nadia having international borders. Yet another point may have to be taken into considerations whether caste-consciousness amongst the Scheduled Castes has any role behind the growth of their numbers.

Relative Strength of the Castes—

The population of the individual Scheduled Castes has been shown in Appendix to table C-VIII-A. The Statement VI shows the first ten numerically strongest Scheduled Castes in the State and gives their comparative strength in 1971 and 1961.

STATEMENT VI

9.	Dom or Dhangad	174,367	151,818	8
10.	Sunri excluding Saha	166,418	106,870	10

It will be seen that these ten communities constitute 73.38 per cent of the total Scheduled Castes popultion and the remaining castes account for the remainder, i. e. 26.62 per cent. A comparison with the 961 figures shows that in 1971 also the Rajbanshis and the Bagdis (or Duley) have retained their ranking as the first two numerically strongest castes. The Namasudras which constitute a little more than 10 per cent of Scheduled Castes population have replaced the Pods or Poundra Khatriyas in the third place and relegated the latter to the 4th position. The Bauris and Mochis hold on to the 5th and 6th position in 1971 also. Two other communities which have recorded big increases in their numbers are the Jalia-Kaibarttas and Sunris.

Statement VII presents the growth rates of these major castes during the decades 1951-61 and 1961-71.

STATEMENT VII

Growth Rates of Major Scheduled Castes During Decade 1961-71

Serial No.	Name of Scheduled Caste	Decadal Percentage growth 1961-71
		27.95
1.	Rajbanshi	12.67
2.	Bagdi or Duley	17.71

7.	Jalia Kabartta	74.37
8.	Dhoba or Dhobi	23.43
9.	Dom or Dhangad	14.85
10.	Sunri excluding Saha	55.72

Of the 10 major communities the decade growth have been the highest among the Jalia Kaibarttas, Sunris and Namasudras and the figures being as high as 74.37, 55.72 and 34.49 per cent respectively. As the statement shows, the growth rates of these castes have not been as widely divergent as they were in the intercensal period 1951-1961.

It is also striking that the two numerically strongest castes of Rajbansis and Bagdis have both grown at rates lower than that of the total Scheduled Castes during the decade. The growth the of Rajbanshis has been particularly low, absolutely as well as relatively. They grew at a tremendous rate of 6.18 per cent per annum during 1951-61. The 1961-71 rate has been a meagre 1.26 per cent per year. The annual growth rate of the Rajbanshis is just higher than that of the Pods (1.14 per cent). The Bagdis have of course fared better thant hese castes with a decadal growth of 17.71 per cent both. This is against the growth of 27.95 per cent of all Scheduled Castes. There is again a striking coincidence that like the Rajbanshis, the most numerous of Scheduled Castes the Santals, the largest Schedule Tribe, have also registered a small increase of 1.47 per cent only per annum during the same period.

For reasons already stated the unspeeified castes have recorded the highest growth of 141.89 per cent during the decennial period. No ready explanation is available for the unusally low growth of those who are amongst the most numerous of the Scheduled Castes.

The growth of the Sunris was a phenomenal 136.30 per cent in 1951-61. The Caste has recorded a huge increase (55.72 per cent) in 1961-71 also. The case of the Namasudras is almost similar. They have registered an increase of 34.49 per cent in 1961-71 as against a growth of 124.47 per cent in 1951-61. Migration from across the international borders played a big role in blowing up the Namasudra population during the fifties, the same factor may have played a part, along with others, in the growth (through of a lesser order) of the community in 1961-71 also. Districtwise breakup of the population of the individual caste may throw some light on the provable causes of their widely divergent growth rates in the last decade.

SEX RATIO : Total Population and Scheduled Castes.

There are 927 females for every 1000 males among the Scheduled Castes in the State. The ratio of females to males in the Total population is a little lower at 891 : 1000. Statement VIII gives the sex-ratio for the ten Major Scheduled Castes for 1971 and 1961.

Unclassified	390,853	358,343	917	157,711	152,010	964

It is seen that the sex ratio has gone up among the Scheduled Castes from 916 to 927 during the decade whereas duing the same period it has gone up from 878 to 891 in the Total population. This is a significant development although we cannot assess what is the decadal variation due to or what factor—migration or births and deaths may have caused the differential between the sex ratio in the Scheduled Castes and in the Total population. Among the individual castes, the most appreciable change has been in case of the Rajbanshis, Bauris, Mochis, Sunris. Castes which have recorded sex ratios of 950, 972, 850 and 989 in 1971 against the 1961 figures of 900, 902 803 and 950 respectively.

The Namasudra, Jalia Kaibartta and Dhobi communities have, on the other hand, recorded big falls in their sex ratios. The decrease is the biggest in case of the Jalia-Kaibarttas—889 in 1971 against 936 in 1961. Such big variation—positive as well as negative—in the sex - ratio are iriguing indeed is one views them against the big increases in population recorded by these communities. Amongst the major Castes the highest sex ratio (989) is among the Sunris and the lowest (850) is recorded by the Mochis.

Literacy—

West Bengal has a general literacy of 33.20 per cent only in 1971. The Scheduled Castes have a poorer literacy achievement - only 17.80 per cent of them were literates in 1971. As with the general population literacy amongst the Scheduled Castes has recorded only a nominal increase during the last decade.

Whereas literacy among the total popultion has gone up from 29.28 percent in 1961 to 33.20 percent in 1971 the Scheduled Castes have now 17.80 per cent literate amongst them in 1971 as against 13.58 per cent in 1961.

It is disconcerting to note that West Bengal can no longer boast of being one of the educationally advanced States in the Country. Literacy rates in the total as well as Scheduled Castes population, though still above the all-India average, are not remarkaly high in the State. The Statement below gives the literacy rates amongst the total popultion and Scheduled Castes population in the States of India in 1971.

It is seen that West Bengal occupies the sixth position among the major States for general literacy. Literacy among Scheduled Castes, however, is still poorer. Even States like Assam, Meghalaya, Himachal Pradesh, etc. which do not excel in literacy among the general population have higher percentage of literacy among their Scheduled Castes than West Bengal.

Turning to the districts, again, a wide variation is noticed so far as literacy amongst Scheduled Castes is concerned. The Statement X present the literacy of Scheduled Castes and the General population district-wise in 1971 and 1961.

Midnapore	32.87	27.28	19.50	14.90
Purulia	21.50	17.79	10.41	7.05

It will be observed that in all the districts Scheduled Caste literacy is lower than the literacy in the Total Population. It is seen further that literacy among Scheduled Castes is the highest in the districts of (1) Calcutta (2) Twentyfour Parganas (3) Howrah and the last three places are occupied by the ditricts of (1) Bankura (2) Birbhum and (3) Purulia. Naturally, the position of Calcutta, a metropolitan city, is different from the other dstricts. Even in Calcutta the percentage of literacy among Scheduled Castes is a modest 31.64 against the generl literacy of 60.32 per cent. It is noteworthy that the highest literacy among the Scheduled Castes is found in the districts which have the highest literacy in the Total population. The western most districts of Bankura, Birbhum and Purulia are well below the State average in general literacy have also the lowest literacy rate in their Scheduled Caste population. The districts of Hooghly and Burdwan, on the other hand, present a contrasting picture. The two districts rank high in terms of literacy of Total population but Scheduled Caste literacy lags far behind general literacy in both of them. In fact, barring Calcutta the difference between literacy among general population and among Scheduled Castes is the most marked in these two districts.

Not only is the literacy among Scheduled Castes in the dsteicts of the state appreciably lower than general literacy. Scheduled Castes literacy has remained almost stationary during the decade/in some districts, like Burdwan and Cooch Behar. General literacy on the other hand has gone up in all the districts. This is revealing, indeed, that inspite of the measures taken during the last decade literacy among the Scheduled Castes could not keep pace with the none-too-high rate attained by the General population. This points to the inadequacies of the measures taken, as also the lack of enthusiasm among the Schdeuled Castes population towards formal eduction—an attitute which is born of social backwardness and economic poverty.

Literacy among individual Schedule Castes—

If the rate of literacy is varying from district to district within the State the same is widely divergent amongst the individual castes. The Statement XI shows the literacy among individual Scheduled Castes sex-wise in 1971 and also makes a comparison with 1961 for the ten numercially important castes.

STATEMENT XI

Literacy Among Ten Major Scheduled Castes Sexwise in 1971 and 1961

10. Sunri excluding Saha	22.41	31.57	13.14	28.58	42.59	13.84

It is observed that among the major castes literacy is the highest in the Pods, Namasudras and Dhobas, the figures being 27.31, 26.86 and 24.28 which compared not too unfavourably with the lvel of literacy attained by the Total population. The Sunnris had the highest percentage of literates amongst the Scheduled Castes in 1961 and were followed by Pods, Namasudras and Dhobas. Not only have the Sunris yielded the pride of place to the Pods in 1971, the literacy amongst them has actually come down from 28.58 per cent in 1961 to 22.41 per cent in 1971. Such a step fall from the high attainment of 1961 is apparently hard to explain and may warrant a prove. The Namasudras and Dhobas now rank second and third respectively in terms of percentage of literacy.

Literacy among the female of these castes presents a still more depressing picture. As statement XI shows, literacy amongst the females of the ten major castes is extremely poor ranging between 4.19 per cent (among the Doms) ad 16.22 per cent (among the Namasudras) The only redeeming feature is that female literacy has gone up among all these major castes during the last decade, though the level of attainment is very very low. An exception, however, is provided by the Sunris. The Sunri females have recorded a fall in literacy per centage from 13.84 in 1961 to 13.14 in 1971. As already stated, the Sunris are the only major Scheduled caste which has registered a fall in the percetage of literacy.

Working population—

On the basis of the main activity as returned by the respondents 28.76 percent of the Scheduled Castes were workers and 71.24 per cent non-worker in 1971. The percentage of workers amongst Scheduled Caste is higher than amongst the general population. The Statement XII gives the percentage of workers and non-workers in the Total and Scheduled Castes population and also gives the percentage distribution of workers in the agricultural and non-agrictuiural sector for 1971 and 1961.

STATEMENT XII

Percentage of Workers and Non-workers in the Total and Scheduled Caste Population

Workers and Non-workers	Total Population 1971	Scheduled Caste Population 1971
1	2	3
Percentage of workers to Total Persons.	27.91	28.76
(a) Percentage of Cultivator to total workers.	31.97	3 3.40
(b) Percentage Agricultural Labourers to total workers.	26.46	42.50
(c) Percentage of workers engaged in Livestock, Forestry, Fishing, Hunting and Plantations, orchards and allied activities to total workers.	2.94	3.65
(d) Percentage of workers other than those at (a), (b) and (c) to total workers.	38.63	20.38
II. Percentage of Non-workers to total Persons.	72.09	71.24

The statement brings into relief a very important feature of the composition of the working force in the State. While the percentage of workers in the total population and that amongst the Scheduled Castes are almost the same - the proportion amongst the latter being higher by less than a point only - the break-up into agri- and non-agri sectors presents a revealing situation. Of the general population 58.43 percent of the workers are engaged in agriculture. As against this, the agri-sector claims as much as 75.97 per cent of the Scheduled Castes workers. Yet another prominent point is the preponderance of aricultural labourers amongst the Scheduled Caste workers, the percentage being 42.57 per cent as against the figure of 26.45 only in the general population. To present it in another way, more than one third of the total agri-labourers are Scheduled Castes, though the Scheduled Castes constitute only one fifth of the total population.

SCHEDULED TRIBES : In West Bengal and India—

West Bengal has a total population of 44,312,011 which 2,532,969 percent or 5.72 persens belong to the Scheduled Tribes. The statement below shows the population of the Scheduled Tribes in India and the States and their percentage in the total population.

In terms of percentage of Scheduled Tribes to the total population, the position of West Bengal is below the all India average. While the Scheduled Tribes constitute the bulk of the population in smaller States and Union Territories like Arunachal, Meghalaya, Nagaland, Dadra and Nagar Haveli; Lakshadwip, Amindive and Minicoy Islands, the bigger States contain lesser, though widely varying, proportion of Scheduled Tribes in their population. Orissa and Madhya Pradesh are two States in which every fifth person belong to a Scheduled Tribe. In West Bengal only one person in 20 is a member of the Scheduled Tribes. At the other extreme are Haryana, Punjab, Jammu and Kashmir, and Sikkim which do not have any Scheduled Tribes at all in their territories.

Statement II shows the ranking of the first ten States with the largest numbers of the Scheduled Tribes in 1971. The position in 1961 is also shown in the Statement.

It is seen that the largest Scheduled Tribes population is living in Madhya Pradesh. One out of 5 Scheduled Tribes people of the country is to be found in Madhya Pradesh, while West Bengal has one out of twenty. Next to Madhya Pradesh come Orissa, Bihar, Maharashtra, Rajasthan and West Bengal. The three States of Madhya Pradesh, Orissa and Bihar together with West Bengal (parts of which form a sort of a "tribal belt") account for 55.05 per cent of the total Scheduled Tribes population of India. The ten States listed in the Statement have within their territories 92.41 per cent of the Scheduled Tribes, the remaining 7.59 per cent being accounted for by the other States and Union Territories.

A comparison with the 1961 figures shows that in 1961 also Madhya Pradesh has the largest share of the Scheduled Tribes population. The next 4 places being occupies by Orissa, Bihar, Gujrat and Maharashtra. The percentage distribution among these States were 22.7, 14.02, 13.96, 9.14 and 7.96 respectively in 1961 against the 1971 figures of 22.07, 13.34, 12.98, 9.82 and 7.77. Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Bihar, Gujarat and Rajasthan now occupy the first five places in terms of the numerical strength of their Scheduled Tribes population.

Statement III gives the position of Scheduled Tribes in the total population districtwise. The list is in descending order of the prcentage of Scheduled Tribes in total population.

15.	Howrah	2,417,286	0.14
16.	Calcutta	3,148,746	0.08

It is seen that of the 16 districts of West Bengal 9 have higher percentage of Scheduled Tribes in their population than the State average. The highest percentage, 24.49, is found in the district of Jalpaiguri; at the other end of the list is Calcutta with a mere 0.08.

It is interesting to note that as in case of Scheduled Castes all the North Bengal districts except Cooch-Behar have quite high proportion of Scheduled Tribes also in their population. Only in Cooch Behar the Scheduled Tribes constitute an insignificant part of the total population, the percenatge (0.75) being the lowest after Calcuta and Howrah. On the other hand, the proportion of Scheduled Castes in the population of the district is as high as 47.03 per cent.

The other area of high proportion of Scheduled Tribes is the three western-most district of Purulia, Bankura and Midnapore. Along with Birbhum and Burdwan these districts comprise a solid block of land, all to the west of the Hooghly river. Out of a total population of 14,835,244 of these five districts 1,319.346 or 8.89 per cent are members of Scheduled Tribes.

A look at the Statement IV below which shows the districtwise distribution of the Scheduled Tribes in Terms of percentage of the total Scheduled Tribes in the State will throw up a few more salient features which will engage the attention of all scerning readers

16. Calcutta	2,408	0.10	2,520	0.12

As the statement,shows, not only is the percentage of Scheduled Tribes (to total population) quite high in the North Bengal districts, the entire Northern region accounts for more than 35 per cent of the total Scheduled Tribes population of the State. On the other hand the share of these districts in the total population of the State is only 16.74 per cent.

The three western districts of Bankura, Midnapore and Purulia again contain among them more than 37 per cent of the total Scheduled Tribes. The share of the block of the 5 western districts comes to more than 50 per cent of the State total of Scheduled Tribes.

Looking at the picture districtwise Midnapore has the largest number of Scheduled Tribes with a figure of 442,963 persons. Next in rank come Purulia and Jalpaiguri with figures of 428,595 and 313,793 persons respectively. Calcutta and Howrah are at the other end of the list accounting for an significant 0.10 per cent and 0.13 per cent respectively of the State total.

The peculiar spatial distribution may be ascribed to historical and geographical factors, The western tracs comprising the three districts of Bankura, Purulia and Midnapore are contiguous to the Chhotonagpur hills areas and forms an extension of the tribal belt extending over the three States of Orissa, Bihar and eastern Madhya Pradesh. The eastward movement of the tribals is recent in history and has to be taken note of in this connection. Another noteworthy fact is the industrial and mining activites in the districts of Burdwan and the employment opportunities they offered to new settlers. So far as the northern districts are concerned, the settlement of the tribals in and around the tea plantations of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri in the closing decades of the last century is only too recent and well known to need any emphasizing. Still one more important fact which has left its impact on the demographic picture of the area is the existence of the international boundary with Eastern Pakistan, (now Bangladesh) all along the North Bengal districts. As is well known, the influx of displaced persons has played a crucial role in the growth of population of West Bengal since the partition of Bengal. Migration of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to North Bengal districts from across the border has swelled the general population, as well as the number of the Scheduled Tribes and Scheduled Castes. But the exact extent of its influence on the growth of the population is yet to be studied.

Intercensal Variation ; 1961-71

During the intercensal decade the population of Scheduled Tribes in West Bengal has grown from 2,054,081 in 1961 to 2,532,969 in 1971. The increase works out to 23.31 per cent which falls short of the growth of 26.87 per cent in the Total population of the State. The decadal growth for the State for the Scheduled Tribes (23.31 per cent) is, however, below the all India figure of 26.17 per cent. The growth has been remarkably uneven in the districts, as will be evident from the Statement V, which follows.

STATEMENT V

Purulia	17.86	19.38

While the growth of Scheduled Tribes during the decade has been as big as 45.05 per cent in Nadia, the district of Howrah has registered a negative growth of an equally big size, -44.95 per cent. Calcutta is the other district in the State that has registered a fall in the Scheduled Tribe population by -4.44 per cent.

An interesting point that emerges from the statement is that Midnapore and Purulia are the only districts besides Nadia in which the growth rate of the Scheduled Tribes has exceeded that of the general population. In Midnapore the growth of the Scheduled Tribes has been as much as 8 points above the growth of the general population. The position is not, however, as divergent in Purulia, the difference being less than 2 points only. In all the other districts except Burdwan the Scheduled Tribes have grown at rates which are appreciably below the rate of increase of the general population. Even in Jalpaiguri which has the highest percentage of Scheduled Tribes in the population the growth rate has been 8 points lower than that of the general population. In Burdwan, however, the general population and the Scheduled Tribes grew at almost the same rates, 27.04 and 26.90 per cent respectively. In Malda also the Total population and the Scheduled Tribes registered almost identical rate of growth, the figures being 32.98 per cent and 31.34 per cent respectively.

How far this low growth rate of the Scheduled Tribes in most of the districts is due to factors like migration or how much of it is due to ethnic factors is worth careful tudy. This has to wait till the migration and other data.

are available. More over, it will require field studies which are not possible now.

One may also enquire if there has not been any under-enumeration of the Scheduled Tribes especially in the districts when the growth rates are found to remarkably low as in Darjeeling (12.59 per cent), Twenty four Parganas (14,98 per cent), Hooghly (11.07 per cent) and Birbhum (17. I per cent). It is possible that district adherence to the instructions regarding vague or incomplete returns of Caste/Tribes names may have led to some under-enumeration. On the other hand, the fact, that there has been a huge increase in the numer of "Unspecified" tribes will imply that such under-enumeration, if any at all has been only marginal. A more meaningful inerpretation may be possible only after migration data and the special tables on Scheduled Tribes are available.

As regards the North Bengal districts, however, there is one fact which it is worthwhile to take note of. The growth rate of Scheduled Tribes have, no doubt, been relatively low compared to the growth of the Total population in these districts. But in absolute terms the growth (which ranges between 20.46 per cent and 31.34 per cent) is quite sizeable. It is only because the general population in the area has registered a tremendous increase (ranging from 28.76 per cent in Jalpaiguri district to 40.50 per cent in West Dinajpur district) growth differential seems to be pretty large.

If the growth rate of Scheduled Tribes populations in the State showed some regional and other aberrations as stated above, the decadal variation among the individual tribes has not been less interesting. The statement VI and VII show the population of the numerically strongest and smallest Scheduled Tribes (ten each) and their growth rates.

10. Lepcha	14.568	15,309	—4.84
11. Unspecified	184,586	68,928	+167.80

It will be seen from the Statement that the Santhals were the most populous tribe in West Bengal in 1961 and retained the pride of place in 1971 also. With a population of 1,376,980 they constitute more than half of the total Scheduled Tribes (54.36 per cent) in 1971. The Oraon, Munda, Bhumij and Kora have retained the next 4 positions in this order ; the Mahalis have occupied the 6th place replacing the Lodhas and pushing the latter down to the seventh place.

The major tribes have, no doubt, maintained their relative positons in terms of numerical strength, but the rates at which they grew during the decade presents at first sight, a perplexing picture which will call for a, closer. It is interesting to note that two of the first ten numerically important tribes, namely, the Oraons and Lepchas have registered a fall in their numbers by 2.09 per cent and 4.84 per cent respectively over the decade. Two others, namely, the Santals and Lodhas have recorded small increases of 14.79 per cent and 12.25 per cent respectively. But the other six tribes show enormous growth ranging from 43.73 per cent (Bhutias) to 97.49 per cent (Malpahariyas).

Incomplete of vague returns as elaborated in the first few paragraphs of the note may, at least partly, explain the fall in the numbers of Oraons and Lepchas as also the small increases recorded by the Santals and Lodhas for such returns may have swelled the number of the unclassifiable tribes at the cost of these communities. [The districtwise distribution of the individual tribes (to be publihed soon) will, of couse, throw more light on the subject]. But there is hardly any such ready answer or explanation for the explosive increases by the other tribes. It seems possible that these tribes were consciously returning the correct tribe-names at the time of enumeration and hence the figures correctly reflected their numbers in 1971. But, then, the same factor, a consciousness about tribal identity, should have resulted in a higher rate of growth among the Santhals also. How far is the low growth amongst the Santhals and Lodhas due to ethnic factors or factors like migration etc. can be determined only after some detailed investigatios are made. The known data on fertility and rates of mortality do, however, sugest that there is no reason to belive that a growth rate of 1.4 per cent or 1.2 per cent as recorded by the Santhals and Lodhas is a natural growth tate.

The growth rates of the minor tribes also make an interesting reading. Statement VII presents the decadal growth of the ten numerically samllest scheduled tribes.

8. Hajang	244	426	—42.72
9. Gorait	481	425	+13.18
10. Asur	611	..	...

All the minor tribes except Sauria Pahariya and Gorait show steep fall in their numbers. They have not certainly been decimated during the decade. As already explained at the introductory paragraphs, the "Unspecified tribes" have engulfed these minor tribes. This will be corroborated by the special tables to be brought out shortly showing the distribution of the tribes district-wise.

Birjia and Asur are two tribes which have figured in the State tables for the first time in 1971. While Birjia has a small population of 16only in the State, the Asurs are 611 in number. The Sauria, Paharias are another minor tribe which has recorded a big increase in their numbers having grown from only 28 in 1961 to 158 in 1971.

Sex Ratio : among the ten major tribes

There are 955 females per 1,000 males in the Scheduled Tribes population of the State according to 1971 Census as against 891 females in 1,000 males of the general population. The sex ratio among the first ten numerically important Scheduled Tribes is presented in the following statement which also compares the 1961 figures with those of 1971.

STATEMENT VIII

Sex Ratio among the ten major Scheduled Tribes in West Bengal.

7. Lodha, Kheria, Kharia	945	1,014
8. Bhutia (including Sherpa, Tota, Dukpa, Kegatey Yolmo, Tibetan).	974	934
9. Malpaharia	919	850
10. Lepcha	954	1,020
11. Unspecified	928	1,057

Against the upward trend in sex-ratio recorded by the Total population (from 878 to 891) the sex ratio among the Scheduled Tribes has come down from 969 to 955 during the decade. This is an important development. Four of the ten major tribes namely, Munda, Mahali, Lodha and Lepcha had in 1961 more females, the sex ratios being 1,041, 1,031, 1,014, and 1,020 respectively. All of them now have more males than females in their numbers. In the other major tribes also the males out number the females in 1971 as they did in 1961.

During the intercensal decade, however, the Oraons Bhumijs, Koras, Bhutias and Malpaharias have recorded some increase in the sex ratios while the remaining five have registered a fall. The largest increase in the ratio is amongst the Malpahariyas—919 in 1971 against 850 in 1961.

The sudden reversal of the sex ratio and, that too by such big margin, is hard to explain and will surely warrans a further study. The numbers of females per 1,000 males, among the individual tribes, again, are widely varying ranging from the high figure of 1,041 (Mundas) to the low ratio of 850 (Malpahariyas). The other majortribles besides the Mundas, who have more females than myles are the Lodhas (1,031), Lepchas (1,020) and Mahalis (1,014).

Literacy Among Scheduled Tribes ;

During the last decade West Bengal has recorded only a small increase in the literacy of the population, from 29.28 per cent in 1961 to 33.20 per cet in 1971. Literacy among the Scheduled Tribes has also recorded a small nominal increase from 6.55 per cent in 1961 to 8.92 per cent in 1971. The performance is not far above the all-India average for the Total population ; but in case of the Scheduled Tribes the record of WestBengal is poor indeed compared to any other States.

The Statement below shows the percentage of literatse among te Scheduled Tribes in the States and Union Territories.

It is seen that the Scheduled Tribe literacy in West Bengal is one of the lowest in the country. Even small States like Tripura, Nagaland, Manipur and Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindive Islands have attained a high rate of literacy than West Bengal. In fact, only three of the major States, namely, Andhra Pradesh, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh have lower literacy achievement than West Bengal.

Keeping the historical background in mind, it is no wonder that the Scheduled Tribes should be educationally backward or literacy among them should be much lower than among the general population. What is important and worthy of notice is that excepting in Calcutta (a metropolitan city where there is a literacy-selective inmigration and settlement) literacy among Scheduled Tribes does not stand any comparison at all with general literacy in any part of the State, not even in the districts where literacy among the general population is also very low. Not only have the Scheduled Tribes as a whole registered a small increase of 1.37 points during the decennial period in the State, some of the districts present a more dismal picture indeed. An extreme case is the district of Cooch Behar. This small districts with a small Scheduled Tribes population has slided backward so far as literacy among the Scheduled Tribes is concerned. The percentage of literates among the Scheduled Tribes has come down from 10.73 to 9.20 during the decade in the district.

Literacy among the Scheduled Tribes has remained almost stationary or increased only marginally in the districts of Birbhum, Burdwan, Twenty four parganas and Darjeeling. The tribals in these districts (except Darjeeling) have actually the lowest literacy attainment in the State. Malda, Mushidabad, Purulia and Cooch Behar are four districts in the State which are the most backward educationally. Literacy among the Scheduled Tribes in these districts is also very low. As the statement below will show, there is, however, no correlation between literacy of the Total population and that among the Scheduled Tribes in these districts except for Calcutta.

15. Murshidabad	19.66	15	5.22	14
16. Malda	17.61	16	7.58	12

Even in districts like Twenty four Parganas, Burdwan, Howah and Hooghly which have higher literacy among the Total population compared to other districts, the Scheduled Tribes have very poor literacy. In fact, the district of Burdwan in which the general literacy is 34.36 per cent has the lowest literacy (4.23 per cent only) among its tribals. In Hooghly also a mere 6.29 per cent of the Scheduled Tribes are literates against 38.82 per cent literates in the Total population.

If the Scheduled Tribes have a poor literacy throughout the State, literacy among their females is still more deplorable. A mere 3.09 per cent of the Scheduled Tribe females are literates against 14.49 per cent of male literates. Leaving apart Calcutta the highest female literacy among the Scheduled Tribes is to be found in the district of Darjeeling with a figure of 11.00 per cent and the lowest, 0.93 per cent, is in the district of Birbhum. The picture is dismal but could not be otherwise. The traditional like style, the occupational bondage, and social inhibitions have kept the tribal people in general and the tribal females in particular away from formal education. A break-through in tribal education, especially amongst the females, is an up-hill task and only a superlative effort can achieve any result.

Coming to education among the individual tribes it is seen that the major tribes of the State show hardly any superior achievement. The hills tribes or tribal groups of Bhutias and Lepchas are, however, the two exceptions. The statement below gives the literacy rates, sex-wise among the ten major tribes in West Bengal in 1971 and 1961.

10. Lepcha	25.90	34.38	14.66	24.66	37.39	12.18

There is hardly any significant variation in the literacy performance of these tribes during the last decade except for the Bhutias. In 1961, the Bhutias had the highest literacy among all tribes. The Lepchas have now come up to occupy the first place relegating the Bhutias to the second position. While the Lepchas record a literacy rate of 25.90 per cent in 1971 which is just 1 point higher than in 1961 and compares favourably with the general literacy in the State, the Bhutia group of tribes has, curiously enough, recorded a fall in its literates from 25.06 per cent in 1961 to 23.46 per cent in 1971. This is a unique case indeed which may call for some special study. Another remarkable feature is that although the literacy among the Bhutias has gone down during the last decade the females amongst them have recorded a comparatively high literacy of 21.34 per cent in 1971 (against 12.05 in 1961). The males, on the other hand, performed badly, having slumped to 25.52 per cent from the impressive percentage of 37.21 in 1961. The Lepcha males also have now a lower percentage of literates (34.38 per cent against 37.39 per cent of 1961); their females have, however, recorded a slight increase (14.66 per cent in 1971 against 12·18 per cent of 1961) and in the process kept the balance in-favour of the Lepchas.

Yet another noteworthy feature revealed by the above statement is that the Santals, who are numerically the strongest tribe constituting more than 50 per cent of the total Scheduled Tribes in the State and are known to be conscious of their ethic identity and vocal about their rights, have a literacy rate of 7.93 per cent only. Further, literacy among their women is a poor 2.06 per cent only which is just higher than that of the Lodhas, a poorer and comparatively more backward and mute tribe.

Economic Classification of the Scheduled Tribes—

On the basis of the main activity as returned by the respondents 37.56 per cent of theScheduled Tribes are as workers and 62.44 per cent, non-workers according,, to 1971 Census.

Statement XII classifies the workers among Scheduled Tribes into the two main categories agricultural and allied workers (a,b &c) and other workers (d) and also makes a comparison with the general population.

STATEMENT XII

Percentage of Workers and Non-workers among total population and Scheduled Tribe population —1971.

Industrial Category or Workers	Total Population	Scheduled Tribe Population
I. WORKERS	27·91	37·56
(a) Cultivator	31·97	31·18
(b) Agriculture Labourers	26·46	48·95
(c) Livestock, forestry fishing, hunting and Plantations, orchards and allied activities.	2·94	10·88
(d) Workers other than at (a), (b) & (c).	38·63	8·99
II. Non-Workers	72·09	62·44

It is observed that the Scheduled Tribes have a higher percentage of workers than the general population 37.56 per cent of the Scheduled Tribes are workers as against 27.91 per cent workers in the Total population.

Of the Scheduled Tribes workers, again, more than fourfiths are engaged in agriculture, the percentage being 80·13, whereas in the general population the corresponding figure is only 58·43 per cent. The allied industrial category of livestock, forestry, etc. claims 10.88 per cent of the Scheduled Tribe workers. This highlights the predominantly rural base of the Scheduled Tribes and the extent to which they are tied to the land. Yet another noteworthy feature of the tribal workers in the agricultural sector is the high proportion of agricultural labourers among them. In 1971, as much as 48.95 per cent of the workers among the Scheduled Tribes were agricultural labourers which is almost double the percentage of agricultural labourer among the general population.

Another remarkable change is noticeable in the agricultural sector itself. The ratio of cultivators to Agricultural labourers now stands at 100 : 157 in 1971 against 100 : 58 in 1961 amongst the Scheduled Tribes. The corresponding figure in the total population is 100 :83 in 1971 against 100 : 40 of 1961.

An increase in the number and proportion of agricultural labourers in the Total population has been a uniform pattern throughout the State. In the North Bengal districts, however, the variation is the most pronounced. This is an important and significant finding which has already engage the attention of the planners, administrators and scholars. Has there been large scale alineation of land formerly owned or possessed by the tribals ? Has there been any change in concept leading to such big variation in the cultivator-agricultural labour ratio ? Has there been any conscious return of "agricultural labour" as the main activity in the wake of the agrarian turmoils of the late sixties ? How far is the high cultivator-agricultural labour ratio among the Scheduled Tribes in the tribal-concentration districts of North Bengal responsible for the higher incidence of agricultural labourers in the total population of the area? What is the impact of the slump in industrial activity in the State in the late sixties ? These are only a few of the questions that will naturally arise in this connection.

One significant point to remember here is that there has been a huge increase in the number of agricultural labourers in West Bengal during the last decade and the cultivator-agricultural labour ratio now stands at 100 : 83 for the Total population against 100 : 40 in 1961. This is in keeping with the all-India trend. The magnitude of the shift in the all-India ratio is also about the same as in West Bengal. The ratio has come to 100 : 61 for Total workers in India in 1971 against 100 : 32 in 1961.

It is also seen that against 80.13 per cent of the Scheduled Tribes workers being engaged in the agricultural sector the non-agricultural sector engages only 19.87 per cent. In the Total population, on the other hand, 41.57 per cent of the workers are engaged in occupations other than agriculture.

In the non-agricultural sector again the allied industrial category of III-Livestock, fisheries, etc. claims the highest percentage of Scheduled Tribes workers. Here, too, there has been an increase, though of a small magnitude, during the last ten years. This is yet another indicator of the traditional life-style and stagnation in the livelihood pattern of the tribal population in the State.

TABLE C—VIII—SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES

Part A—Classification by Literacy and Industrial Category of Workers and Non-Workers According to Main Activity among Scheduled Castes.

This table relates to Scheduled Castes Population and corresponds to table C-VIII—Part B of 1961. Scheduled Castes Population have been shown by sex, literacy, nine industrial categories of workers and non-workers down to police station and town level. Separate figures have also been given for total, rural and urban sectors of the population.

The table is followed by an annexure for the three urban agglomerations, viz., Calcutta, English Bazar and Asansol. An appendix is also given showing the population castewise cross-classified by literacy at State level only.

In addition to these tables several special tables containing the distribution of broad industrial categories, age-groups, marital status, educational levels for each caste and also for total castes will be printed in Part V-A in the Census Publication of the State.

The percentage of Workers/Non-Workers and Literates among the Scheduled Castes Population with sex break-up are given in Statement I and Statement II respectively.

TABLE C-VIII.—SCHEDULED CASTES AND SCHEDULED TRIBES

PART B.—CLASSIFICATION BY LITERACY AND INDUSTRIAL CATEGORY OF WORKERS AND NON-WORKERS ACCORDING TO MAIN ACTIVITY AMONG SCHEDULED TRIBES.

This part of the table relates to Scheduled Tribes population only and corresponds to table C-VIII—Part-B of 1961. Scheduled Tribes population has been shown by sex, literacy, nine industrial categories of workers and non-workers down to the police station and town level. Total, Rural and Urban figures are given separately.

The table is followed by an Annexure for the three urban agglomerations viz., Calcutta, English Bazar and Asansol. An Appendix is also given showing the population tribewise and cross-classified by literacy. This is at State level only.

In addition to these tables several special tables containing the distribution of broad industrial classifications, age-groups, marital status, educational levels, religion for each tribe and also showing the distribution of total Scheduled Tribe non-workers into sex, type of activity and educational levels will be printed in Part V-A in the Census Publication of the State.

The percentage distribution of total males and females of scheduled tribes among literates and illiterates; workers and non-workers are given below :—
